C. I. O. Ready To Organize 1,200,000 in Textile Mills

Lewis Committee Hopes to Unionize All of Big Industry.

Green Forces Rally To Oppose Moves

On the Labor Front.

The Committee for Industrial Organization yesterday started a move to organize 1,200,000 textile workers.

The Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation announced an advance in steel prices to finance its recent wage increase to employes. Story on Page 2.

Textile Workers' Drive.

By William V. Nessly.

The John L. Lewis Committee for Industrial Organization yesterday plunged into the task of bringing into its ranks 1,200,000 textile workers.

Francis J. Gorman, president of the United Textile Workers of America, speaking from New York, told The Post the drive is under way, following conferences he has had with Lewis, Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, and heads of other C. I. O. unions.

Meanwhile, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, which has suspended the C. I. O. unions, opened a fight against the Lewis effort to organize the boot and shoe industry, in which the federation already has a union. He called on all members of the A. F. of L. to join in the struggle "to preserve the jurisdictional rights accorded an international union" affiliated with the federation.

To Address Rallies.

Without waiting for completion of its drive to organize steel, or the end of its current contract negotiations in bituminous coal, the C. I. O. has made plans to throw several hundred union organizers into the textile field, and is contacting divisional representatives and heads of local unions in the far-flung plants that make up the industry and apprising them of the plans.

Gorman, picturesque and dynamic head of the existing union, which includes but a small portion of the industry's workers, has left the Capital for New England, where, over the week-end he will address rallies of the textile, woolen and worsted factories and go over with union representatives the plans for the membership drive. He will return here next week and will confer further with Lewis, Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, and heads of other C. I. O. unions. Further details of the drive will be worked out at that time, with both New England and the South, in both of which the industry is widespread, given attention.

100 Organizers Ready.

Gorman conferred in New York yesterday at offices of the union there. Tomorrow, at Lawrence, Mass., he is to speak before representatives of woolen and worsted plants' employes on the contemplated campaign, and on Sunday will address a rally of workers at Norwich, Conn. These are preliminary steps which will be extended through all the area covered by the industry.

Gorman said yesterday he now has 100 organizers available and that when other C. I. O. unions send their men into his field there will be "several hundred" intensively enrolling the workers.

"Our people are making surveys of the needs in all sections to be covered," he said, "so that we can adequately prepare."

Gorman was leader, actually an elected dictator, of the spectacular and violent textile strike of 1934.

Fourteen persons were killed, scores wounded and hundreds arrested in the countless skirmishes, that marked the strike, weapons ranging from tear gas to machine guns. Property damaged mounted into the millions of dollars and workers numbering 400,000 were estimated to have lost from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 in wages. The strike was settled by a board chosen by President Roosevelt and headed by John G. Winant, later chairman of the Social Security Board.

Il Duce Will Visit Libya, Honor Balbo

Tripoli, Libya, March 4 (AP).—Premier Mussolini will come here this month to inspect Libya's new and modern roads and military strength, and, reliable opinion held today, banish for all time the thought he exiled Marshal Italo Balbo by naming him to the governorship of Libya.

Mussolini will spend 10 days with the famed flier, who led the Italian air armada on its flight to Chicago in 1933 and came here in 1934 to press a program of militarization and highway construction that has made the territory a valuable key to Italian defense plans.

(Rome dispatches said Il Duce would leave Italy for Libya Monday night, aboard the heavy cruiser Za. a.)

Germany Aroused Over 'Insult' Offered Hitler by LaGuardia

MAYOR LAGUARDIA.

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, March 4.—New York completely overshadowed Moscow tonight as a world menace in Nazi minds, because of an asserted insult to Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler.

It was the result of Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia and his idea for a "hall of horrors" at the 1939 World's Fair, including a figure of "that brown-shirted fanatic who is menacing the peace of the world."

Newspapers assailed the sharp-tongued Mayor, often a severe critic of the Nazis, and cables carried instructions to Dr. Hans Luther, German Ambassador at Washington, to protest forthwith to the United States Government.

(Secretary of State Hull in Washington voiced informal regret over such incidents, promised investigation, and indicated a formal expression of regret would be conveyed to the German Embassy.)

Even the usually soft-spoken Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, the Boersenzeitung and the Tageblatt joined editorially in attack on the New York burgomaster.

They suggested LaGuardia spoke as head of "unscrupulous elements" which are trying internationally to "poison the world atmosphere," that it is such "Jewish inflammatory speeches which are driving the world into a catastrophe," that "the Jew LaGuardia" must "at least have his ears boxed morally inasmuch as it is impossible to do it physically."

The Tageblatt wondered how a

Charlottesville, Va., March 4.—Cleo Sprouse, 18-year-old victim of a chloroform murder, was buried in a cemetery on the outskirts of Charlottesville this afternoon.

Mrs. Lulu Sprouse, the girl's mother, collapsed at the graveside.

A physician revived her and advised relatives to take her home. She refused to leave, however, until she had buried her face in the flowers covering the simple gray casket.

Tonight this historic university town was looking forward to the most sensational murder trial since J. Samuel McCue, a former mayor, was convicted of killing his wife with a baseball bat and was hanged in the courthouse yard here. That was 33 years ago.

Miller in Richmond Jail.

The principal in the forthcoming trial will be Dr. Richard G. Miller, prominent Charlottesville dentist.

He is now in the Henrico County Jail in Richmond charged with the murder of Cleo.

In the course of a dramatic trip from here to the Virginia capital, Dr. Miller told Sheriff J. Mason Smith (so the officer said today) that the girl died while he was preparing to perform an illegal operation on her.

Dr. Miller, according to Sheriff Smith, denied he was responsible for Cleo's condition.

However, Commonwealth's Attorney W. O. Fife said today that he will ask the Albemarle County grand jury to return an indictment of first degree murder against Dr. Miller.

Girl Asked Operation.

Fife said Dr. Miller's written confession was "very brief," but he declined to make it public.

However, Fife did say that Dr. Miller admitted he had performed one abortion and had assisted in others.

Sheriff Smith, one of the officers who took Dr. Miller to Richmond last night after 1,000 shouting citizens had gathered outside the local jail, said that en route the dentist asked him to stop the car on the side of the road.

"He told us," Sheriff Smith said, "that the girl would have become a mother in about five months, and that he attempted the abortion at her request on Monday. He said he borrowed an automobile and drove to a point 6 miles north of here, where he turned off into a side road. He said it was not yet dark.

"He told us he prepared to perform the operation right there in the car, but she died a minute after he administered the anesthetic."

He said when he knew she was dead he became panicky, the sheriff related, adding "he told us he sat in the car with the body until after dark and then drove with her to the university cemetery."

Smith said Miller told him he decided to make the death look as much like suicide as possible.

Weeps at Funeral Hour.

Although Miller remained calm most of the day in his Richmond cell, he was visibly affected at almost the same time the girl was being buried here.

Jailer Edward Knight asserted that at about the hour of the funeral Miller burst into tears.

Earlier in the day he embraced his wife when she paid a surprise visit to Henrico County Jail. Both Miller and Mrs. Miller were deeply moved, Knight said.

In the presence of a deputy sheriff she talked to the dentist for about five minutes.

"Mrs. Miller feels the same about the doctor as we do—everybody loved him."

Mrs. Sprouse, mother of the murdered girl, said Dr. Miller always had been "fond" of Cleo.

"He often told her," Mrs. Sprouse said, "that he felt like a father toward her."

Tonight Mrs. Sprouse was very indignant.

"I hope he never comes to trial,"

Presidential Fiscal Power Boost Hinted

By Robert C. Albright.

Loopholes through which the President apparently could shift appropriations virtually at will, asserting a power over funds hitherto exclusively reserved to Congress, were disclosed yesterday in the confidential draft of a sweeping reorganization bill.

Two drafts of the bill, embodying White House reorganization proposals, already have been made by the President's Committee of Administrative Management, and a third—a so-called "committee bill"—is being prepared by Chairman Joseph T. Robinson, of the Joint House and Senate Reorganization Committee.

The provision in the confidential bill draft that some Senators say would give the President a flexible appropriating power over public money is contained in "section 503."

"Carte Blanche" Power Cited.

It provides:

"Such portions of the unexpended balances of appropriations or other funds available for each transferred or abolished agency, are transferred to the designated receiving agency, including the National Resources Board, as the President shall deem necessary. Unexpected balances of appropriations or other funds available for a transferred or abolished agency, not so transferred pursuant to the President's determination under this section, shall be impounded and returned to the Treasury."

Linked with "carte blanche" reorganization powers provided in Section 1 of the bill, these Senators pointed out that the cited paragraph would enable the President to transfer an agency, together with its appropriations, and then abolish the agency, leaving the appropriations for the bureau or activity to which they were transferred.

Slashes Senate Powers.

Another provision of the private bill draft may cause even more trouble in the Senate, jealous of its right to confirm Presidential appointments, it was learned. It is Section 211-A, which reputedly removes Senate powers of confirmation over a vast number of public offices by specifying a narrow list of "top post" appointments, some of which the Senate can confirm. Automatically, Senate consent would not be required for hundreds of offices, including not only postmasters and marshals, but such other coveted offices as State WPA administrators, Senate opponents of the provision argue.

This section reads:

"All offices or positions in the agencies of the Government to which appointments are authorized to be made by the President alone or by the President by and with the consent of the Senate, shall, when hereafter filled, be filled by appointment without term by the heads of the executive departments or independent agencies in or under the jurisdiction of which such offices or positions are located, except the following:

"1. Heads of executive departments and independent agencies. 2. Ambassadors, ministers, consuls and officers and employes in the foreign service of the United States. 3. Undersecretaries of executive departments. 4. The director of the Bureau of the Budget. 5. Members of the Civil Service board and

Text of Roosevelt's Address

On this fourth of March, 1937, in millions of homes, the thoughts of American families are reverting to the March fourth of another year. That day in 1933 represented the death of one era and the birth of another.

At that time we faced and met a grave national crisis. Now we face another crisis—one of a different kind, but fundamentally even more grave than that of four years ago. Tonight I want to begin with you a discussion of that crisis. I shall continue that discussion on Tuesday night in a Nation-wide broadcast and thereafter, from time to time, as may be necessary. For I propose to follow my custom of speaking frankly to the Nation concerning our common problems.

I speak at this Victory Dinner not only as the head of the Democratic Party, but as the representative of all Americans who have faith in political and economic democracy.

Our victory was not sectional. It did not come from compromises and bargains. It was the voice of 27,000,000 voters—from every part of the land.

The Democratic Party, once a minority party, is today the majority party by the greatest majority any party ever had.

It will remain the majority party so long as it continues to justify the faith of millions who had almost lost faith—so long as it continues to make modern democracy work—so long and no longer. We are celebrating the 1936 victory. That was not a final victory. It was a victory whereby our party won further opportunity to lead in the solution of the pressing problems that perplex our generation. Whether we shall celebrate in 1938, 1940 and 1944, as we celebrate tonight, will deservedly depend upon whether the party continues on its course and solves those problems.

And if I have aught to say it will continue on its course and it will solve those problems.

After election day in 1936, some of our supporters were uneasy lest we grasp the excuse of a false era of good feeling to evade our obligations. They were worried by the evil symptom that the propaganda and the epithets of last summer and fall had died down.

Today, however, those who placed their confidence in us are reassured. For the tumult and the shouting have broken forth anew—and from substantially the same elements of opposition. This new roar is the best evidence in the world that we have begun to keep our promises, that we have begun to move against conditions under which one-third of this Nation is still ill-nourished, ill-clad, ill-housed.

We gave warning last November that we had only just begun to fight. Did some people really believe we did not mean it? Well—I meant it, and you meant it.

A few days ago, a distinguished member of the Congress came to see me to talk about national problems in general and about the

Warns Party 'If We Do Not Lead Nation Now, Others Will.'

Democratic Diners Cheer President

By Franklyn Waltman.

In a fighting and vigorously worded speech, President Roosevelt last night called on the Democratic Party to unite in support of his program for reorganizing the Supreme Court as an essential step toward assuring "economic freedom" for wage earners, farmers and small business men.

Speaking at the "$100-a-plate Democratic Victory Dinner" at the Mayflower Hotel, the President, in effect, warned those members of his party who have revolted against his demand for power to name six new justices to the Supreme Court, that only so long as the party hung together could they be assured of continuance in office.

"If we do not have the courage to lead the American people where they want to go, someone else will," he pointedly declared.

Citing the objectives for which, during the campaign, he said "we have only just begun to fight," the President repeatedly declared that "neither individually nor as a party can we postpone and run from that fight on advice of defeatist lawyers."

Sees Risk in Delay.

Mr. Roosevelt said that as Chief Executive of the Nation, as well as head of the Democratic Party, he was unwilling to assume the risks—both to the country and the party—"of postponing one moment beyond absolute necessity the time when we can free from legal doubts those policies which offer a progressive solution of our problems."

Not only did the President speak thus to his Democratic lieutenants in an effort to avoid the cleavage which now threatens the party on this issue, but over their heads he pleaded for support of farmers and workers, contending, in effect, that nothing can be done for them in this session of Congress "with any reasonable certainty that what we do will not be nullified as unconstitutional."

Mr. Roosevelt went so far as to contend that the national Government was without power to undertake flood control projects, even though, as observers were quick to point out, the Supreme Court clearly has ruled that the Federal Government has wide powers to deal with the rivers and streams of the Nation.

Indeed, the President laid at the door of the Supreme Court responsibility for virtually every major problem confronting the country. Although the high tribunal has not declared invalid any housing, conservation or water power legislation—having specifically upheld the building of the Wilson Dam in the TVA project—the President indicated the Supreme Court was frustrating his Administration in all these fields.

Court Not Named.

Never before in history has a President of the United States publicly so taken to task the Supreme Court. He accused a majority of that tribunal of voting their "personal economic predilections" to condemn the Nation to "a No Man's Land of final futility" in the handing of economic and social problems.

Again and again the President cited New Deal acts declared invalid by the court and repeatedly said: "I defy anyone" reading such opinions to tell the Federal Government how it could cope in this session of Congress with reasonable certainty of constitutionality with problems affecting the farmers and labor.

Mr. Roosevelt did not once mention his proposal for authority to name six new justices of the Supreme Court nor did he specifically name the Supreme Court as such. Once he referred to the "Court" and again to "the courts." But he left no doubt whatever that the Supreme Court was the target of the barbs interspersed throughout his speech and that he was making an earnest effort to win support for his court reorganization plan.

It was clear the President and his close associates hope they may definitely turn the tide of battle over that issue in their favor through last night's speech and that

French Cabinet May Stabilize Money Today

Value of Franc to Be Fixed at 105.15 to Pound, 21.50 to Dollar.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, March 4.—Stabilization of the franc at its present parity with the dollar and the British pound is expected to be announced by the cabinet tomorrow, sources close to the ministry of finance said tonight.

The government, having sounded out the United States and British governments, they said, will fix the rate at about 21.50 francs to the dollar and 105.15 francs to the pound.

These sources added the cabinet also is expected to announce the constitution of a technical committee under the chairmanship of Prof. Charles Rist, economist and former vice governor of the Bank of France, to work with the ministry of finance in coping with the economic and financial situation.

Return of Confidence.

Vincent Auriol, minister of finance, conferred with the chairmen of the finance committees of the Senate and Chamber of Deputies on the decrees to be approved at tomorrow's cabinet meeting.

Appointment of Prof. Rist, these sources asserted, was expected to bring a return of confidence in financial quarters, as he is recognized as one of France's most able financiers.

The contemplated measures, it was said, would be aimed at restoring confidence—coaxing back an estimated $46,000,000,000 invested abroad, and loosen hoarded gold despite the February 17 decree that made such gold subject to drastic laws as contraband and permitting the search of homes for it.

The government needs several billions of francs to meet end-of-month payments and hopes to borrow from money repatriated as a consequence of renewed confidence.

Repatriation of French investments from the United States, it was contended, would fit into efforts attributed to the American Govern-

Girl Escapes One Train; Dies Under Second

Two Paul Junior High School girls stood on the Baltimore & Ohio right of way near the Terra Cotta Station last night watching the line's crack flyer roar into the West.

One of them heard above the clatter of the train an east-bound flier speeding into Union Station.

She jumped to safety, but Marjorie Longley, 14, of 607 Quackenbos street northwest, only child of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Longley, met instant death beneath the wheels of the onrushing locomotive.

The tragedy occurred about 100 yards from the Terra Cotta Station near the Blair road, scene 25 years ago of the worst train wreck the city has known. The train stopped at the Bates road crossing a mile down the line where two men were killed last week, and Marjorie's shattered body was taken to Casualty Hospital.

Eyewitness Tells Story.

Albert Coe, an employe of the National Brick Co., whose offices are near the scene of the accident, was a witness:

"The trains reached the spot on the right of way where the girls were playing at almost the same time. They saw the west-bound flier and stayed clear. As the incoming train bore down upon them, one of the girls turned facing it. She seemed to shout something to the other girl and then leaped. But her companion never turned."

Marjorie's companion was Evelyn Byers, 13, of 12 Quintana place northwest. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Harold Byers, she and the dead girl had been inseparable chums. They attended the same school and their homes were separated by the alley that divides the two streets.

Overcome by grief at the death of his only daughter, Longley collapsed at his home last night. He was revived by members of the rescue squad, who said he had suffered a heart attack. Later he was placed in the care of his family physician.

Police March on Coptic Monks On Sit-Down Strike in Fortress

By the Associated Press.

Cairo, Egypt, March 4.—Two hundred police were ordered tonight to move against Coptic monks on a sit-down strike in a fortified and doorless monastery overlooking wastes of the sandy, upper Egyptian desert.

Curtailment of visiting privileges to nearby Bedouin and Moslem villages and demands for a new abbot inspired the strike by the clerics, who have undertaken administration of the monastery themselves.

The Egyptian government instructed the Governor of Assiut, near the monastery of Deir-El Moharrak, to avoid bloodshed, if possible, but if attacked By the monks to retaliate and to eject them "at all costs."

Last efforts to reach a peaceable solution failed today when the Patriarch Yoannes XIX, of the Coptic Church, who has excommunicated the monks, appointed a commission to confer with them. The commission, including four bishops, was refused admittance and carried on shouted conversations with the monks, who maintained guard atop the 15-foot encircling wall.

The chief of the judicial administration at Assiut then reported to the government the only solution was to take the monastery by force, and it was understood tonight the expedition of police was ready to move against the churchmen.

Capture of the monastery, which the monks have refused to leave unless the present abbot is dismissed, presents a formidable task. The monastery in reality is a 1,400-year-old gateless fortress.

The only entrance is by the roof, connected to the top of another building by a drawbridge. Inside are fresh-water wells and cellars stocked with food. The walls are honeycombed with secret chambers, and the monks are armed.

Red Troops Don White As Snow Camouflage

Moscow, March 4 (AP).—Crack Red troops forming the outer line of defense for Moscow became today an army in white—protective coloring against a hypothetical enemy in a week of war games.

The maneuvers started in deep snow about 106 miles west of the capital with the soldiers in white uniforms. Correspondents reported tanks, guns and airplanes were painted white and some of the cavalrymen rode white horses.

Parents Beat Teachers In Irish School Strike

Galway, Irish Free State, March 4 (AP).—Fifty parents stormed a schoolhouse on the Island of Achill today as the upshot of a pupils' strike, beating the teachers and two constables who tried to stop them.

Police reinforcements finally scattered the parents. The children have been striking off and on for ten weeks because the teachers refused to prepare their noonday meals.

Victory Dinner Speakers Back Court Change

Democratic Treasurer Assails Plan Critics; Dictator Theory Scored.

In a burst of oratory at Victory Dinners throughout the country, Democrats last night backed President Roosevelt in his appeal for support of his judiciary reform recommendations.

At the Miami dinner, W. Forbes Morgan, treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, sounded the keynote of these speeches, when he said that the court plan "restores the original balance between the legislative, the judicial and the executive" branches.

"I am heartily sick at the sneering tactics employed by certain newspapers, corporation lawyers and other individuals," Morgan said, "who have opposed" Administration efforts to "protect the * * * underprivileged." Morgan stressed the "mildness" of the plan, contended "a few judges" over the retirement age have blocked the Administration program and concluded that enactment of the court program is requisite if the President is to fulfill campaign pledges.

Won't Pack Court.

Senator Lewis (Democrat), of Illinois, although he declined to commit himself to the program before a bill is reported to the Senate, denounced charges the President intends to "pack" the Supreme Court and said those who now clamor for a constitutional amendment are the same who until the President announced his plans had opposed an amendment. Others who spoke, and excerpts from their speeches were:

Dictator Can't Happen Here, First Lady Says

U. S. Spirit Will Prevent Autocracy, She Tells Young Democrats.

More than 1,500 Young Democrats, celebrating their November victory at the polls with a dinner at the Hotel Willard, last night heard Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt declare there could be no dictator "in a land as peaceful as ours in spirit."

Mrs. Roosevelt, speaking at the $10-a-plate dinner at the Willard, while her husband remained at the $100-a-plate function at the Mayflower, said she had one answer to people who say they are afraid of a dictator in the United States.

"I think the best answer is that we have too many young people who believe in democracy," she explained.

Court Out of Her Line.

The First Lady expressed her belief that people were becoming more and more interested in government. "If there is a better way for democracy to grow I can't think what it could be," she declared.

Maury Maverick, Representative from Texas, said when he introduced Mrs. Roosevelt that he had suggested she speak about the Supreme Court.

While the crowd laughed and cheered, Maverick quoted Mrs. Roosevelt as replying, "Why, that's none of my business."

The President's speech was broadcast to the Willard ballroom by direct wire. Lights in the hall were dimmed and the President's picture was flashed on a screen at one end of the room.

Before his speech Frank Wickham, national president of the Young Democratic Clubs, asked the celebrants to keep the organization permanently alive.

"There is still a definite use for the Young Democratic Clubs," he said. "We still have a responsibility to our party and to our country. During the next four years we must try to mold public opinion."

Aubrey Williams Speaks.

Aubrey Williams, deputy administrator of WPA, declared the Democratic victory in November transcended political lines. The Government must continue to help the masses, he said, and must fight against war, poverty and want.

Other speakers were William J. McGuire, chairman of the District Young Democratic Clubs; Matthew W. Neely, Senator from West Virginia, and Maverick, who was toastmaster.

Hazen Appeals to Employers To Assist in Safety Campaign

By Howard F. Wentworth.

(Winner of first prize in the Nation-wide C. I. T. Safety Contest with his 1936 series appearing in The Post.)

No. 5 of a Series

An appeal to private employers to join in a city-wide campaign of education and reprimands to save District citizens from "walking to their death" was voiced yesterday by Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen.

Promising to furnish municipal traffic experts to deliver safety talks, Commissioner Hazen urged business men to arrange educational meetings at which their employes could be impressed with the dangers of jaywalking and reckless driving.

"In addition," said the Commissioner, "I think private employers should call on the carpet any of their employes who are seen walking or driving dangerously. That is the policy we have adopted with respect to employes of the District government."

Declaring he is deeply impressed with the need for safety educational campaigns such as have been undertaken by The Washington Post, Commissioner Hazen added:

"We must stop this reckless killing of individuals on the streets. Since it is our own people we have to contend with education seems to be the most effective weapon at our command.

A 17-year-old colored boy, Rubin Stromen, died of injuries shortly after he was struck by the automobile of a hit-and-run driver last night, only a little while after Commissioner Hazen had asked that this month be a "deathless" one.

Herbert G. Kaiser, president of the United States Treasury Beneficial Association, praised The Post for its safety campaigns and said he is calling upon the association's 8,000 members to carefully study the daily traffic warnings.

"Two of our members were among the 14 pedestrians killed in January," said Kaiser. "We cannot praise too highly any effort that is being made to prevent this unnecessary killing."

Traffic safety will be discussed Monday evening at a meeting of Internal Revenue Lodge No. 47, A.

Russia Executes Jurist Who Fired Courthouse

Saransk, U. S. S. R., March 4 (AP).—Superior Judge A. Demidov, charged with burning down his courthouse to destroy damaging records, was shot today after being condemned by the very court over which he once presided. Four members of his staff were sentenced to from 3 to 10 years in prison.

It was charged the judge, a member of the Communist party, handed out light sentences to those who could and did pay for the considerations. The courthouse janitress, burned to death in the fire, "knew too much" about the judge and his affairs, the investigators charged.

Pay Advanced, Prices Raised By U. S. Steel

Products Boosted $3 to $8 a Ton to Finance Wage Increase.

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, March 4.—The Nation's largest steel producer increased the price of its products $3 to $8 a ton tonight to finance a general wage increase and a 40-hour work week for its 120,000 employes.

The Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation made the price advance, effective immediately, two days after ordering a 10 cents an hour pay raise for the workers under an agreement with John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization.

The announcement came while the company's so-called "company union" was preparing for a showdown with Lewis' forces for leadership of the men in the mills.

The United States Steel Corporation, parent of Carnegie-Illinois, also announced it would boost steel prices of other subsidiary firms.

Bethlehem Plant Closes.

Meanwhile, officials of the Bethlehem Steel Co., at Lebanon, Pa., revealed the entire Lebanon plant was closed because of a misunderstanding over the company's recent pay increase.

J. T. Edmonds, general manager of the plant, said it would remain idle until the matter could be settled.

Representatives of the Committee for Industrial Organization claimed all the employes of the mechanical department went on strike, demanding a wage agreement similar to that signed by Carnegie-Illinois.

This was denied by Edmonds, who insisted there was no strike.

"Some of the men wanted to discuss the matter and have some features cleared up," he added. "Consequently the management decided to close down until the matter could be adjusted."

The Carnegie-Illinois wage and hour schedule, effective March 16, will trail the price increase by 11 days, but the company explained that present orders on its books could not be completed before April 1, depriving it of much immediate benefit from the higher prices before that date.

The company announced the new prices would remain in effect until June 30, and pointed out:

"The advances in delivered prices are necessary to cover increased cost of production due to labor advances."

Defense Move Starts.

A movement in defense of the employe representation plans centered in the Chicago and Pittsburgh district mills of the Carnegie-Illinois Corporation following President Benjamin F. Fairless' recognition of the Lewis union organization committee.

Organized steel labor received Fairless' recognition as granting a year's "breathing spell" in steel labor strife, but battle lines were forming for an intensified contest between the industrial union and the representatives' plan.

Philip Murray, chairman of the steel workers' organizing committee, predicted the end of "company unions" and ordered his 200 organizers to sign up every steel worker in the industry.

The Carnegie-Illinois employe defense committee conferred with President Fairless on the advisability of forming an independent union to combat the Lewis group.

Delegates of the newly formed employes independent labor organization in the Chicago plants of Carnegie-Illinois prepared to follow the Pittsburgh committee in conference with Fairless next week.

Campaign Opened.

Murray and his chief, Lewis, seized upon the improved labor conditions to speed up their campaign of unionization in the steel industry and to broaden in other mass industrial fields, such as automobiles and oil.

The steel workers' organization committee chairman sent 40 "key men" back to their headquarters in widely scattered steel centers with the declaration:

"* * * The company union is dead. Management has completely repudiated it. * * *"

A union committee spokesman said the organizers would concentrate on other major subsidiaries of the United States Steel Corporation to win recognition by enrolling a majority of their employes.

Besides the Carnegie-Illinois contract, Murray's committee announced it has recently received recognition by 24 smaller independent steel concerns.

Steel labor in the South and Western district, meantime, began receiving pay increases and shortened hours in line with those announced earlier in the East.

Fifteen thousand employes of the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Co., a United States Steel subsidiary, and the largest Southern steel producer, will receive a wage increase of 7 cents an hour and a 40-hour week, effective March 16.

New Faces In Congress

Hamilton, Newspaper Publisher, Was D.C. Bank Receiver in '33

REPRESENTATIVE NORMAN R. HAMILTON.

By Liam Lenihan.

Political passions ran high in Virginia's Second District when Publisher Norman R. Hamilton threw down a challenge to an in-law of the DuPonts.

"All the heavy siege guns of reaction were trained on me," he said yesterday. "Scruples and fair play tactics were tossed ruthlessly aside."

The moneyed interests failed to defeat Hamilton, however, and the Republican son-in-law of Irene du Pont was soundly trounced at the polls.

Great-grandson of a Wesleyan missionary, who left his native Scotland for Ireland, Representative Hamilton was born in Portsmouth, Va., November, 1877.

"Father was interested in politics but I had ambitions to be a naval officer," he said. "When I failed to get an Annapolis appointment, however, I decided to study law."

But Hamilton, whose grandmother once had extensive slave holdings, lacked the necessary funds to enroll in law school so he became a reporter.

"I started at $2.50 a week on the Norfolk Public Ledger. At the same time I became active in local political activities," he said.

In 1912, the rising newsman was a Presidential elector and two years later Woodrow Wilson appointed him collector of customs for the State.

Meanwhile Hamilton was acquiring part interest in the Portsmouth Star and by 1924 he was publisher and in sole control.

Delegate to the Democratic national conventions at New York, Houston and Chicago, Hamilton was appointed receiver of five D. C. insolvent banks in 1933. He resigned June, 1936, to become a candidate for Congress.

The white-maned freshman-legislator said he represents a district "more diversified in general interest than any other." His mail bears out that contention for he gets more letters than any other Representative. That is why you may find his office force is too small to handle the entire job.

C. I. O. Looks to Textile Mills

(Democrat), Pennsylvania, now has a bill pending in Congress establishing an $18 minimum wage for skilled textile workers. He has estimated the average work week in the industry at from 48 to 50 hours a week, with some employes in the South working as many as 60 hours a week.

Lewis himself returned to Washington yesterday from New York, where he has been directing negotiations for a new contract for soft coal workers. He was represented as feeling that the contract obtained by his forces from the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation would have an effect on the coal negotiations by reducing "the financial pressure" on coal operators to resist the union moves.

Will Remain Here.

Lewis has contended that there is an "affinity" of financial interests back of the automobile, steel and coal interests, and that each industry has been subjected to pressure by the money interests to combat unionization drives.

He will remain here over the week-end.

Green's declaration of war on the Lewis forces was contained in a telegram sent to Robert J. Watt, secretary of the Massachusetts State Federation of Labor, at Boston.

In the message he reviewed granting of a Federation charter to the Boot and Shoe Workers Union granting it jurisdiction over all those employed in the industry.

"Because of this grant of jurisdiction," he wired, "I am officially calling upon you, your associate officers and members of the Massachusetts State Federation of Labor and all representatives of the American Federation of Labor to fight against and resist any attempt on the part of any organization to encroach upon the jurisdiction of the Boot and Shoe Workers Union."

Green previously had sent to all affiliated organizations, on directions from the executive council of the Federation, a call for a new pledge of allegiance to the Federation and threatened the affiliates with suspension for any aid given the Lewis forces.

The letter said the time has come "to draw a line and make a distinction between the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization." It charged the C. I. O. is trying to "impose the substitution of minority rule for majority control within the organized labor movement."

New Strikes Crop Out.

By the Associated Press.

"Sit down" demonstrations affected 2,250 Detroiters employed at three Bohn Aluminum Co. plants, the Michigan Smelting & Refining Co., and three units of the Peninsular Metal Products Co.

More than 1,200 sawmill and lumber workers struck, closing all but two of Seattle's major lumber mills. The Firestone Tire & Rubber Co.'s Nos. 1 and 2 plants ceased operations at Akron, Ohio, making 7,000 idle. Two hundred participated in a "sit down" at the Sprague Specialties Co., North Adams, Mass.

Pickets stopped three supply trucks at the Douglas Aircraft factory in Santa Monica, Calif., but later C. I. O. leaders met President Donald Douglas in a peace parley.

Police convoyed 75 workers through picket lines at the Pennsylvania Sugar Co. at Philadelphia after nonstrikers had been stoned. An A. F. O. L. organizer was mauled at Cleveland.

The refusal of 165 strikers to accept a compromise pay boost brought the Phyllis Shoe Co.'s announcement it would liquidate its organization at Lowell, Mass.

Strikers evacuated the Briggs Manufacturing Corporation and the Murray Corporation, body makers, at Detroit. The 20,500 workers returned to their jobs.

Hazen Appeals To Employers In Safety Drive

Urges Education of Workers to End Jaywalking and Traffic Risks.

F. G. E., at the Hamilton Hotel, Kaiser promised.

Commissioner Hazen renewed his appeal for pedestrians to cease jaywalking and for motorists and pedestrians alike to exercise more care at cross walks.

"There are 200 intersections in this city which are so dangerous, according to traffic counts, that they should be equipped with traffic lights," Commissioner Hazen said. Lack of funds has prevented the installation of the needed lights, he declared, and pointed out that the Commissioners have asked for $25,000 with which to buy new traffic lights next year.

Any business man who communicates with him, Commissioner Hazen said, will be assured of having a qualified traffic safety expert to address a meeting of employe groups.

McMahon Cracks Down

Traffic Court Judge John P. McMahon "cracked down" on the increased number of motorists arraigned before him on speed charges yesterday.

Judge McMahon refused to take the personal bond of several drivers who appeared for first-offense speeding.

"There is no excuse for being lenient with a defendant who has never been accused of speeding before. Many men believe they are safe in violating the law when they have never been convicted before, and have confidence in their driving ability and mechanical condition of their cars," the judge declared.

Meanwhile, figures at the Traffic Bureau show a marked increase in the number of speed arrests during the past two weeks. Inspector L. I. H. Edwards said this is due, in a measure, to an order sent to outlying precincts deploring the few speed cases that were being made.

The death of the Stromen boy in Casualty Hospital late last night, shortly after he was struck by the hit-and-run driver, brought the District's traffic toll to 31.

Last year at this time the deaths were little more than half that number and the figure stood at 17.

Edward Rosenthal, 65, of 1779 Lanier place, was in Emergency Hospital last night in serious condition after being struck by the automobile of Oliver Heatwike, 51, of the 900 block of Quackenbos street northwest, at Eighteenth street and Columbia road.

Two Slightly Hurt.

Two colored persons escaped with minor cuts and bruises yesterday when the delivery truck in which they were riding collided with a fire engine at Thirteenth and R streets northwest. The injured, Henry and Ethel Caveness, of 1330 U street northwest, were treated at Freedmen's Hospital. Henry then was charged with failing to give the right of way to a fire truck and failing to exhibit a registration card.

The fire truck, occupied by five firemen, was being operated by Private Abner P. Burgess, 32, attached to No. 7 Engine Co. They were answering an alarm at 1319 S street northwest, which fire did slight damage and was extinguished by another fire company.

Jerome Carter, colored, 24, of 1129 Ninth street northwest, was treated at Freedmen's Hospital for lacerations and brush burns after he was knocked down by an automobile at Seventh and N streets northwest. Police said Arnold J. Pecker, 27, 1116 H street northeast, was the driver of the car that struck Carter.

Four persons lost their driving privileges yesterday when their permits were revoked for speeding. Six other drivers' permits were suspended.

Thirty-day suspensions—Calvin S. Broadus, 1226 Duncan street northeast, 40 miles; Walter H. Chambers, Montrose, Md., 45 miles; Donald E. Crandall, Baileys Cross Roads, Va., 44 miles.

Fifteen-day suspensions—George R. Bryant, 2722 Courtland place northwest, 38 miles; Robert F. Conklin, 1512 S street southeast, 38 miles; Rose R. Cohen, Chevy Chase, Md., 38 miles.

Starting 31st Year in Senate, Borah Faces Fight of Career

By Sidney Olson.

It is a little shock, somehow, to see at close range that William E. Borah's eyebrows are white.

The eyebrows of many men are white long before they reach the age of 71. But Bill Borah's eyebrows, it is clear, should remain eternally black, to lend arched emphasis to the thunderbolts he yet launches in the Senate.

Yesterday the senior Idaho Senator began his thirty-first year in the Senate. He is the dean of that body. He is beyond the age set by the President as a determinant of Supreme Court capability.

Yet today this veteran leader of lost causes, this descendant of a King of ancient Bohemia and of Martin Luther, is preparing for the fight of his life.

The Constitution, to him like Holy Writ, is familiar ground—as familiar to his stance as the ground around first base is to Lou Gehrig. The arguments about Marbury v. Madison—the anti-5-to-4-decisions talk—the blasts at the Supreme Court's apparent obstinacy in the face of emergency—all these are to him an old story, but ever fresh—hoary as the fairy tales, but still green with new life. Listen:

"You say I'm called the most consistent inconsistent in the Senate. Yet I've only reversed my stand on one occasion in my life. In 1915 I introduced a bill to end 5-to-4 decisions in the Supreme Court. After long study and much thought I decided that a law requiring 6-to-3 or 7-to-2 decisions was impossible; that this could not be achieved by statute, but only by a constitutional amendment."

Borah, a moralist in politics, insists that he is not inconsistent and never has been, if he is measured against issues and not against men. He holds that while some men have changed their basic viewpoints, he has remained a fundamentalist.

His brown-green eyes are clear; his square, lined face and rectangular jaw hold their granite lines in much the mold they were when he fought down the League of Nations, and when he forced a reluctant President Harding to call a World Disarmament Conference, and throughout the years in which he has fought for human liberties and against corporate monopoly.

He has been called a lone wolf, but while many times alone in a fight, he has never exhibited wolfish tendencies.

In the fight against the President's court plan, he has chosen to wait while the Democrats battle among themselves. His position against it is known, but he has been tied up in the Republican conspiracy of silence. Very soon, possibly, he will do what he did many years ago in Idaho, when his young friends tied his horse to a rail so that it could not be untied.

He came out of the meeting, mounted his horse, leaned over and picked up the rail, and galloped off with it under his arm.

'Armament Race' Attacked in House

House debate on the Administration's "big navy" appropriation bill brought demands yesterday for a halt in the "mad armament race" and charges that Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins had delayed the current naval building program.

Democratic leaders hope to pass and send to the Senate tomorrow the measure which appropriates $526,555,428 for navy expenses during the fiscal year beginning July 1 and includes $130,000,000 to complete or start work on 81 new warships.

Representative Hamilton Fish (Republican), New York, challenged President Roosevelt to invite Great Britain and Japan to an arms limitation conference here in opening opposition of a "small navy" bloc.

The attack on Secretary Perkins came from Chairman Carl Vinson (Democrat), Georgia, of the House Naval Affairs Committee. He charged her refusal to grant exemptions from Walsh-Healey act labor provisions to steel and copper manufacturers had "impaired national defense" by delaying naval construction.

She Laughed at His Art; He KnockedOut a Tooth

Chicago, March 4 (AP).—A recital of what happened after her truck driver husband took up a correspondence course in art won a divorce today for Mrs. Beverly E. Englund, 32.

Last spring he showed her a picture, it was April 1, she said, so she laughed and Englund knocked out one of her teeth. Judge John C. Lewe granted her the divorce, $10 a week alimony and real estate valued at $7,500.

Beware The Cough
From a common cold
That Hangs On

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Creomulsion not only contains the soothing elements common to many remedies; such as, Syrup of White Pine Compound with Tar, fluid extract of Licorice Root, fluid extract of Wild Cherry and Menthol, but also has fluid extract of Ipecac for its powerful phlegm loosening effect, fluid extract of Cascara for its mild laxative effect and, most important of all, Beechwood Creosote is perfectly blended with all of these to reach the source of the trouble from the inside. Creomulsion can be taken frequently and continuously by adults and children with remarkable results.

Thousands of doctors use Creomulsion in their own families as well as in their practice knowing how Creomulsion aids nature to soothe the inflamed membranes and heal the irritated tissues as the germ-laden phlegm is loosened and expelled. Druggists also know the effectiveness of Beechwood Creosote and they rank Creomulsion top for coughs because you get a real dose of Creosote in Creomulsion, emulsified so that it is palatable, digestible and potent for going to the very seat of the trouble.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs, chest colds and bronchial irritations and especially those stubborn ones that start with a common cold and hang on for dreadful days and nights thereafter. Even if other remedies have failed, your druggist is authorized to guarantee Creomulsion and to refund every cent of your money if you are not satisfied with results from the very first bottle. Don't worry through another sleepless night—phone or go get a bottle of Creomulsion right now. (Adv.)

Gingell Taken Before Inquiry In Death Case

Montgomery Grand Jury Is Expected to Indict Trio in Matthews Case.

Lawrence Gingell, member of a trio held for murder in West Virginia and against whom indictments are being considered in the slaying of Ellwood Matthews, yesterday appeared before the Montgomery County grand jury, convened in special session to consider the murder of the 67-year-old Four Corners, Md., farmer.

After listening to Gingell's testimony, the grand jury recessed until this morning, when indictments are expected against him and two others, William B. Reed and War Joseph Kirby. The three are already charged in a warrant with the murder of Matthews, committed November 31 near Burnt Mills, Md.

According to police, 21-year-old Gingell confessed to the murder while in the Charleston, W. Va., jail, following a gun battle with West Virginia police. He and the two others are charged with the murder of William A. Dollman, 32, found burned to death in his automobile near Charleston Thanksgiving Day.

The trio will be questioned in a dozen other crimes, including murder, assault and holdup. With them, in some of the crimes, two other men, Wilburn "Peewee" Reed, William Reed's brother, and Richard B. Stockton, are alleged to be implicated.

Brought to Montgomery County from Charleston, Gingell was handcuffed when he appeared before the grand jury yesterday. Police described the gang of three as "one of the most vicious, cold-hearted crews" they have ever encountered. After the hearing Gingell was returned to Charleston.

France Prepared To Stabilize Franc

Morgenthau Denies Reports.

A report emanating from Paris to the effect that Henry Morgenthau, jr., Secretary of the Treasury, had given "unequivocal assurance" that the United States was "ready to do everything" to aid France, was emphatically denied yesterday by the Secretary at his press conference.

The great importance which Secretary Morgenthau attached to the report, which he condemned, mystified observers here until receipt of the cable from Paris reporting the French were preparing to stabilize the franc at it present level. Apparently Morgenthau feared disturbing consequences as a result of the report which he declared erroneous.

Obviously the American Treasury has been kept fully informed of each step taken in connection with the franc since the tripartite monetary agreement of last September. Several weeks ago monetary experts conferred for two days with Treasury experts and with H. Merle Cochran, of the American Embassy in Paris, home on a special mission. The French financial and monetary situation was canvassed in these conferences, it is known, although details have not become available.

Small-sale Operations.

To what extent the Treasury has used its $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund to support the franc since the monetary agreement is not known. But such operations could not have been on a large scale, as only $200,000,000 of the stabilization fund gold has been liquidated and that was at the initiation of the fund.

Morgenthau apparently was perturbed greatly by a brief cabled report purporting to interpret a story in the French press from Washington. He made quite an issue of the matter at his morning press conferences, nervously walking the floor, as he repeatedly emphasized the importance of erroneous reports in such matters. He declined to state why he regarded the particular story as so important.

The Treasury head said that "interpretations" which were given to a Washington dispatch to a French newspaper were incorrect. He added that he and President Roosevelt have "demonstrated the interest of the United States Government in the welfare of France" and that he had told Georges Bonnet, new French Ambassador to Washington, that "we would continue to do all we could, and live within and up to the spirit of existing laws."

The report from Paris also inferred that the French government would attempt to circumvent the Johnson act and borrow between 8,000,000,000 and 11,000,000,000 francs in the United States.

Nye Predicts Defeat For Change in Court

One-Boy Staff of 'World's Smallest Newspaper' in Sheboygan, Wis., Pays Out $1.75 to Publicity Contest Winners.

By the United Press.

New York, March 4.—Buster Hoefer, 11, owner, editor, columnist, sports writer, advertising manager and sole reporter of the Sheboygan (Wis.) Weekly — "the world's smallest newspaper"—came to New York today to pay out $1.75 in prizes to the winners of a Nation-wide letter-writing contest on the subject of "Why I Like the Sheboygan Weekly."

The first announcement he made was that Shirley Templ had entered his contest in a desperate bid for the $1 first prize, but that as an essay writer she was a good movie actress. Miss Temple finished clear out of the money.

The Sheboygan Weekly, printed on a multigraph machine and featuring advertisements drawn by the owner, now circulate nationally and has had a surprising growth since Buster decided a vigorous editorial policy was the secret of success. In journalistic circles his one-line editorial on the international situation is considered a model of terseness and vigorous viewpoint. It read:

"Hitler is a cheese."

Nor have his subscribers forgotten the day during the national election when he threw his influence on the side of the Republican Party by writing: "The President spends a little too much money."

First prize of $1 in the contest went to Harry Markowit, 11 of Brooklyn, who said in his essay that until he began reading the weekly he never knew there was such a place as Sheboygan. "I think," his letter concluded, "that they should elect you mayor for boosting it."

Second prize (50 cents) went to an adult—a man who signed himself "Curio" Pete, of Strumm, Wis. He said the Sheboygan Weekly was "the best paper I have read in 50 years traveling . . . from the Irish World to the Oslo Illustrated."

The 25-cent third prize was won by Fremont L. Gentz, of New York City, who said he liked the paper because it had "no scandal or bloodshed."

RFC Ready to Help Flood Homeless

By the Associated Press.

Flood sufferers received assurances yesterday that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation would help them build new homes—even to the extent of creating entire new residential districts.

Jesse Jones, RFC chairman, offered to lend up to 80 per cent of the cost of new homes, at 4 per cent interest, amortized over 20 years, but he said the structures must be "built upon high ground," away from flood dangers.

"If the cities and towns affected are interested and will take the necessary steps to have districts which are subject to serious periodic overflows abandoned for residential purposes, such loans will be made for creating entire new districts," he said.

To the owners of rented properties in flood districts, Jones offered financing up to 70 per cent of the cost of new homes, provided they are rented at reasonable rates.

Roosevelt's Court Plan Praised by Gov. Earle

St. Paul, Minn., March 4 (AP).—Gov. George H. Earle of Pennsylvania said tonight President Roosevelt's proposed reorganization of the Federal judiciary would mean "the greatest advance for democracy in our lifetime."

Earle told a national Democratic victory dinner the court plan would "fulfill the bright promise of the New Deal." The Administration's vast accomplishments, he said in a prepared address, "will be written in the shifting sands, if ways and means are not found to make the reforms of the New Deal permanent."

Miss Gottlieb's Aim Excellent With Pitcher

Witness Says Woman Golfer, Suing for Attack, Had Good Right Arm!

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 4.—Bea Gottlieb, the blonde girl who once trounced the then Prince of Wales in a golf game and got her picture in most of the papers, was just as deadly with a water pitcher as she was with a niblick, it developed today in Queens County Court.

Miss Gottlieb, now 30 and a professional golfer, charged Carey Phelan, hotel bar owner at Rockaway Beach, with criminal attack during a Labor Day outing there last year.

The water-pitcher episode came up today as Harold Keays, a middle-aged Wall Street broker, who was host to Miss Gottlieb, and his secretary, Frances Burgess, on the holiday, testified that drinking parties were held in Phelan's bar, and there were risque motion pictures that he said Miss Gottlieb saw there, among other things.

It was right in the middle of all the excitement, Miss Gottlieb charges, that Phelan pursued her into the ladies' rest room and assaulted her.

Miss Gottlieb's friendship with Phelan, so Keays testified, started off with a quarrel on the first night they were at the hotel. Keays said Phelan, a well-known Broadway figure, went into the room where Miss Burgess and Miss Gottlieb were sleeping.

"Phelan went over to Miss Gottlieb to wake her up," Keays explained, "to ask her if she wanted a drink. He shook her by the shoulder and said 'Wake up.' I had followed him into the room.

"Miss Gottlieb jumped up, annoyed, and reached over the foot of the bed and grabbed a water pitcher. Phelan had on a new brown suit, and became annoyed when she tossed the pitcher at him as he backed away. The water went all over him."

The broker said Phelan went back downstairs and though "we all laughed at him, he didn't think it was funny."

"Then we went downstairs to the bar, and later I saw Miss Gottlieb and Phelan dancing together."

Keays said he saw Miss Gottlieb a few minutes after the time the alleged attack took place, and she appeared "normal."

Miss Gottlieb, before becoming hysterical and causing adjournment yesterday, testified that when Phelan awakened her he had been "making caressing advances."

Keays didn't know about that, but did testify that Miss Gottlieb refused to explain her hurried departure from the gay surroundings, and merely said that she didn't "want to look at that man (Phelan) again."

Under brisk cross-examination, Keays said that "about eight or nine days" after the alleged attack, Phelan and a lawyer came to his apartment and told him that Miss Gottlieb, through a lawyer, was demanding $50,000 or he would be arrested."

Capt. Walter H. Lassing Ordered to San Diego

Capt. Walter H. Lassing, stationed in the office of chief of naval operations, Navy Department, here since last June, has been ordered to San Diego, Calif., leaving Washington next month. He will be at Headquarters of the Eleventh Naval District.

Before his Washington assignment, Cpat. Lassing commanded the U. S. S. Memphis, and previous to that was captain of the Mare Island (Calif.) Navy Yard. He entered the Naval Academy in 1901, appointed from Kentucky. For his World War services, commanding the U. S. S. Tucker, he was awarded the Navy Cross. He is a graduate of the Naval War College senior course.

Frazier-Lemke FarmLaw Is Defended, Assailed

By the Associated Press.

The Supreme Court heard conflicting arguments yesterday on the constitutionality of the revised Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage moratorium law.

Representative Lemke of North Dakota co-author of the legislation and Union Party presidential candidate last November, appeared in behalf of the measure. He was joined by Elmer McClain of Lima, Ohio. Those who assailed the law were T. X. Parsons of Roanoke, Va., and S. V. Kemp of Lynchburg, Va.

Auto Wrecked by Train Hinted 'Plant' to Obtain Rail Overpass

Possibility that an automobile wrecked yesterday by a fast Pennsylvania electric train at the Ardwick (Md.) grade crossing may have been planted there because of the railroad's refusal to install an overpass, was indicated last night as police investigated the accident.

Officer Jack Dent, attached to the Hyattsville (Md.) county police station, said he believed the car purposely had been stalled on the tracks.

Investigation revealed the automobile belonged to Lloyd George Rosser, 20-year-old Eastern High School student, living at 1711 Minnesota avenue southeast. The car had been stolen from the driveway of his home less than two hours before the crash, which occurred at 2 a. m.

Several months ago residents of the Ardwick area protested against the grade crossing. School Superintendant Nicholas Orem ordered school buses using this route to stop at the approach to the crossing and allow the pupils to walk across the tracks.

This precaution was adopted when Orem was informed that stop-watch tests had revealed the trains required about 9 seconds to reach the crossing from a "blind" turn in the tracks several hundred yards away.

'Wrath' of the Bradys Descends On Jimmy, Runaway Nat Fan

Father Scolds 12-Year-Old, Promises More Drastic Action on Return to D. C., but Joy of Reunion Strips Threat of Meaning.

By Shirley Povich.

A Staff Correspondent.

Palatka, Fla., March 4.—The Brady family of Washington caught up with Jimmy, 12, here in the heart of the orange belt today.

The young runaway who had plotted his secret expedition to the Washington Senator's training camp at Orlando, without the formality of notifying his parents, was stripped of his bravado as Mr. and Mrs. James Brady, sr., and sister Anne, arrived from Washington to reclaim the wanderer.

"Hello," mumbled Jimmy sheepishly as Mr. and Mrs. Brady rushed from their automobile to greet their chubby, black-haired son who two days ago had been the object of a widespread police search.

With open arms, the father greeted his son while his mother, overcome with joy at the reunion, smothered him with kisses. Sister Anne sidled up to peck a kiss and look reprovingly. And then Mr. Brady, sr., affected a stern parental wrath.

"Why did you do it?" he asked Jimmy.

Jimmy fumbled for an answer, a sheepish figure, with eyes directed to the floor, hardly daring to gaze upward. The lad told his story completely if not forthrightly—how he had purchased a train ticket to Jacksonville, thence to Orlando for $8 (half fare) to see his idols, the Senators, in training.

"Honest, dad, are you really mad?" and Jimmy diceted a glance at his father, solicitor of the Veterans' Administration in Washintgon.

It was the parent's turn to fumble for an answer. "Young man," he said, feigning wrath, "there will be no whipping for you, but you will hear from this. It was a very bad thing to do—run away like that—and you will be punished; there will be time when we return to Washington. You have caused us a great deal of trouble."

At that Jimmy looked worried, indeed, a strange contrast from the self-reliant lad who had calmly walked into the Senator's hotel in Orlando Tuesday afternoon.

But he was willing to defer his worrying until his return to Washington, because tomorrow morning his dad has agreed to take him to Orlando, where he will be the guest of Clark Griffith, owner of the Washintgon team, at a practice session.

"After all the trouble I've taken to avoid publicity, what happens?" and Brady directed his question at Jimmy.

"What happens, huh? You run away from home and get the whole family in the papers with your escapades. Young man, you will hear from this," and Mr. Brady, with an obvious effort, shot a reproving glance at his son.

With Mr. and Mrs. Howard Rowton, friends of the Brady family who had taken charge of Jimmy after his apprehension by the police at Orlando, the lad had been seeing the sights of central Florida for the past two days.

After trips to the ravine gardens and the orange groves, little Jimmy demanded to see the Palatka baseball park. A brief survey of the small park several sizes under the dimensions of Griffith Stadium where Jimmy learned to idolize the Senators, caused the lad to utter a derisive "humph." "Lookit, that right field fence, will ya?" he asked little Jimmy Rowton, son of his benefactor.

Germany Resents LaGuardia Speech

"fundamentally healthy, wide-awake people like the Americans can tolerate this man at the head of their most important community."

The severest attack was that by Der Angriff, published by Minister of Propaganda Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels. Dr. Angriff printed the mayor's picture under the caption "Scoundrel LaGuardia," and called him a "lout" and an "impudent Jew."

"We might take an interest in American affairs that would be distinctly unpleasant — LaGuardia's racial friends should beware," Der Angriff warned.

(Mayor LaGuardia's reaction to the protest over his speech to the women's division of the American Jewish Congress today was:

("They ought to protest. For I know of no artist or designer who can adequately paint anything that will adequately depict either the personalities of the Nazi government, Hitler himself, or the type of government he is giving."

(Secretary Hull's observation to newspapermen was that:

("Naturally, when any citizen of this country, no matter what he may think of the domestic policies of another country, engages in expressions and utterances reasonably calculated to be offensive to another government with which we have official relations, it is a matter of regret to this government.")

Peggy Procures Bail; To Appear at Cabaret

New York, March 4 (U.P.).—Peggy Garcia, who sued Fiddler Dave Rubinoff for $500,000 on charges that he seduced her and then withdrew her suit, was released on bail tonight from jail, where she had been held in default of $2,500 bail on a charge of bigamy. She was accused of having been married at the age of 11 and then of having married again without the formality of a divorce or annulment.

Commissioned officers and enlisted personnel in the Coast Guard and commissioned officers in the Public Health Service and the Coast and Geodetic Survey."

How broad would be the President's power over the proposed new merit system, administered by a single appointed officer, is indicated by an authorization in the bill for the President "by executive order to except from or cover into the classified civil service any office or position whenever he finds and declares that good administration of the Government will be facilitated thereby."

Although a confidential draft of the bill, and a revision of it, were brought before the Joint Congressional Committee by Chairman Louis Brownlow of the Presidents Committee on Administration Management, and although the President is reported to have seen it, care has been taken not to stamp the draft yet as "the" Administration bill. A so-called "committee bill," now being prepared by Senator Robinson, may be recognized when it is offered, it was said. Meanwhile, the committee has been in recess, and further hearings are not scheduled until Tuesday.

Doughton 'Unafraid.'

Charlotte, N. C., March 4 (AP).—Representative Robert L. Doughton said today he wasn't "afraid the skies will fall" if President Roosevelt's proposal to modify the Supreme Court is approved by Congress.

Georgia Passes Court Bill.

Atlanta, March 4 (AP). — The Georgia Senate passed today a bill allowing Supreme Court justices to retire at the age of 70 on two-thirds pay.

Atlanta Mayor Urges Citizens to 'Prowl'

It's a combined "know your city" and "combat crime" movement.

"If those who live on the top side would do some prowling, they would swing more heartily into our fight against undesirable characters and places," Hartsfield declared.

Ruins Searched For Fire Victims

New York, March 4 (AP).—In the tragic ashes of two squalid five story tenements, where at least three persons died in a spectacular fire, men poked about tonight in search of more bodies.

As firemen expressed the fear that the dead might number several more, Deputy Tenement House Commissioner Harry M. Prince, saying there was evidence of failure to comply with safety regulations in the buildings, asked an investigation.

Supreme Court Vetoes All Aid, Says Roosevelt

Warns Democrats 'If We Do Not Lead Nation Now, Others Will.'

which Mr. Roosevelt will broadcast to the country next Tuesday night.

Mr. Roosevelt undertook, by word, tone and gesture, to make last night's address as effective as he could. Seldom has he appeared more earnest and serious of demeanor. Some believed last night's speech was the "most powerful"—as one observer put it—he ever has made on any subject.

Appeals to Emotions.

He undertook to appeal not only to the reason of his listeners but also to their emotions. His voice ran the entire scale from pianissimo to crescendo as he attempted to drive home his points. Frequently he eyed his audience to ascertain their reaction. For the most part they apparently liked the speech immensely and at times applauded loudly and whistled. At the end the applause was thunderous.

The President did not spare his opponents. He lashed at them throughout the speech, repeatedly urging that the advice of "defeatist lawyers" be rejected and he termed the current volume of criticism of his plan "this new roar."

Discloses Ambition.

As though in reply to those who have contended that the President was seeking to be a dictator, Mr. Roosevelt early in his speech intimated, by reciting a conversation he had with an unidentified friend, that he had no third-term ambitions.

With facial gestures and evidently enjoying the anticipation which he was working up in his audience, Mr. Roosevelt recalled that he had told his friend that he was not satisfied with being a two-term President, but had "a great ambition" which related to January 20, 1941—the day on which his present term expires.

Reaching the climax the President said that this "great ambition" was, on January 20, 1941, "to turn over this desk and chair in the White House to my successor, whoever he may be, with the assurance that I am at the same time turning over to him as President, a Nation intact, a Nation at peace, a Nation prosperous, a Nation clear as to what powers it has to serve its own citizens." The President added that "I do not want to leave it to my successor in the condition in which Buchanan left it to Lincoln."

As the President talked there were held throughout the Nation many hundreds of "Democratic Victory Dinners," specifically held to wipe out the $430,000 party deficit and indirectly to celebrate the Democratic ascension to power in the National Government on March 4, 1933.

All these diners listened to the President's speech, which was broadcast nationally. But they also heard, in person, party stalwarts praise Democratic virtues and in several instances defend the President's court program. Thus W. Forbes Morgan, Democratic national treasurer, speaking at Miami, Fla., and Hugh S. Johnson, former NRA administrator, at Newark, undertook, as did the President, to make the latter's Supreme Court program a party issue.

Centered at Mayflower.

But the center of all these dinners was the $100-a-plate dinner at the Mayflower, attended by the President, his Cabinet, many members of House and Senate and more than 1,000 Democrats employed in the Federal Government. Joseph P. Tumulty, White House secretary in the Wilson regime, presided.

But Tumulty had little to do as presiding officer. First he presented Lawrence Wood Robert, secretary of the Democratic National Committee, who presented the guests at the head table. All received a round of applause, but the 1,300 diners gave a rising ovation to Secretary of State Cordell Hull, the only guest, beside the President, so honored.

Robert announced that 1,263 Victory Dinners were being held through the country, attended by an estimated throng of 515,000 Democrats—thus assuring elimination of the party deficit. Tumulty in a few words of praise presented Postmaster General James A. Farley, who in turn presented the President.

Lauds Party Victory.

Mr. Roosevelt, in commencing his speech, lost no time in lauding the victory of last November, except to point that his election resulted from the support of neither partisan nor sectional groups—but that he was the choice of an overwhelming majority of the people who wished to make modern democracy work.

He spoke at the outset of a "crisis" today "even more grave" than that which existed on March 4, 1933, and said he would discuss this current crisis last night, and again next Tuesday night and "thereafter, from time to time, as may be necessary."

He maintained that the present "tumult and shouting" came from "substantially the same elements of opposition" pitted against him in the election and that "this new roar is the best evidence i the world that we have begun to keep our promises that we have begun to move against conditions under which one-third of this Nation is ill-nourished, ill-clad, ill-housed."

Tells of Warning.

"We gave warning last November that we had only just begun to fight," the President declared. "Did some people really believe we did not mean it? Well—I meant it and you meant it, too."

The President pointed out that issue of slavery "took at least 40 years of argument, discussion and futile compromise before it came to a head in the tragic War Between the States."

"But economic freedom for the wage earner and the farmer and the small businessman will not wait, like emancipation, for 40 years," the President declared. "It will not wait four years. It will not wait at all."

Mr. Roosevelt referred briefly to the failures of democracy abroad to solve the problems of the people. He said that here democracy had not yet failed and "does not need to fail," adding "and we propose not to let it fail." Yet, he said, he was uncertain as to the future of American democracy under present circumstances.

He cited the undertakings of the New Deal as efforts to make democracy work in this country. The AAA, he said, "testified to our full faith and confidence that the very nature of our major crops makes them articles of commerce between the States," and further, that "the preservation of sound agriculture is essential to the general welfare."

Speaks of Congress.

The President held that Congress had "full constitutional authority to solve the national economic problems of the Nation's agriculture," and undertook to do so.

"You know who assumed the power to veto, and did veto that program," he added.

And further on the President declared that "the Democratic Administration and the Congress made a gallant, sincere effort to raise wages, to reduce hours, to abolish child labor, to eliminate unfair trade practices."

"What happened?

"You know who assumed the power to veto, and did veto, that program."

Thus in succession the President called the roll of New Deal enactments struck down by the Supreme Court, citing their purposes—the objectives for which he had promised to fight during the campaign and then the admonition that the party could not "run away from that fight on the advice of defeatist lawyers."

Cites Flood Control.

He devoted almost a full page of his manuscript in seeking to make it appear that the Administration was without power to deal with flood control, as well as with drought prevention and the generation of cheap electrical power.

He maintained that the language of the decisions already rendered and the widespread refusal to obey law "incited by the attitude of the courts, create doubts and difficulties for almost everything else for which we have promised to fight—help for the crippled, for the blind, for the mothers—insurance for the unemployed—security for the aged—protection of the consumer against monopoly and speculation—protection of the investor—the wiping out of slums—cheaper electricity for the homes and on the farms of America."

"You and I owe it to ourselves individually, as a party, and as a Nation to remove those doubts and difficulties," he declared.

In conclusion the President swung into that part of his speech in which he undertook to make the Supreme Court reorganization a party issue on which the future of the party—as well as that of the country—depended.

After citing that one-third of the Nation was "ill-nourished, ill-clad, ill housed," that thousands of farmers were wondering whether next year's prices would pay the mortgage interest, that "thousands upon thousands of children who should be in schools are working in mines and mills;" that "here are strikes more far reaching than we have ever known, costing millions of dollars—now" and that "spring floods are threatening to roll again down our river valleys—now"—after citing all these things the President said:

"If we would keep faith with those who had faith in us, if we would make democracy succeed, I say we muct act—now."

problem of the judiciary in particular.

I said to him:

"John, I want to tell you something that is very personal to me—something that you have a right to hear from my own lips. I have a great ambition in life."

My friend pricked up his ears.

I went on: "I am by no means satisfied with having twice been elected President of the United States by very large majorities. I have an even greater ambition."

By this time, my friend was sitting on the edge of his chair.

I continued: "John, my ambition relates to January 20, 1941." I could feel just what horrid thoughts my friend was thinking. So in order to relieve his anxiety, I went on to say:

Ambition for Nation.

"My great ambition on January 20, 1941, is to turn over this desk and chair in the White House to my successor, whoever he may be, with the assurance that I am at the same time turning over to him as President, a Nation intact, a Nation at peace, a Nation prosperous, a Nation clear in its knowledge of what powers it has to serve its own citizens, a Nation that is in a position to use those powers to the full in order to move forward steadily to meet the modern needs of humanity—a Nation which has thus proved that the democratic form and methods of national government can and will succeed.

"In these coming years I want to provide such assurance. I want to get the Nation as far along the road of progress as I can. I do not want to leave it to my successor in the condition in which Buchanan left it to Lincoln."

My friends, that ambition of mine for my successor can well be the serious ambition of every citizen who wants his United States to be handed down intact to his children and grand-children.

I spoke in the dead earnestness of anxiety, I speak to you tonight in the same earnestness. For no one who sees as a whole today's picture of this Nation and the world can help but feel concern for the future.

To the President of the United States there come every day thousands of messages of appeal, of protest, of information and advice, messages from rich and poor, from businessman and farmer, from factory employe and relief worker, messages from every corner of our wide domain.

Human Needs Urgent.

These messages reflect the most striking feature of the life of this generation—the feature which men who live mentally in another generation can least understand—the ever-accelerating speed with which social forces now gather headway.

The issue of slavery, for example, took at least 40 years—two generations—of argument, discussion and futile compromise, before it came to a head in the tragic War Between the States.

But economic freedom for the wage earner and the farmer and the small businessman will not wait, like emancipation, for 40 years. It will not wait for four years. It will not wait at all.

After the World War there arose everywhere insistent demands upon government that human needs be met. The unthinking, or those who dwell in the past, have tried to block them. The wise who live in the present have recognized their innate justice and irresistible pressure—and have sought to guide them.

In some countries, a royalist form of government failed to meet these demands—and fell. In other countries, a parliamentary form of government failed to meet these demands—and fell. In still other countries, governments have managed to hold on, but civil strife has flared and threats of upheaval persist.

Democracy in many lands has failed for the time being to meet human needs. People have become so fed up with futile debate and party bickerings over methods that they have been willing to surrender democratic processes and principles in order to get things done. They have forgotten the lessons of history that the ultimate failures of dictatorships cost humanity far more than any temporary failures of democracy.

In the United States democracy has not yet failed and does not need to fail. And we propose not to let it fail!

Nevertheless, I cannot tell you with complete candor that in these past few years democracy in the United States has fully succeeded. Nor can I tell you, under present circumstances, just where American democracy is headed nor just what it is permitted to do in order to insure its continued success and survival. I can only hope.

Three Horse Team.

For as yet there is no definite assurance that the three horse team of the American system of government will pull together. If three well-matched horses are put to the task of ploughing up a field where the going is heavy, and the team of three pull as one, the field will be ploughed. If one horse lies down in the traces or plunges off in another direction, the field will not be ploughed.

What you and I call the principles of the New Deal did not originate on March 4, 1933. We think of that date as their beginning, because it was not until then that the social demands they represented broke through the inertia of many years of failure to improve our political and economic processes.

What were those demands and needs? How far did we succeed in meeting them? What about them today?

Ever since the World War the farmers of America had been beating off ever-mounting disasters. This Administration tried to help them effectively where no other Administration had dared to take that risk.

The agricultural adjustment act testified to our full faith and confidence that the very nature of our major crops makes them articles of commerce between the States.

The AAA testified also to our full faith and confidence that the preservation of sound agriculture is essential to the general welfare—that the Congress of the United States had full constitutional authority to solve the national economic problems of the Nation's agriculture. By overwhelming votes, the Congress thought so too!

You know who assumed the power to veto, and did veto that program.

In the campaign of 1936, I said: "Of course we will continue our efforts in behalf of the farmers of America. With their continued co-operation we will do all in our power to end the piling up of huge surpluses which spelled ruinous prices for their crops. We will persist in successful action for better land use, for reforestation, for better marketing facilities for farm commodities, for a definite reduction of farm tenancy, for encouragement of farmer co-operatives, for crop insurance and a stable food supply. For all these things we have only just begun to fight."

Neither individually nor as a party can we postpone and run from that fight on advice of defeatist lawyers. But I defy anyone to read the majority opinion invalidating the AAA and tell us what we can do for agriculture in this session of the Congress with any reasonable certainty that what we do will not be nullified as unconstitutional.

Attempted Adjustments.

The farmers were not the only people in distress in 1932. There were millions of workers in industry and in commerce who had lost their jobs, and more millions whose jobs did not return them and their families enough to live on decently.

The Democratic Administration and the Congress made a gallant, sincere efforts to raise wages, to reduce hours, to abolish child labor, to eliminate unfair trade practices.

We tried to establish machinery to adjust the relations between the employer and employe.

And what happened?

You know who assumed the power to veto, and did veto that program.

The railroad retirement act, the national recovery act and the Guffey coal act were successively outlawed as the child labor statute had been outlawed 20 years before.

Soon thereafter the Nation was told by a judicial pronunciamento that although the Federal Government had thus been rendered powerless to touch the problem of hours and wages, the States were equally helpless; and that it pleased the "personal economic predilections" of a majority of the court that we live in a Nation where there is no legal power anywhere to deal with its most difficult practical problems—a No Man's Land of final futility.

Promises of 1936.

Furthermore, court injunctions have paralyzed the machinery which we created by the national labor relations act to settle disputes raging in the industrial field, and, indeed, to prevent them from ever arising. We hope that this act may yet escape final condemnation in the highest court. But so far the attitude and language of the courts in relation to many other laws have made the legality of this act also uncertain, and have encouraged corporations to defy rather than obey it.

In the campaign of 1936 you and I promised this to working men and women:

"Of course we will continue to seek to improve working conditions for the workers of America—to reduce hours overlong, to increase wages that spell starvation, to end the labor of children, to wipe out sweatshops. * * * We will provide useful work for the needy unemployed. For all these things we have only just begun to fight."

And here again we cannot afford, either individually or as a party, to postpone or run from that fight on advice of defeatist lawyers.

But I defy anyone to read the opinions concerning AAA, the railroad retirement act, the national recovery act, the Guffey coal act and the New York minimum wage law, and tell us exactly what, if anything, we can do for the industrial worker in this session of the Congress with any reasonable certainty that what we do will not be nullified as unconstitutional.

National Disasters.

During the course of the past four years the Nation has been overwhelmed by disasters of flood and drought.

Modern science knows how to protect our land and our people from the recurrence of such catastrophes, and knows how to produce as a by-product the blessing of cheaper electric power. With the Tennessee Valley Authority we made a beginning of that kind of protection on an intelligent regional basis. With only two of its nine projected dams completed there was no flood damage in the valley of the Tennessee this winter.

But how can we confidently complete the Tennessee Valley project or extend the idea to the Ohio and other valleys while the lowest courts have not hesitated to paralyze its operations by sweeping injunctions?

The Ohio River and the Dust Bowl are not conversant with the habits of the interstate commerce clause. But we shall never be safe in our lives, in our property or in the heritage of our soil until we have somehow made the interstate commerce clause conversant with the habits of the Ohio River and the Dust Bowl.

Flood Control Plans.

In the campaign of 1936, you and I and all who supported us did take cognizance of the Ohio River and the Dust Bowl. We said: "Of course we will continue our efforts * * * for drought and flood control * * *. For these things we have only just begun to fight."

Here, too, we cannot afford, either individually or as a party, to postpone or run away from that fight on advice of defeatist lawyers. Let them try that advice on sweating men piling sandbags on the levees at Cairo.

But I defy anyone to read the opinions in the TVA case, the Duke Power case and the AAA case and tell us exactly what we can do as a National Government in this session of the Congress to control flood and drought and generate cheap power with any reasonable certainty that what we do will not be nullified as unconstitutional.

The language of the decisions already rendered and the widespread refusal to obey law incited by the attitude of the courts, create doubts and difficulties for almost everything else for which we have promised to fight—help for the crippled, for the blind, for the mothers—insurance for the unemployed—security for the aged—protection of the consumer against monopoly and speculation—protection of the investor—the wiping out of slums—cheaper electricity for the homes and on the farms of America. You and I owe it to ourselves individually, as a party, and as a Nation to remove those doubts and difficulties.

Time Essence of Fight.

In this fight, as the lawyers themselves say, time is of the essence. In three elections during the past five years great majorities have approved what we are trying to do. To me, and I am sure to you, those majorities mean that the people themselves realize the increasing urgency that we meet their needs now. Every delay creates risks of intervening events which make more and more difficult an intelligent, speedy and democratic solution of our difficulties.

As Chief Executive and as the head of the Democratic Party, I am unwilling to take those risks—to the country and to the party—postponing one moment beyond absolute necessity the time when we can free from legal doubt those policies which offer a progressive solution of our problems.

Floods and droughts and agricultural surpluses, strikes and industrial confusion and disorder, cannot be handled forever on a catch-as-catch-can basis.

Urges Party Courage.

I have another ambition—not so great an ambition as that which I have for the country, but an ambition which as a life-long Democrat, I do not believe unworthy. It is an ambition for the Democratic Party.

The party, and its associates, have had the imagination to perceive essential unity below the surface of apparent diversity. We can, therefore, long remain a natural rallying point for the co-operative effort of all of those who truly believe in political and economic democracy.

It will take courage to let our minds be bold and find the ways to meet the needs of the Nation. But for our party, now as always, the counsel of courage is the counsel of wisdom.

If we do not have the courage to lead the American people where they want to go, someone else will.

Here is one-third of a Nation ill-nourished, ill-clad ill-housed—NOW!

Here are thousands upon thousands of children who should be at school, working in mines and mills—NOW!

If we would keep faith with those who had faith in us, if we would make democracy succeed, I say we must act—NOW!

Britain Faces Labor Trouble In Rearmament

London, March 4.—Labor unrest and reports of sabotage cast shadows over Great Britain's greatest peacetime armament program today.

The nation, digging deep into its resources to perfect an all-inclusive defense plan, faced three developments:

1. The army estimated its 1937 expenditure would be $410,870,000. This was added to the navy's estimate of $525,325,000 for a huge construction program. Estimates for the air force have not been announced.

2. Labor leaders were reported ready to take advantage of the industrial boom accompanying the program with demands for a five-day week and higher pay. A strike hit the Derby Rolls Royce Aircraft engine plant.

3. A secret service investigation of conditions at several aircraft factories was started, following reports of apparent sabotage at one plant.

More than half of the 7,000 workers at the Rolls Royce plant were idle in what some believed might be the first of a wave of strikes. The plant is one of the main units of the Royal Air Force expansion scheme, supplying new motors for planes ordered under the defense measure.

Labor's definite plans for pressing demands were not known, but union members have been discussing them actively.

Menu Shows Meal Given Democrats At $100 a Plate

Some 1,300 high ranking Federal officials and other Democrats last night paid $100 each—some brought their wives, but not many—for a seat at the Democratic Victory Dinner at the Mayflower Hotel.

Aside from hearing the President's speech and receiving an ornamental printed program containing their names in the guest list, here is what they got for the $100 in the way of a menu:

Diamond back terrapin soup au madere
Croute au chaud farci
Celery Mixed olives pecans
Amontillado sherry

Court Plan Backed In Dinner Talks

administrator, at Newark, N. J.: "There is no great doubt the * * * proposal in practically its original form will be enacted * * * when that change is made, the obstructed purpose of the people of the United States in three overwhelming elections will be realized."

Senator Pope (Democrat), Idaho, at Milwaukee: "This is the last battleground. On its final outcome depends * * * demonstration that Democracy can grow and live and bring prosperity to its people in an ever changing world."

Senator Dieterich (Democrat), Illinois, at Buffalo, N. Y.: "Of course, we could appease our Republican brethren, if we should propose an act increasing the membership of the Supreme Court, and, by the same act, provide that the appointment of justices be postponed to such a time as a Republican President would be elected to office."

Senator Chavez (Democrat), New Mexico, at Staunton, Va.: "We as Democrats, irrespective of our stand on this issue (the Supreme Court), can pride ourselves that of all our statesmen who are attacking the proposal, none have doubted our great leader's sincerity."

2 Killed in Car-Train Crash

Belleville, Ontario, March 4 (Canadian Press).—Two men were killed and two others seriously injured when the car in which they were riding was struck today by a freight train. The dead are Bernard Herity, 22, driver of the car, and Henry Emmerson, 30, both of Moira.

Roosevelt to Leave For Georgia March 11

By the Associated Press.

White House officials said yesterday President Roosevelt had decided to leave for Warm Springs, Ga., March 11, one day later than originally planned.

They added he would be away two weeks and probably go direct to the Southern resort.

He has been invited to visit Columbia, S. C., and Macon, Augusta, Louisville and Milledgeville, Ga., en route to Warm Springs.

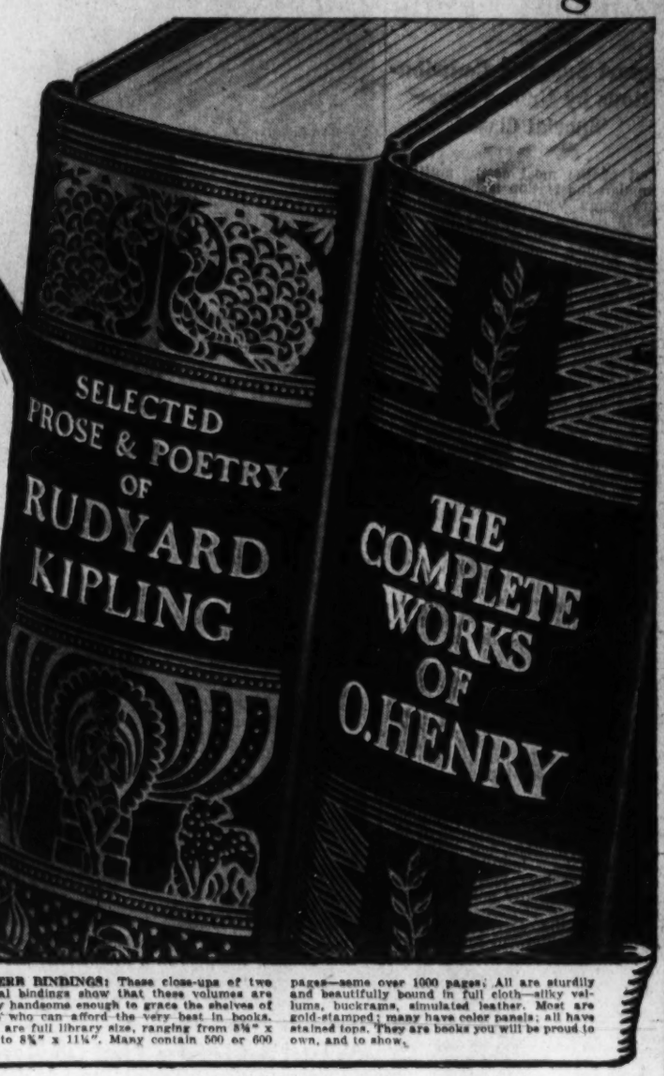
A Few at Higher Prices



SUPERB BINDINGS: These close-ups of two typical bindings show that these volumes are richly handsome enough to grace the shelves of those who can afford the very best in books. They are full library size, ranging from 8⅛" x 8¼" to 8⅝" x 11¼". Many contain 500 or 600 pages—some over 1000 pages. All are sturdily and beautifully bound in full cloth—silky vellums, buckrams, simulated leather. Most are gold-stamped; many have color panels; all have stained tops. They are books you will be proud to own, and to show.

These unusual book values are not publishers' left-over stocks—not books that did not sell. They are nation-wide best-sellers and De Luxe editions, whose popularity makes possible these new low-priced editions—selling at a fraction of their original prices.

These low prices are made possible because the publishers' original plates were used in printing them, authors agreed to take smaller royalties, an immense number of books were printed, effecting unusual economies.

Original editions of these books sold for from $2 to $5. Few were even priced as high as $17.50, $25 and $50.

1. SELECTED PROSE AND POETRY OF RUDYARD KIPLING—The authorized edition of the finest work of a man whose writings will be forever the treasured heritage of all English-speaking people. Senate Asked To End Labor Political Funds

Out of the most costly political campaign the Nation has ever seen there came yesterday suggestions from a Senate committee that the law forbid political donations by labor unions and other organizations seeking to further "group, class or special interests."

The committee, headed by Senator Augustine Lonergan (Democrat), of Connecticut, reported that the 1936 drive for votes cost the country probably about $48,000,000. Its report to the Senate accounted for expenditures of $23,973,329 by candidates and political organizations, and estimated that that much more had been spent by individuals and local organizations throughout the country who were not required to file reports.

Communist Votes Highest.

The Republican National Committee and its related organizations spent $14,198,202, which was an average of 85 cents for every vote cast for Alf M. Landon for President.

The corresponding Democratic organizations spent $9,228,406, an average of 33 cents per vote for Roosevelt.

For the Communist Party's votes the highest average was spent, $3.37 per vote, or a total of $270,489.40. The Socialist organization spent only $37,635.89, or 20 cents per vote, while William Lemke's Union Party averaged the lowest expenditure, $94,742.07, or 11 cents per ballot.

The report specifically referred to the "unprecedented" contributions by labor organizations which it reported at $770,324.35, not including donations by individual local unions to various local organizations such as county political committees.

Asserting the corrupt practices act makes it unlawful for corporations and nationa lbanks to make campaign contributions, the report favored amendment "so as likewise to prohibit contributions of like kind from all organizations, associations or enterprises, * * * whose aims or purposes are the furtherance of group, class or special interests."

Apply "Same Reasoning."

The committee pointed out that the ban on corporations' donations was placed to prevent "influencing legislation" in behalf of the special interest involved, and it said "the same reasoning applies" to labor and other similar organizations.

In this connection there was recalled by observers John L. Lewis' call for support of labor by President Roosevelt during the automobile strike, while he called attention to the support given the President in the election campaign.

Lewis' United Mine Workers and other unions affiliated with him in the Committee for Industrial Organization gave by far the greater part of the $770,324 contributed by labor to the Democratic campaign.

The committee favored a new act to prevent the influencing of voters through "fear, intimidation coercion," clarification of the franking laws plainly stating to what extent officials may have free use of the mails, and a "uniform system of accounting" for all national political organizations, to eliminate present "complexities" and "confusion."

Other interesting points in the report included:

More than one-third of all contributions were given by 3,240 persons who gave $500 or more each.

Replies by 2,000 of the big contributors showed that 63 per cent of them "were in some way affiliated with corporations."

The Du Ponts led all others in the size of family contributions, 12 of its members giving a total of $510,370.

S.S.S. TONIC

It costs over half a million more to make SURE—we could make Four Roses some other way—and save over half a million dollars every year.
But we won't. For it's the extra trouble and expense we go to that give Four Roses its greatness.
You see, we take not just one, but several superb American straight whiskies. Each of these whiskies has been distilled by the slow—and expensive—old-fashioned method. Each has some special quality.
Blended together the way we know how, these straight whiskies (and only straight whiskies go into Four Roses!) merge their separate virtues into one liquor with every whiskey virtue—Four Roses.

Firman Horner Funeral Awaits Son's Arrival

Capital Banking Leader Was Director of Numerous Corporations.

Funeral arrangements for Firman R. Horner, 74, vice president and director of the McLachlen Banking Corporation, who died Wednesday at his home, 1215 Monroe street northwest are being delayed pending the arrival of his son, Charles, from Los Angeles, Calif.

If the son arrives before tomorrow morning, the funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon, according to tentative plans. Should Charles Horner be delayed in reaching the city the services will be delayed until Monday.

Mr. Horner had been associated with the Banking Corporation for more than 46 years and was one of its original incorporators. He had been vice president since 1897. He was born in Burlington County, N. J., in December, 1862, and came to Washington at an early age.

In addition to his connections with the banking corporation, Mr. Horner was a director of the Ontario Apartment House Co., the Iowa Apartment House Co., the Brookland Building Association and the Washington Investment Co.

In addition to his son, Charles, Mr. Horner is survived by a daughter, Mrs. J. W. Cotter, of this city; two sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Swett, and Mrs. Lydia Humphries, both of Boston, and five grandchildren. Members of the Board of Directors of the McLachlen Banking Corporation will act as pallbearers.

John O'Keefe Rites Will Be Tomorrow

Funeral services for John O'Keefe, 76, formerly captain of the guard at the Department of Agriculture, who died Wednesday, will be held tomorrow at 9:30 o'clock in St. Gabriel's Church. Brief services will be held earlier at his home, 4842 Kansas avenue northwest. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Mr. O'Keefe, a native of Washington, at one time was engaged in the cattle and dairy business where Walter Reed Hospital now stands. Later he was in the grocery business in the 5300 block of Georgia avenue northwest. He retired from the Department of Agriculture five years ago.

A veteran of several Indian campaigns in the Midwest, Mr. O'Keefe was a member of the Indian Wars Veterans Association. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Bertha A. O'Keefe; a son, John O'Keefe, jr.; two daughters, Mrs. Mary T. Griffis and Mrs. Teresa Roache, and a sister, Mrs. Margaret Long, all of this city.

Retired Motorman Is Dead Here at 83

After 35 years with the street railway system, Wilding was retired about 13 years ago.

Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Jane E. Wilding; four sons, William G., Albert B., John F. and Louis Wilding; four daughters, Mrs. Julia Sampson, Mrs. Margaret Krause, Mrs. Jane Knowles and Mrs. Anna Tomlinson, all of Washington, and a brother, William Wilding. He also leaves 28 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at his residence, followed by burial in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Leo J. Flynn Dies; I. C. C. Bus Expert

Word was received here yesterday of the death in Dubuque, Iowa, of Leo J. Flynn, 58, whose studies as an examiner for the Interstate Commerce Commission laid the groundwork for Federal regulation of interstate bus and truck traffic.

Leaving Washington because of ill health, Flynn submitted his resignation to the commission in October, just 25 years after he had gone into the service as an examiner.

Funeral services for Flynn, who was unmarried, will be held in Dubuque today.

Col. James S. Parker Is Buried in Arlington

Final rites with full military honors were held in Arlington Cemetery yesterday for Col. James S. Parker, U. S. A., retired, who died February 27 at Carmel, Calif. Honorary pallbearers were Brig. Gens. Frank B. Watson, Charles R. Howland and Hamilton S. Hawkins, all retired; Col. Alexander M. Miller, Cavalry, and Cols. August C. Nissen and David S. Stanley, both retired.

Col. Parker was born in the District of Columbia on January 3, 1874. He was decorated for gallantry during the Philippine insurrection, and served in France during the World War and with the Army of Occupation in Germany. He was retired September 14, 1920.

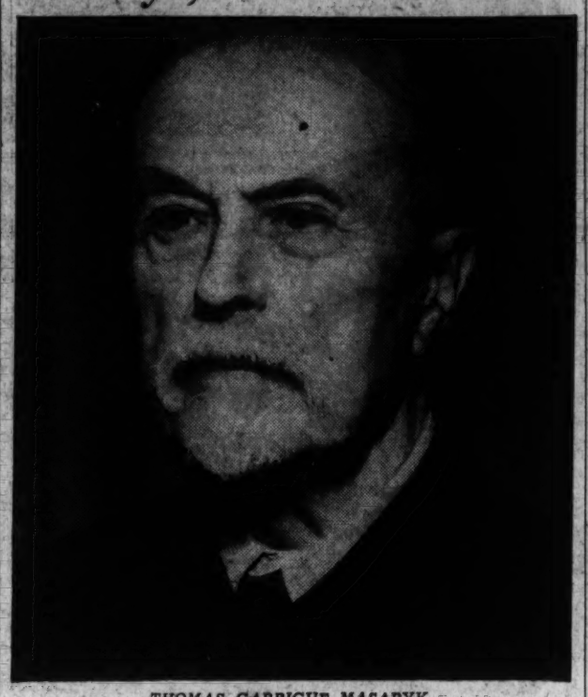
Czechs' 'President-Liberator,' Masaryk, Views United Nation



THOMAS GARRIGUE MASARYK.

Peasant Who Became 'George Washington' of Central Europe Finishes Span of 87 Years; Came to Washington in World War Days.

Life's shadows lengthened around peaceful Iana Castle yesterday as Czechoslovakia's "President-liberator," Thomas Garrigue Masaryk, looked back over the finished span of his 87 years.

There was much to console the aging patriot-philosopher, who rose from a peasant's hut to become the George Washington of central Europe. And there were many memories. But above all there was the country he created out of the inferno of the World War, a democracy of 15,000,000 souls he liberated from three centuries of Hapsburg rule.

"If I were asked to name him who, among living men, deserves the highest rank, I should say Masaryk, the Czech," once wrote Biographer Emil Indwig.

Triumph Came Late.

Triumph came to him late in life. For years he suffered hunger, privation, want. Austrian spies dogged his footsteps. His life was constantly in danger. But he held fast to his vision and weathered stormy battles for the independence of his fellow Czechs.

The World War gave Masaryk, then a national figure, the opportunity for the action he had so long awaited. He organized Czechs who were opposed to fighting for the Hapsburgs and, through secret agents sent to Russia, he arranged for their surrender in droves as they were sent out to combat the Czarist forces. These "captured" Czechs soon were fighting on the Russian side and their cry for independence rang out through the Carpathians.

Leaving his wife (an American girl, Charlotte Garrigue) and children in Prague, Masaryk went abroad to carry on the struggle against Austria. In Geneva he set up an agency for recruiting Czechs all over the world for the cause of Czech freedom.

Hounded by Spies.

The Central Government struck at him through his family. Wife and children were constantly hounded by Hapsburg spies. His property was seized and confiscated; his friends were arrested. His daughter Alice was sentenced to death and stood in the shadow of the firing squad.

Masaryk's untiring efforts bore fruit. Soon there were 30,000 Czechs in the Russian army, fighting against Austria. When the Bolshevik revolution led to the collapse of the Eastern front, Masaryk transferred his legions 5,000 miles across Siberian wastes to Vladivostok; from there to France.

Success crowned the patriot's cause in Paris when the Czechoslovakian National Council he organized was recognized by the Allies. Czech independence now officially was made part of the Allied objective in the war.

Wrote History.

Writing of this years later in his book, "The Making of a State," the president-liberator said:

"In the declaration of independence I rejected the Emperor Charles' belated effort to transform Austria into a sham federation, and outlined the fundamental principles on which the provisional government would build our new state. I submitted the first draft of it to a number of friends, among them Judge Brandeis and Mr. Ira Bennett, the editor of The Washington Post, whose criticism of substance and form were reviewed by a small committee which put the finishing legal and formal touches to it. Of this committee, Mr. Calffee, the well known legal authority, was a member. It was a good instance of harmonious co-operation and, at the same time, the first act of state on a grand scale to be accomplished under my leadership."

Two weeks later, as the ancient Hapsburg empire crumbled into ruin, a Czech national committee staged an almost bloodless coup d'etat. And to the country he had freed Masaryk returned as its first president.

Life's shadows are deepening now around Iana Castle. But the wise and brave man who lives there has had a full span of life. He served three times as president, resigning December, 1935, because of poor health. But a grateful country paid him homage, giving him the permanent title of "president-liberator," a substantial pension and the use of Iana Castle, his official residence, for the remainder of his life.

Humiston Rites Scheduled Today

Funeral services for William H. Humiston, 77, who died Wednesday at his home, 3206 Nineteenth street northwest, will be held at the residence this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mr. Humiston came to Washington from New Haven, Conn., and had been associated with the Arthur Burt & Co. shoe store for the past 42 years. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Laura Thornley Humiston. He was a member of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church.

Funeral Set Today For Jefferson Kin

Funeral services for Miss Cornelia Jefferson Taylor, great-great granddaughter of Thomas Jefferson, will be held today in Christ Episcopal Church, Charlottesville, Va., followed by burial in Monticello Cemetery, where Jefferson is buried.

Miss Taylor, who would have been 88 years old March 29, died Wednesday night at her home, 1709 Hoban road.

A resident of Washington for the last 17 years, Miss Taylor came here from the old family home at Lego, in Albemarle County (Va.), near Monticello, the historic Jefferson estate.

Her death followed an illness of about two months. She lived here with her nieces, Miss Margaret Randolph Taylor, a teacher at Western High School, and Miss Olivia Taylor, a teacher at Eastern High School.

Unicameral Bill Lost.

Boise, Idaho, March 4 (AP).—A proposed constitutional amendment for a one-house Legislature was defeated by the Idaho House today, 33 to 22.

Mrs. Cora Pattison Funeral Is Held

Funeral services for Mrs. Cora Alexander Pattison, who died Sunday at her home, 1501 Third street northwest, were held Tuesday afternoon at Gawler's funeral parlor.

Mrs. Pattison, widow of Terrel Pattison, was born in Noblesville, Ind., December 3, 1850, the daughter of Richard Conner, an early settler of that State. Connersville, Ind., bears the family name. Mrs. Conner came to Washington 38 years ago.

She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. E. D. Vincent of Los Angeles; Mrs. Clarence B. Miller, widow of Representative Miller, of Minnesota, and Miss Louise Pattison, with whom she made her home; a brother, Charles E. Conner, of Indianapolis and a sister, Mrs. Frank Heinbaugh, of Eagle Rock, Calif.

Burial was at Indianapolis Wednesday.

FOODS You Should Know

Unusual yet inexpensive foods that will add variety and interest to menus.

Citra Salad—What is it? Orange and grapefruit sections all ready to serve. Delicious in salads, the fruit cup or desserts. No peeling, no bother, just open and serve. 20 ounce can, 15c.

Pomorang—What is it? A delicious blend of Florida tree-ripened orange and grapefruit juice, extracted at the grove's edge. Makes a tart, delightful breakfast juice and mixes well with other juices. Serve thoroughly chilled. 18-ounce can, 10c.

Golden Nip Orange Juice—Canned orange juice may sound odd to you at first, but when you taste it and learn how remarkably close it is to fresh juice you'll use it often. Authorities tell us that all of the nutritive values of fresh juice are retained in the canned product. 18-ounce can, 18c.

Treesweet Lemon Juice—Use it wherever you would use fresh juice. You'll be real pleased with the results. Fine for punches, beverages, etc. The juice of eight average size lemons in a can. 7½-ounce can, 12c.

Silver Nip Grapefruit Juice—The real thing, tart and delicious. Pressed from tree-ripened Florida fruit. A wonderful breakfast juice. Be sure to chill thoroughly before serving. Sweetened or unsweetened. 18-ounce can, 3 for 25c.

Crosse & Blackwell Date and Nut Bread with Philadelphia Cream Cheese makes a delicious and unusual sandwich. Cut the bread thin and make a three-decker sandwich spread with cheese. Combination this week, both for 21c.

Canned Shrimp—Yes, you can serve shrimp cocktail at home just like the kind you get in the best restaurants. Make a sauce with Stokely's Chili Sauce and a dash of horseradish. Be sure to serve shrimp well chilled. Can, 15c.

Stokely's Tomato Puree—The handy little can with hundreds of uses. It's the strained pulp of Stokely's whole, ripe tomatoes—no seeds, no core, no skins. For sauces, soups, escalloped dishes, macaroni, noodles, rice, spaghetti, etc. When serving spaghetti, mix tomato puree with ground meat that has been browned in the skillet and use as a sauce. 11-ounce can, 5c.

Julany Canned Potatoes—Both sweet and Irish, all cooked, ready to heat and serve. The sweet potatoes are marvelously good, with a delicate texture, free from strings. The Irish potatoes are equally good when creamed, served with roasts or fried. Both are economical. Sweet Potatoes, 23-ounce can, 2 for 23c. Irish Potatoes, 19-ounce can, 3 for 25c.

Hunt's Red Raspberries—It's always berry time when you have Hunt's Berries on the pantry shelf. Delicious desserts, tempting cobblers, on cereal or simply served with cream are only a few of the ways Hunt's Berries may be enjoyed. No finer berries grow than Hunt's. 16-ounce can, 19c.

5c Candies and Gums—Three packages for two nickels. Your favorite Chewing Gum, Life Savers, Fruit Drops, Chocolate Bars and Candy Bars. A large assortment at 3 packages, 10c.

Silver Skillet Corned Beef Hash—A new product on our shelves and a delicious one. Contains more meat and less potatoes. Let us suggest serving it with poached egg and toast. 1 pound can, 15c.

Martel Boneless and Skinless Sardines—Big fellows—mild and delicious. Imported, packed in fine olive oil. Sardines of this quality usually sell for 8 to 10c a can more. Our price, 2 cans for 25c.

Kinney's Chinook Salmon—The aristocrat of salmon. Caught near the mouth of the icy Columbia River. Firm, vigorous, bright-colored delicately flavored, sweet and tender. Our low price, can, 25c.

B. & M. Baked Beans—The real, old-fashioned baked beans. Slow baked with a generous piece of pork to give it flavor. Packed in large 28-ounce cans. Moderately priced, 2 cans, 35c.

Gold Cup Pure Maple Sap Syrup—Not maple flavored but the real 100% Vermont maple syrup boiled down from genuine maple sap. Lovers of real maple syrup will be delighted to know that they can buy it in our stores at such reasonable prices . . . 8-ounce bottle, 19c; 16-ounce bottle, 35c.

Sanico 100% Whole Wheat Bread—There's a difference between many so-called whole wheat breads and 100% whole wheat. Sanico 100% is made from flour containing the whole grain (100% of it), nothing is substituted, nothing is taken away. When your physician prescribes whole wheat, make sure to get the real thing—use Sanico 100% whole wheat bread—loaf 10c.

Heinz Fresh Cucumber Pickles—The pickle hit of the gay 90s re-created by Heinz chefs from an old recipe. They are so crisp that they fairly "snap" when you bite into them. Our low price, 21c bottle.

Stokely's Tiny Green Lima Beans—The two tiny beans which nestle down in the corners of each pod. These immature beans are not old enough to even approach toughness. A delicious and tempting dish. 20-ounce can, 2 for 35c.

Le Sueur Petit Pois—French for "Tiny Peas from Le Sueur, Wisconsin." The smallest, tenderest peas known. They add a touch of luxury to a formal meal. 8-ounce can, 10c.

From Parents And Teachers.

No single factor puts advocates of the Red rider in a more untenable position than the attitude of the District's parent-teacher associations. These groups are far more concerned over the welfare of Washington school children than any members of Congress. And they express "full confidence in the judgment of the Board of Education in this matter."

If there were any ground to fear that communistic propaganda might be disseminated in the District schools, the parent-teacher associations would be the first to protest. They would not, of course, ask Congress to pass a silly law denying educational freedom in the Capital City. They would go straight to the Board of Education and demand the elimination of any and all subversive teachings.

When these groups re-affirm their confidence in the school authorities and call for repeal of the Red rider, the hullabaloo about communism in the local education system becomes even more ridiculous than it had previously appeared. Parents and teachers are fighting the Red rider chiefly to preserve a rational system of local control over the local schools. Indeed, that is the core of the argument against Mr. Blanton's brain child. If the House can be induced to accept a common-sense attitude toward it, there will be no question as to the success of the repeal bill now awaiting action in conference.

Not Necessarily Slow.

The search for alternatives to President Roosevelt's request for "new blood" in the Supreme Court is producing many interesting suggestions. In view of the Administration's fear that an amendment following the customary procedure would mean several years of delay for its social and economic legislation, current plans to facilitate the amendment process are especially significant.

Senator Wheeler's suggestion that Congress be permitted to override a decision of the Supreme Court by a two-thirds vote, after an intervening election, has received favorable comment from various sources. It doesn't satisfy the Administration, for a constitutional amendment by one of the two existing methods of procedure would be essential to make the new formula effective. If the time element is the President's only objection to submitting this vital question to the people, however, he may look with more favor upon a suggestion by A. Mitchell Palmer, Attorney General in Wilson's Cabinet. That plan has been revived by Roy L. Deal.

The Constitution provides two alternative ways of changing its provisions. Amendments approved by Congress become valid "when ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several States, or by conventions in three-fourths thereof, as the one or the other mode of ratification may be proposed by the Congress." Under the Palmer plan Congress would fix a date for ratifying conventions to be held in all the States and provide the machinery for the election of delegates to those conventions. In this way an amendment could be ratified within a few months after its proposal by Congress.

Of course, this procedure would be a sharp departure from precedent. The people are accustomed to thinking that the States themselves must ratify amendments. But Article V refers to conventions "in" and not "by" the States. Apparently the intention was to permit a direct decision by the people if Congress should consider that course desirable. Of course, when the calling of conventions is left to the State legislatures, the people in some States may never have an opportunity to vote directly upon proposed amendments.

The Supreme Court has decided, as Mr. Deal points out, that "the function of a State legislature in ratifying a proposed amendment to the Federal Constitution . . . is a Federal function, derived from the Federal Constitution; and it transcends any limitation sought to be imposed by the people of a State." Similarly a constitutional convention would be serving a Federal function and might reasonably be called into action by Federal law.

It is pointed out, moreover, that the Constitution was established by "the people of the United States" and not by the States. The large field of power not delegated to the Federal Government, nor prohibited to the States, is reserved by the tenth amendment "to the people" as well as to the States. In view of these provisions it would not appear unreasonable for Congress to provide for the election of convention delegates in the several States when it has a change in the basic law to propose.

Under this system the chief difficulty would be to prevent too hasty action. However, if the President is interested only in translating the will of the people into legislation, employment of such a direct weapon against constitutional impediments would certainly be preferable to a blow at the independence of the judiciary.

Autopsy On The Blue Eagle.

Gen. Johnson, of Blue Eagle fame, is emitting outraged shrieks over the post-mortem on the NRA conducted by the President's Committee on Industrial Analysis. That reaction on the part of the gallant general was to be expected and is of no great significance. What is important is the fact that the President has highly praised the critical report of his special committee in transmitting it to Congress. This should put a quietus upon rumors that a revival of the NRA in anything approximating its original form is contemplated.

The report thoroughly deserves Mr. Roosevelt's praise for "its admirable, well-balanced weighing of controversial issues." The judicial tone of the 240-page document is the more welcome because, as Gen. Johnson's reaction indicates, unprejudiced analysis of this experiment in industrial regulation has been rare. Friends and foes have been inclined either to claim too much for the NRA or to refuse to credit it with any accomplishment. In the report of the committee headed by Secretary Roper it is noticeable that every specific criticism is so phrased as to suggest a constructive means of utilizing the experience gained by past mistakes.

With refreshing frankness the report concedes that it is impossible to answer statistically the question whether the NRA did or did not contribute to industrial recovery, although it emphasizes the salutary effect of the experiment in encouraging morale and advancing progressive labor standards. Avoiding a barren controversial discussion of imponderables, the analysis deals with the reasons for the breakdown of the code system of regulation. Instead of interpreting the failure as a final defeat, an attempt is made to discover the causes of collapse and to suggest an alternative method of meeting problems that the NRA could not solve. The result is a plan for revision along lines similar to those which these columns have long advocated as feasible and desirable.

A fatal weakness of the NRA, as often noted here, grew out of the effort to cover a huge amount of ground and to operate at breakneck speed. The result was the incorporation of innumerable impracticable and unenforceable provisions in the industrial codes. Another handicap lay in the extension of these codes to industries that were not adequately organized and hence not in a position to co-operate in enforcement efforts.

The remedy for this situation lies, as the report suggests, in limiting the NRA experiment, if it should be repeated, to a few important industries and in emphasizing the value of self-regulation as an alternative to compulsory application of restrictive rules and regulations. Particularly important is the recommendation that the labor and trade practice provisions of any revised program should be separately administered. If that had been the method followed under the NRA, the codes would have been much more easily enforced.

Another serious defect of the NRA lay in the tendency to leave policies indefinite, while insisting upon a multiplicity of very rigid price and wage regulations. The Committee on Industrial Analysis rightly insists upon the importance of definite principles and policies, with flexibility in adapting specific requirements, concerning labor standards and trade practices, to the needs of a particular industry.

Many vexing problems, in no way disposed of by the collapse of the NRA, might be met by following this sound, common-sense advice to profit by mistakes and avoid in future what the report calls "a reckless extravagance of coercion that would bankrupt any system of social control."

An Overhauling Needed.

District residents can scarcely be expected to look with favor upon the proposal before the House sub-committee on District appropriations to eliminate the water-rate reductions in effect for the last three years. But if this move should lead to an overhauling of Washington's water system, it would prove a real service to the community.

In the past the water system has been self-supporting with the exception of major improvements financed out of general revenues. There is no reason why these expenditures as well as operating costs should not be apportioned among water users. Because of the large prospective deficit in the District's 1938 budget, and the numerous community projects for which funds are urgently needed, it is especially important that the water system accumulate a reserve of its own to meet heavy outlays anticipated during the next decade.

Engineer Commissioner Sultan believes the water department should be set up as a public utility. Presumably that would end the archaic division of control over the system between the District and the War Department, and result in a careful adjustment of rates so that all capital improvements of the system could be financed from its own revenues. Local taxpayers would thus be relieved of supplying funds for new reservoirs, aqueducts, etc.

One of the chief advantages of this plan is that it would require the Federal Government to pay for the water it uses, like any other consumer. The Jacobs committee found that the Government uses 16.5 per cent of the water consumed in Washington. If the District were reimbursed for this service, as recommended by the committee, $250,000 per year would be added to the water fund. That would be a substantial aid in building up the essential reserve.

It should be apparent to the House sub-committee that no mere restoration of water rates to the 1933 level will solve the problem. What is needed is a thorough reorganization of the entire system with the object not only of unifying the department and making it more self-supporting, but also of distributing the costs among all water users.

For A Mess Of Pottage.

In signing the neutrality act of 1935, on August 31 of that year, President Roosevelt took occasion to declare:

> It is a fact that no Congress and no executive can foresee all possible situations. History is filled with unforeseeable situations that call for some flexibility of action. It is conceivable that situations may arise in which the wholly inflexible provisions . . . of this act might have exactly the opposite effect from that which was intended. In other words, the inflexible provisions might drag us into war instead of keeping us out.

Those words were true then. They are even more true now. The present neutrality measure was utterly useless in the crisis brought about by the Spanish Civil War. The new legislation, if passed, will probably be equally useless, not to say positively dangerous, in the next unpredictable crisis. Skillful discretionary action by the Department of State kept us from being entangled in the Spanish situation. The chief object of the bill passed by the Senate Wednesday is to limit such executive discretion.

The pending bill is not, in fact, a neutrality bill at all. To his credit Senator Pittman has freely admitted as much. He prefers to have the pending legislation known in history as the "Peace Act of 1937." Senator Pittman also believes, or so he said in the debate, in "playing both ends against the middle." This the "Peace Act of 1937" would certainly accomplish. It is already serving to foster the greatest armament race in history while beguiling our incredibly gullible pacifists into a pitiable belief that somehow this will further disarmament. They will be wiser, and a whole lot sadder, when they see the next naval estimates.

We do not know the kind of a war into which the nations of the world may be plunged in some indefinite future. We cannot foresee who the participants will be; we cannot foretell their aims and purposes, nor how these will affect our own basic national interests. Right now Congress does not appear to care. But the present wave of blind defeatism and muddle-headed pacifism is certain sooner or later to spend itself. We shall then be presented with the sorry consequences of our present flight from from reality.

Should a European war break out in the near future it is clear that the "cash-and-carry" policy, which is writ large in the Pittman act, would work to the undoubted advantage of Great Britain and its allies. To many this is a circumstance in the Pittman bill's favor. But there is no telling how long the present balance of naval power will continue. Certainly the desire to secure access to invaluable American sources of supplies will intensify the existing race in armaments. And that race is now on.

By such neutrality legislation as the Senate has just approved the United States prepares, in return for the pipe dream of isolation, to abdicate all its influence and authority as a force contributing to the preservation of peace. We are giving potice to the world that we shall in effect ally ourselves to the most powerful and that henceforth we close our eyes to all moral issues. And in taking this incredible action we are gaining no real assurance of insulation from the wars of others.

If this legislation is enacted and another world war comes, the statute will break down. There is scarcely a chance that its cumbersome and complicated provisions will actually work in practice. But the injurious aspects of this misnamed neutrality policy do not wait upon that test.

He Faces Fame.

From the Topeka Journal.

Senator Byrd may not please the New Deal leaders in his contest against increasing Cabinet salaries to $20,000 a year and sub-Cabinet positions to $15,000 a year, but he is building up a Byrd consciousness which may be important both to him and the country in 1940. Frequent opportunities are going to occur for Senator Byrd, of Virginia, to emphasize his belief in old-fashioned economy in the public service.

Unless all Democrats of influence intend to surrender four years more to squandermania, then the opportunity is going to be invited to those brave spirits who desire to work back to the logical salvation of an era which may hope to collect enough from taxation to meet the running expenses of government.

In the normal and sensible meaning of things, there isn't a single argument in favor of increasing Cabinet salaries to $20,000 a year and their assistants to $15,000 a year. There isn't any shortage of Cabinet material. No Cabinet officers or Cabinet officers' assistants have joined the sit-down strike.

The War Posters.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The writer of the letter published in The Post of February 24, under caption "War Propaganda" and signed "Spectator," must be conscience-stricken. He says that through the whole World War he was a war correspondent and could quote not one but scores of cases of appalling ruthlessness and cruelty. I do not doubt that war is ruthless and cruel, but can he produce one actual photograph of any of these atrocious acts the German soldiers have been charged with?

I do not believe that the writer, who refuses his signature, is much concerned about the hatreds these pictures produce in his imagination.

I commend, and so will every truth-loving person, The Post for producing these pictures and hope it will continue to do so. No honest, intelligent person will consider these pictures German propaganda; on the contrary, it is obviously in the interest of our people to keep us out of the next war. Keep up the good work, all actual photographs as well as the fantastic drawings; let the people see Arlington and the cemeteries in France where our young men are buried as sacrifice to the god of war. Do not forget to keep before the minds and eyes of the people, in words and pictures, the destructive pecuniary sacrifice to this god and its consequences, notably our economic depression.

The Post is doing an invaluable service to the people. The truth in words and pictures will be a warning to them not to support another ambitious President who at the expense of the people wants to help his personal friends. Why did we enter this European war? Was it really to save democracy, civilization and Christianity? De Tocqueville in his book "Democracy in America," volume 11, page 282, says: "All those who seek to destroy the liberties of a democratic nation ought to know that war is the surest and the shortest means to accomplish it. This is the first axiom of the science." He is absolutely correct. I am sorry space does not permit to lay the proof before you. B. M. SEIBOLD.

Lanham, Md., March 2.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Congratulations on the reproductions of war cartoons that you are running in the rotogravure section! I think you chose the right time for them, now that war scares and propaganda are becoming so common.

Perhaps seeing how the same old tricks have been used before will make people a little less positive of which countries they should hate and which they should love. At least, you are making an attempt, and I think you're due a vote of thanks. Keep up the good work. CHAD WALSH.

University, Va., March 1.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Congratulations! The war propaganda cartoons which you are now running in the rotogravure section are an antitoxin for similar posters and falsehoods which may soon be invading our country.

If an anti-war lecturer tells us what we did during the last war, the story seems exaggerated. Surely, we think, we were not as gullible as all that! Your pictures, with the memories which they bring back, are evidence much harder to deny. Those who see them must confess, "Lord, what fools we were!" NIGEL AKERMAN.

Child Labor.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The proponents of the child labor amendment to the Constitution would like to have the public believe that all those who oppose that measure desire to exploit children in industry. This is not so. Many people oppose the proposed legislation because they think it unwise to force young people to remain in idleness during the formative period of their lives, viz, between 14 and 18.

During that period of my life I sold papers. Many a day during the summer I walked four or five miles out into the country, picked two water buckets full of blackberries, toted them back to town and sold them for 6 cents a quart. I did not acquire very much money, but I acquired what was much more valuable—the knowledge that I could earn money by my own efforts.

Someone asked an old captain of industry if he did not regret his lack of a college education. He replied, "Hell, no, I can hire all the college-bred men I want for $75 a month." I do not decry education. It is going to be increasingly important, but to give a youth education at the expense of initiative is not doing him any favor.

If Congress could be trusted not to let the pendulum swing too far, the proposed legislation might be tolerated. There is nothing to encourage us in the belief that Congress will not listen to the extremists, and the very fact that the proponents of the legislation intend to treat persons 18 years of age as children, is proof upon the face of it that they will go to extremes. The age limit should not be above 16. OLD FASHIONED.

Defense of Pedestrians.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Each time that Washington finds itself in the throes of one of its spasmodic traffic safety campaigns, I am constrained to express my views in defense of the much-maligned pedestrian, who is held up as the principal cause of the city's ever-mounting traffic fatality record.

If the pedestrian prefers to cross the street in the middle of the block, rather than use the crosswalks, and thus causes the majority of traffic accidents, there must be some reason for his action, and it seems to me that the reason is not hard to find. The plain and simple truth is that the pedestrian thinks, whether rightly or wrongly, that it is safer to cross in the middle of the block, than to cross at the crosswalks under the doubtful protection of a traffic signal. For the fact remains that Washington's traffic signal system is designed primarily for the protection and expedition of vehicular traffic with but very little consideration to the pedestrian. G. B. Todd Duncan's Voice.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I was in Los Angeles the earlier part of last month and in a party of music-lovers and writers attended the all-Gershwin program in the Los Angeles Philharmonic Auditorium. Appearing with Mr. Gershwin was the male lead of his "Porgy and Bess" libretto, Mr. Todd Duncan.

I was amazed to learn he is a Washingtonian and a Howard University instructor. His voice was a thing of great beauty that night and I do believe both white and colored citizens of his home town should be justifiably proud of Duncan. His inspired performance was accorded unbounded admiration, which my wife and I joined with sincere pleasure. He is indeed a fine artist.

Later, I talked with Mr. Gershwin and learned that he, himself, has invited Duncan to return to the Coast this summer regardless whether "Porgy" will be revived or not.

Washington as a center of culture for people, regardless of race, is a splendid expressive nucleus. CAPT. V. C. KETCHELL.

"One Thing Proved."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: All the heated controversy about the Supreme Court has proved one thing in the interests of science: You don't have to be 70 or over to be cracked in the cog-case.

You can qualify if you're a super-fervent New Deal statesman or member of Congress of middle years afflicted with acute changeitis or yesism of the larynx, to prove that years have nothing to do with the inroads of senility. J. WINSTEAD.

Prisons And Rehabilitation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Recently I saw published by reliable authority the following figures: 3,000 kidnapings, 12,000 murders, 100,000 assaults, 50,000 holdups, 40,000 burglaries and many lesser crimes not recorded.

These offenders averaging about 18 years old are many of them first offenders. All are sent to prisons, reformatories, etc. What happens next? After serving their sentences they are discharged to prey on society again. Do they make their exits as rehabilitated in any way? No, they come out more sophisticated and far more crime-wise. A first offender is doomed to continue in crime. This brings up the question of whether prisons are instituted for revenge or for a chance for reform.

Without some process of rehabilitation crime increases and will continue to do so. Perhaps it would be wise for the public to take more interest in what is going on in prisons. Some prisons are under political domination with ensuing scandals. Protests could be made to legislators to improve conditions with a view of inaugurating modern methods. Note the harmful results of idleness, overcrowding, unsanitary conditions, brutality, to say nothing of the existence in some Southern States of cage-wagons housing chain gangs. In three wagons flaps are let down according to the weather. A prison should exist to build character and not break character. Some prisons are attempting this with a degree of success.

Public sentiment has been sufficiently aroused to have had the Department of Justice created to track down criminals, and in this it has brilliantly succeeded. Why not match this organization with one for crime prevention. Truly it is a penny wise and pound foolish practice to permit a prison system to increase crime rather than to check it. ISABEL VICKERS.

The Good New Times.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is quite as bad to be ahead of the times as behind. It always brings forth scathing criticism. Can you not recall how we laughed at the men who drove the first auto? The President is away ahead of his time. His 20 years in political life and study has sent him beyond the men in Congress today. The "good old times" and rugged individualism are things of the past. And they who still cling to them are riding in a caboose at the end of a long train, and will wake to find their car shunted off on a siding and forgotten.

We cannot bring back the past, and no one truly wants to. It is appealing to the latent ego in each of us when we claim we want it. Other days, other ways "Wake up and live." EX-REPUBLICAN.

Cattle And Charwomen.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Big businessmen, their wives, families, servants and chauffeurs are sending letters to their Senators and Congressmen against the Supreme Court change. It is the duty of every friend of the President to write his Senator and Congressmen to favor this program which will benefit the masses.

Laws are passed to promote the health of cattle, hogs and sheep which are never questioned, but when New York State passed a law beneficial for children and charwomen, the Supreme Court declared that law unconstitutional. JOHN RIGGLES.

Washington Housing.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Must Congress wait for "rent riots" before it does something about the housing condition in the Nation's Capital?

Last year Congress did seem to recognize the problem and might have passed the Ellenbogen rent control bill had it not been for Mr. Thomas Blanton, of Texas. Mr. Blanton has been fortunately retired this year by his constituents; what is Congress waiting for now? SUBSCRIBER.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

Sidestepping.

MAX SCHMELING returns to this country to insist on a fight with Jimmy Braddock for the heavyweight championship, and his friends, the New York Nazis, as well as some Americans, are demanding sportsmanship on his behalf. Personally, Schmeling is in no position to critize Braddock for postponing him until after the proposed fight with Joe Louis in Chicago, because that is precisely what Schmeling did to Jack Sharkey several years ago.

Those who were not present may refer to the files to confirm the fact that Sharkey was more than Schmeling could handle in the fight, where the German won the title sitting down as the result of a low foul. Sharkey had punched him almost at will, and Schmeling had landed only one effective blow up to the time of the foul.

Max was a little surprised to learn that he had won and seemed not to understand at first, for he started to come out of his corner for the next round with his hands up and obviously not disabled, when his manager, Joe Jacobs, pushed him back.

There was wild confusion all around the ring, and again you may refer to the files to confirm the fact that the American press and public gave Schmeling a perfectly fair deal. Sharkey was freely denounced for fouling.

• • • •

The championship was not properly at stake that night, but had been put in there by Jim Farley as a political favor to the prize fight division of the manifold Hearst interests, which were running the production, to swell the gate receipts. This favor gave a financial advantage to Schmeling as well, because it swelled his purse and, as it turned out, left him in possession of the championship—an asset whose estimated value at the time was $500,000 or more.

In view of the fact that Sharkey was master of the fight up to the instant of the foul he was generally recognized as the legitimate challenger for Schmeling's next fight. Schmeling himself acknowledged this, and the New York commission, having put Schmeling in the way of the championship, called on him to meet Sharkey again.

Instead, however, Schmeling selected Willie Stribling, who had been whipped by Sharkey and whose pulling-and-hauling style of work, unsupported by any punch, presented an easier problem. So, to escape the jurisdiction of the New York commission, Schmeling went to Cleveland to fight Stribling, and knocked him out. He thus picked up an extra purse before his return bout with the man who had handled him so roughly the first time.

So, in the matter of sportsmanship, to say nothing of the matter of gratitude to the commission, which had put the title in the ring by dictatorial order, Schmeling's record presents an almost exact precedent for the course which he now denounces in Braddock's case.

Obviously, Schmeling, having beaten Joe Louis, is more dangerous than Louis. So Braddock wants to fight Louis first for the same reasons that Schmeling fought Stribling out of turn. Braddock, a poor man who was on relief a few years ago, wants to make a little money out of the title, and, like Schmeling in Cleveland, reckons that his superior know-how will bring him through all right to meet Schmeling later for another good purse.

• • • •

According to the ethics, if any, of the prize fight business, that is all right. Jack Dempsey evaded Harry Wills for various reasons, not including fear, and Gene Tunney in his early days, as American light heavyweight champion, sidestepped Tommy Gibbons with the frank explanation that he wasn't ready for him yet. In other words, Gibbons was too smart, but almost over the hill, whereas Gene was still learning and almost at his physical peak. So Tunney postponed Tommy until he was ready and Gibbons was a little overripe. Gene then beat him easily.

The American public, to whom Schmeling and the Nazis now appeal for a rather special type of sportsmanship, did not censure Schmeling for avoiding Sharkey, but acepted that course as the customary, if not the honest and sporting, thing to do.

The injection of politics into sport is none of this country's doing. The Nazis injected political and military display into the Olympic games at Garmisch and Berlin in violation of their oath and that which they call their honor.

Nazism, having consistently placed itself beyond the pale, has no legitimate appeal to sportsmanship.

Woman's Work.

The question has been asked, and hotly debated, whether a woman can make a home at the same time that she is earning wages outside the home. Without venturing an opinion as to whether she can do the two things as well as she might do either one of them alone, we may point out that in more than 3,000,000 cases in this country she is doing both of them.

A recent report by the Women's Bureau in Washington shows that more than a third of the 11,000,000 employed women in the United for homemaking in their families, as well as holding paid jobs.

More Reader Reactions To The Supreme Court Proposal

CatholicDoctor Says Roosevelt Reform Is Best

Ryan Calls Reorganization 'More Realistic' Than Amendment.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The President's proposal for reorganizing the Supreme Court is a more logical and more realistic way of meeting the present emergency than would be a constitutional amendment. It is more logical because it would deal directly and specifically with the existing evil; that is, the faulty interpretation of the Constitution by the Supreme Court.

The three recent decisions of the court which have been most severly criticized—and rightly—are those which killed the AAA, the Guffey coal act and the New York minimum wage law. In the first of these cases, six of the justices of the Supreme Court unduly restricted the "general welfare" clause of the Constitution; in the Guffey case, the same six justices utilized the distinction between transactions which "directly" and transactions which "indirectly" affect interstate commerce; in the New York minimum wage case, five justices read into the due process clause a theory of freedom of contract which is not in the Constitution and which the court first brought forward, in Lochner vs. New York less than 35 years ago. The distinction between "directly" and "indirectly" affecting interstate commerce is not found in the Constitution; apparently it first appeared in the records of the court about a quarter of a century ago.

What is specifically needed to validate the economic legislation that is now imperative is another and different interpretation which will restore to these three clauses their proper scope and power. "Back to the Constitution."

The amendment method is unrealistic. There is first, the difficulty of drafting. A formulation that would say neither too little nor too much and yet would give Congress power to fix minimum wages and maximum hours and to pass adequate legislation for agriculture, collective bargaining and the manufacture and sale of electric current, is extremely unlikely to command the assent of two-thirds of the members of the Senate and of the House of Representatives. Even if the draft of such an amendment should be adopted by Congress, it would not attain the goal of ratification for many years. Recall that ratification can be prevented by 13 States. Maine and Vermont would refuse on general principles. At least half a dozen Southern States would fail to ratify because they do not want minimum wage and maximum hour legislation, and it is a safe prediction that at least five other States would not be reconciled to the amendment.

Men who point to the short time that was required for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and to the relatively short average time required for the ratification of all the amendments that have been added to the Constitution, are quite unrealistic. None of those already adopted had to encounter the formidable resistence that would be offered to the suggested amendment by all the devotees of States' rights and all the supporters of plutocracy. In Passing, it should be noted that the loudest advocates of the amendment method would not support it when the time came for voting.

The real alternative to the President's proposal is a continuation of Congress' impotence to enact laws which are necessary to prevent a chronic unemployment roll of six or seven millions. Will the American people be satisfied with this alternative? I do not think so. At any rate, I hope not.

JOHN A. RYAN.

'Uphold The Constitution.'

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Senators and Representatives uphold the Constitution.

Let there be no forced increase of the Supreme Court. Fifteen judges will not expedite business any quicker than nine judges. The advanced age of the present judges does not incapacitate them. They need not resign.

If there must be a change in the Supreme Court, let it be done by the vote of the people, as provided by the Constitution.

JOHN AUSTIN.
Washington, March 1.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the current discussion of the President's proposals for judicial reform, mention is frequently made of the decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Marbury vs. Madison, decided in 1803, in which that Court for the first time held an act of Congress to be unconstitutional.

This was not the first case in which a court had invalidated an act of Congress. A United States Circuit Court had previously declined to be bound by an act which sought to require the Federal courts to act as pension offices. Congress accepted the decision and changed the law. But Marbury vs. Madison was the first case in which a question of constitutionality was raised in the Supreme Court.

D. W. G.
Washintgon, Feb. 28.

Certainly all those who have framed written constitutions contemplate them as forming the fundamental and paramount law of the nation, and consequently the theory of every such government must be that an act of the legislature repugnant to the constitution is void.

This theory is essentially attached to a written constitution and is consequently to be considered by this Court as one of the fundamental principles of our society. It is not, therefore, to be lost sight of in the further consideration of this subject.

If an act of the legislature repugnant to the Constitution is void, does it, notwithstanding its invalidity, bind the courts and oblige them to give it effect? Or, in other words, though it be not a law, does it constitute a rule as operative as if it was a law? This would be to overthrow in fact what was established in theory and would seem at first view an absurdity too gross to be insisted upon. It shall, however, receive a more attentive consideration.

It is emphatically the province and duty of the judicial department to say what the law is. Those who apply the rule to particular cases must of necessity expound and interpret that rule. If two laws conflict with each other, the courts must decide on the operation of each.

So if a law be in opposition to the Constitution; if both the law and the Constitution apply to a particular case so that the Court must either decide that case conformably to the law, disregarding the Constitution; or conformably to the Constitution, disregarding the law; the Court must determine which of these conflicting rules governs the case. This is of the very essence of judicial duty.

If then the courts are to regard the Constitution and the Constitution is superior to any ordinary act of the legislature, the Constitution and not such ordinary act must govern the case to which they both apply.

Those then who controvert the principle that the Constitution is to be considered in court as a paramount law are reduced to the necessity of maintaining that courts must close their eyes on the Constitution and see only the law.

This doctrine would subvert the very foundation of all written constitutions. It would declare that an act which, according to the principles and theory of our Government, is entirely void, is yet in practice completely obligatory. It would declare that if the legislature shall do what is completely forbidden, such act, notwithstanding the express prohibtion, is in reality effectual. It would be giving to the legislature a practical and real omnipotence with the same breath which professes to restrict their powers within narrow limits. It is prescribing limits and declaring that those limits may be passed at pleasure.

That thus it reduces to nothing what we have regarded the greatest improvement on political institutions would of itself be sufficient in America, where written constitutions have been viewed with so much reverence, for rejecting the construction. But the peculiar expressions of the Constitution of the United States furnish additional arguments in favor of its rejection.

The judicial power of the United States is extended to all cases arising under the Constitution.

Could it be the intention of those who gave this power to say that in using it the Constitution should not be looked into? That a case arising under the Constitution should be decided without examining the instrument under which it arises?

This is too extravagant to be maintained.

Professor Adds Alternate Ways To Solve Issue

Herbert Wright Redeclares Opposition To Heart Of Proposal.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Although the news report of my views with regard to President Roosevelt's proposal for the reorganization of the judiciary, in The Post for Washington's Birthday, properly stated that I centered my criticism "solely on that part of the President's proposal which would give him authority to name six new members of the Supreme Court," some of my friends have suggested that the average reader, taking his cue from the heading, would believe that I am opposed to the entire program of the President on this matter.

In the statement of "The Tower" upon which the news report was based, I maintained that, "No one can reasonably oppose the elimination of congestion, if there be any, nor the 'systematic addition of new blood' in the manner at present prescribed by law, nor the 'temporary transfer of circuit and district judges' to speed up the work of the courts, if it be necessary, nor practiced assistance to the Supreme Court in the supervision of business in the lower courts, nor the elimination of delays in the determination of constitutional questions."

All of these, you will recall, were stated by the President in his message to be the purpose of his proposal. My opposition was, as you stated, solely to the cardinal feature of the bill accompanying his message, namely the authorization to increase the number of judges from nine to fifteen, "which," as I said, "No matter how desirable its ultimate objective and no matter how benevolent the actual President may be, should receive the disapproval of all thinking men, if the fundamental structure of Government is to be maintained."

I have also been criticized by my friends for offering destructive rather than constructive suggestions for the solution of the critical issue which confronts us. I believe that this issue can be met in the followings ways:

1. By more careful drafting of legislation, with the idea of bringing the proposed legislation into harmony with the powers delegated to the Congress by the Constitution.

2. By providing for a prompter reference to the Supreme Court of all cases in which the constitutionality of an act of Congress is challenged.

3. By providing for the voluntary retirement, on full pay, of justices over 70 after ten years' service. This point is covered by the act just passed by Congress.

4. By the submission and prompt ratification of an amendment or amendments to the Constitution extending the powers of Congress to cover matters upon which legislation is desirable. I thoroughly agree with Dr. John A. Ryan that it will be difficult to draft an amendment which would be sufficiently broad, but not too broad, and sufficiently narrow, but not too narrow. But I do not believe this difficulty is insuperable.

The National Lawyers' Guild.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is opportune to advise the callow guild youths to stop, look and listen; to study history and the biographies of the illustrious Americans who have made history; also great State papers including the Constitution of the United States. After so doing, solemn meditation should be indulged in and methinks the fractious and recalcitrant members of the newborn guild when comparing the American form of Government with its constitutional safeguards with others of the world will decide that ours is the greatest of all.

It goes without saying that some of the young members of the guild may, after years of additional hard study and practical legal experience, be able to focus their legal lenses as correctly as have members of the United States Supreme Court according to its brilliant record throughout the years. Meantime, "a little learning is a dangerous thing," should be heeded.

JURISPRUDENCE.

Writers Disagreed On Intent Of President In Urging Bill

The Dome Of Justice.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Some old saws have a habit of periodic recurrence, such as "History repeats itself" and "There is nothing new under the sun."

Well, after 3,000 years or so, we are witnessing the similitude of a world-remembered tragedy in ancient Greece. Colley Cibber refers to it in the first scene, act 3, of his drama "Richard III," when he recalls the destruction of Diana's Temple at Ephesus, "Sacred Diana of the Ephesians." The lines run as follows:

The aspiring youth who fired the Ephesian Dome,
Outlived in fame the pious fool that raised it.

Fortunately for the United States of America, the Dome of Justice still stands in spite of all the adolescent plots and plotters, big, little or "aspiring." The situation is brought again to the attention and to the faith of this Nation and of the world that the men who framed the Constitution were not "pious fools" but far-seeing statesmen, patriots and builders of mankind's higher civilization when they formulated that instrument which for 170 years has been the protection of our liberties.

ROWLAND B. MAHANY.
Washington, March 1.

'People Are Awakening.'

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Democratic Party now has an excellent opportunity to regain their title and go down in history for American ideals, if they will refuse to follow a leader, who is "playing ball" with socialism, communism.

The thinking people of our land are awakening and are familiar with the motives of the Chief Executive who is now so determined to force the Supreme Court legislation against their will. It is characteristic of "human power plants" to expand. This is well illustrated in foreign countries, where the people permit themselves to be ruled by an iron hand.

ROBERT N. CARSON.
Davenport, Iowa, Feb. 27.

No Constitutional Challenge.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Inherent in the criticism directed at the President's court reform program is the assumption that the Supreme Court is an infallible tribunal. This is the pith of the issue created by the President's judicial proposals and the opposition which has challenged them. The assumption of judicial infallibility is but a survival of the old monarchical notion that the "king can do no wrong."

But if it be conceded that the court is susceptible to error and has made grave errors in the past, in the interpretation of the fundamental law, then there is no reason why it should not be subject to reform the same as any other branch of the Government.

A survey of its decisions for the past quarter of a century will disclose that the Supreme Court, in numerous cases, in order to reach its conclusions, has disregarded the plain language of the historic document and its reasonable implications. In other words, it has revised and rewritten the Constitution to attune it to the individual and economic philosophies of its members.

What the President has proposed is to "infuse new blood" into the membership of the court so that the Constitution may be interpreted or construed in the light of its plain language and fair implications. No well-informed person has challenged the constitutionality of the President's judicial program. What he has proposed has been done before and no one has successfully challenged the constitutionality of these prior changes in the membership of the court.

PAUL JONES.
New York City, Feb. 24.

'No Refuge To Flee To.'

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When the Constitution was framed, its framers purposely created three branches of government—the legislative, the judiciary and the executive—giving each separate powers, depriving the Executive of supreme veto power over the acts of Congress, and making the Supreme Court the final arbitrator of disputes and the interpreter of the meaning of the law in harmony with the provisions of the Constitution. The very spirit, soul and essence of the Constitution sustains the Supreme Court as the interpreter of all law in the light of the Constitution.

If Congress can pass any law it desires irrespective of the inhibitions of the Constitution and the checks of a Supreme Court, the people will have no refuge to flee to for the protection of their inalienable right, and their blood-bought heritage of civil and religious liberty is doomed.

C. S. LONGACRE.

"The Cruel Partner."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: We all remember about the man who invented a cruel partner who wouldn't let him be as kindly in his dealings as he wanted to be. Isn't it something like that in our Government, only the cruel partner is already invented so that there is no deception about letting him take the blame?

The legislative branch can now say, "Give the people everything they want." The Executive can reply, "O. K., that's what we are going to do, all to be charged to their account," and goes ahead to do it. At this point, the judiciary steps in and begins to pick flaws in these simple promises and forbids or cripples the activities that might follow some of them, acting as provided for by the Constitution.

In this manner, a grateful feeling toward the kindly Government is kept alive among the many millions of citizens, except perhaps for the judiciary which doesn't talk over the air and consequently is ordinarily almost lost sight of by the voters.

On the whole, looking toward the welfare of the future as well as to the immediate present, isn't it best for almost everybody concerned to keep the cruel partner, just as he is?

The President's Mandate.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I helped roll up that much-quoted popular mandate for Mr. Roosevelt in November. There seems to be some confusion as to just what sort of mandate it was. Obviously, it was a mandate to do the things he said he would do in his party's platform and in his speeches.

It was not a mandate to shovel New York City into the Atlantic Ocean if he should happen to find it "out of sympathy" with him. It was not a mandate to take over control of the labor unions if he should happen to find them opposing something he wanted to do. It was not a mandate to assume control of the State Legislatures, if and when he should become irritated with them for obstructing measures which he had recommended. It was not a mandate to emasculate the Supreme Court because it provided the one check upon him in his assumption of supreme power over the destinies of 130,000,000 people.

Mr. Roosevelt can claim no popular mandate to change the form of Government of the United States from a democracy to a Fascist state. During the recent political campaign, I laughed derisively when Republicans and Jeffersonian Democrats hurled the charge of dictatorship. With this letter, I am making sad and humble apology.

Control of the judiciary is the first, decisive step toward personal instead of constitutional government, toward dictatorship.

An Open Letter

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I attach an open letter I have addressed to Dr. A. Lawrence Lowell, president emeritus of Harvard University.

JOHN WALKER HOLCOMBE.
Washington, Feb. 26.

My dear Dr. Lowell:

As an old Harvard man I read anything noticed in the newspapers that you have said or that has been published about you. So, when a brief report appeared in papers of Washington of your recent radio talk upon the President's proposal respecting the courts, quoting you as saying, "Evil practices of that sort are contagious," etc., I hastened to the Library of Congress to read your remarks entire in the Boston Herald. There I suffered a shock. You opened with this astonishing sentence:

The bill on the courts now pending is unprecedented. Never before have vacancies on the Supreme Court been created in order to change its complexion; never has it been enlarged that the Administration might control its opinions.

Really, Sir, while your assertions may be literally correct, do they fairly present the case? A review of the history of the Federal courts leads to the conclusion that your exordium, taken together with your direct charge of "evil practices," is mere prejudice-breeding declamation, implying that the President proposes some monstrous thing. Was that your intention, Dr. Lowell?

President Roosevelt manifestly is not seeking credit for originality. While there is no precedent for his recommendations as a whole, he has found, in exploring the history of the courts, precedents for every individual recommendation he has made: in bills introduced in the Congress and passed by one or the other House, or in writings or speeches of historians, jurists and statesmen, some of them more extreme than any of those which he selected to include in his proposal—for instance, a proposed enlargement of the Supreme Court to 18 members.

But why should the President of the United States be slavishly bound by precedents? Our President at this time is a great leader, an inspirer of men, a wise statesman. He is courageous enough to lead this country forward beyond precedents, to blaze a shining trail of new precedents. Every step forward in the progress of popular government has been achieved through disregard of precedents, through breaking of precedents.

You further say of the proposal:

The language . . . conceals from no one the fact that it enables the present Administration to appoint six new judges of the Supreme Court who will be expected to produce a majority on constitutional questions favorable to the President.

To suppose that there was any wish at any time to conceal anything from anybody is, with great deference to you, Sir, preposterous. Consider a moment. Six additional justices are not needed for the results desired. Two able jurists added to the present bench would effect ratification of social and liberal legislation essential to the "general welfare." But the President has recommended a possible six, and you may be sure he had a purpose in so doing, for that brilliant and far-seeing mind does not act without a purpose.

Anyone may conjecture what that purpose was. My guess, as good as another's, is that he wished to arouse the country to the condition and prerogatives of the Federal judiciary, to awake and interest public opinion, to bring out abundant discussion, and to see how much knowledge and clear thinking on the subject, and how much appreciation of democracy can be found among the intelligentia. Far from intending to conceal anything, he wished to make his plan vivid and striking, to center the Nation's attention on it. This he did by the method of the electric shock, so to speak. He asked for a possible six new justices, sincerely believing that much enlargement desirable for the future, whether or not greatly needed at present.

You then construe the proposal as an attack upon the independence of the courts and remind us of the long battle of the English to establish the freedom of judges from domination or intimidation by the crown. You do not state that no court in Britain has power to invalidate an act of Parliament.

You alarm us, however, by recalling the tyranny of George III, seeming not to discern that the tyranny exercised and to be resisted at this time in this country is not that of any royal or other personage, but that of the economic royalists, whose facile instruments are the injunction of the Federal courts and their power to nullify liberalizing legislation. No doubt those gentlemen are encouraged in finding a man of your exalted character and great learning arrayed with them. But some of your admirers would commend to you the constructive philosophy of John Marshall in his interpretations of the Constitution as a living instrument which created an effective government, but laid no mortmain on progress and an ever wider extension of the general welfare.

Concluding, you warn of a danger that our courts may lose their independence and sense of responsibility, and ask:

Are we now to return to the claim of the Stuart kings that judges should be lions, but lions under the throne?

Upon that solemn inquiry a fitting comment may be found in the words of the "Bab Ballads": "Which is pretty, but I don't know what it means."

Question Of Whose Ox.

The United States Supreme Court has just "handed down" one of those 5-to-4 decisions (I refer to the case involving payments in gold bullion), and no New Dealer, either in or out of office, has risen to denounce the court and demand a curb on such decisions. Can it be that they have overlooked this splendid opportunity to stir up hostility against the court? Or does it make a difference whose ox is being gored?

Incidentally, it often happens that some legislation is passed by Congress by the slimmest majority. Are such laws less binding on us, or less desirable because they were passed by such narrow majorities? Should we prohibit such votes and require that all legislation must be passed by a vote of at least two-thirds or three-quarters of each house of Congress before it can be considered binding upon us? Or does it again depend upon whose ox is being gored?

EDWARD WOLESENSKY.
Arlington, Va., March 3.

"Submit An Amendment."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: One measure has been proposed whereby a decision of the Court may be overruled by a two-thirds majority vote in Congress; another requiring the concurrence of seven or more of the nine justices in the opinion. Why such limitations? Congress itself has evidenced its doubts from time to time on the wisdom or legality of certain measures by very close votes. Witness the recent vote in the Senate on the trade treaty act. Why not therefore, when an act has been declared unconstitutional, and it is still considered a wise measure to the best interests of the people, submit an amendment as provided in the Constitution, requesting the necessary power and authority that will enable the Congress to enact the measure into law?

Any proposal to nullify or emasculate the power of the Supreme Court to declare acts of Congress unconstitutional should be considered as a direct attack and serious menace to the rights and liberties guaranteed under our Constitution to the citizens of the United States.

History Often Cited To Point Dangers And Merits Of Plan

Referred To Joe Robinson.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have been asked a question—so I am asking you:

Do Supreme Court justices when nominated by the President for their jobs have to be confirmed, or not, by the Senate of the United States? Has the Senate held up and refused to confirm nominations? It seems to me they held one up—not so many years ago. Yes?

How many of the men young Joe Robinson now opposes and wants to make walk the plank did he previously vote to confirm? Does he think his judgment on candidates to be proposed, if F. D. R. gets his way, will be better than when he was even younger than now? In condemning the present incumbents, doesn't Joe go back on his record, so to speak?

There are at least two or three people in Hollywood who want to know. Please print this with a real reply. We are so far away we can't understand why the Supreme Court should be canned just when the public was showing so clearly that they liked the show it was putting on.

To us, it looks like dirty politics. We have it here—plenty of it. But we had an idea that the taxes we have to pay might buy us something better in Washington, especially considering the price put on the gallery seats.

Internecine Fight.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have lived to see three Democratic Presidents, with Congresses favorable to same, and with ability to carry out the legislation for which they were elected. Each time the will of the people has been thwarted by an internecine fight among themselves. Cleveland was deserted by his party on the tariff issue; Woodrow Wilson was knifed in the back, and now they are trying to crucify Roosevelt.

In the present crisis the President has offered the most feasible way, and the only constitutional way, to break the impasse, and to enact the liberal legislation for which he was elected.

If the members of the party are too dumb or too willful to support him, and Congress adjourns without enacting the legislation that is required for the welfare of the people, the people will, sooner or later, take things in their own hands and elect a crowd that will give them the relief they ask for and have a right to expect.

W. SMITH.
Washington, Feb. 24.

Georgia Reaction.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: That the Chief Executive should seek not only to dominate the legislative through partisan control, but also to wield to his will the judicial is simply astounding. There are thousands from this section, loyal Democrats who voted for the present Administration, who are fully behind such of their Representatives and Senators as have the courage to oppose this monstrous proposal.

We have accepted much of the New Deal. Some of it has been excellent. But there are a large number who feel that some of its measures are detrimental to our best interests. We must conserve whatever defense of those rights, guaranteed as sacred by our forefathers' wisdom and sacrifice, remains.

JAMES L. SMITH.

Lycurgus' Example.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Young men rock the boat; older men know how to keep it on even keel. We need both in some degree.

But let us study history and especially an immortal example of wise law giver, Lycurgus, and note the power he entrusted to "the best and most deserving men past 60 years old, and fittest to be entrusted forever after, with the supreme authority of the commonwealth." These men were selected by the people, not by Lycurgus alone. If we are to act with wisdom today, it behooves us to study history and the wisdom of the ages.

As Father Walsh once said: "The past is dead only to those who are unaware of the continuity of time."

LOUISE KIDDER SPARROW.

"Political Royalists."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The apparent desire of certain politicians and others to establish a one-man government in place of our present system of constitutional government is too plain to be ignored. Their course of action is such as to indicate personal gain to themselves, regardless of the effect upon the liberties of the American people.

This tendency is made clearer by reason of the attempt to change the complexion of the Supreme Court to suit certain purposes. These "political royalists" are as much out of touch with democratic ideas of government as were the royalists with whom Gen. Washington and his compatriots had to contend when fighting for the independence of the colonies.

For any man to assume power that belongs to the people under the Constitution is akin to the rule of a Hitler. For this reason, it behooves liberty-loving citizens, regardless of party affiliation, to put the stamp of disapproval upon this tendency before it gains an ascendancy too strong to be overcome.

The Supreme Court proposal is but a beginning. If successful, who knows what will be the next step toward autocratic rule? The experience of nations that have fallen victims to one-man rule should be sufficient warning to Americans who love their country and its free institutions to guard well the Constitution which guarantees to them civil and religious liberty and other blessings that rightfully belong to free men.

W. H. P.
Washington, March 3.

Constitution's Framing.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The working people had nothing to do with framing the Constitution and literally speaking nothing to do with any amendments. It was drawn up by large landowners and rich men, all of whom bickered so much trying to protect their own interests or gain an advantage over another locality that George Washington adjourned them for three days with the words, "Return in three days and make a Constitution fair to all the people." Four months later, when these "economic royalists" had completed their task (seven articles) George Washington said: "Your work is far from being perfect, but under the circumstances will have to do." EARL BISHOP.
Washington, Feb. 28.

"Why All The Camouflage?"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why all this noise and bluster about the Supreme Court? I have listened to it all but have yet to hear the first substantial reason for making additional appointments at this time.

Why all the camouflage when everyone knows the real reason for rushing this matter through? Why not be honest enough to give the real reason? I do not believe that anyone can honestly deny that the real reason is to pack the Supreme Court with men who will render decisions in harmony with the New Deal, without regard to the Constitution. When that is done, where are our constitutional guarantees? The Supreme Court would become a political tool with "justice fallen in the street."

Since we seem to be following a Hitler program, would it not simplify matters by adopting a Hitler "purge" and shoot the offending justices?

As Bob Burns Says

Copyright, 1937

I was talkin' to a big business executive in his office the other day and he made a laughing remark about my kinfolks bein' lazy. I couldn't help noticin' that the man's desk was jest loaded with buttons that he pressed whenever he wanted somethin' done.

He took pride in tellin' me that with the aid of these buttons, he could sit right there and conduct all his business without movin' from his chair. Still he'd be awfully surprised and hurt if somebody called him lazy.

It ain't that my folks are lazy. It's just that they ain't got none of them time savin' buttons and they have to figger out their own labor savin' ideas. It's like the time me and my uncle and my Cousin Wafford was layin' on the floor in front of the fire one afternoon and my uncle turned to my cousin and he says, "Wafford, is it rainin' outside?" and Wafford says, "I don't know." My uncle says, "Well git up and look." And Wafford says, "Oh, call the dog in and see if he's wet!"

Lo, the Poor . . .

Lo, the poor Indian is now established as one of the most earnest and concerned of all the watchers of the current Supreme Court joust. Lo, the poor Indian hasn't been mentioned even once by the contending groups, but the poor Indian, it is pointed out in the current issue of Indian Work, long has regarded the Supreme Court as his best friend.

And having heard of sundry real estate deals consummated with flintlock, lo, the poor Indian probably counts his friends with doubt. They will be "particularly concerned over the debate now raging in connection with the President's court message to Congress," it is said.

Slightly irritated, A. F. G. E.'s President Stengle expresses the wish that the press would learn that his work is of larger scope than the settling of petty disputes among the district lodges . . . He said so at a meeting the other night of Labor Lodge, No. 12, just before going into a heavy discussion of employe legislation . . . He was referring to the title of "peacemaker" someone recently gave him.

Harry C. Hensley, of Farm Credit Administration, is the newly elected president of the University of Missouri Alumni Association, of Washington, succeeding Frank B. Scheetz, formerly of Interstate Commerce Commission . . . Assisting him will be Belmont Farley, of National Education Association, vice president; Miss Ida Lee Cannon, secretary, and F. W. Espenschied, treasurer.

About Hensley: Born, Missouri; educated, University of Missouri, Harvard and the University of Minnesota; taught in extension marketing in Missouri; entered Federal Farm Board, 1930, and subsequently transferred to Farm Credit Administration as senior agricultural economist.

About Miss Cannon: She is the daughter of Representative Clarence Cannon, of Missouri.

About Farley: A graduate of the school of journalism, University of Missouri; now assistant director of publications, National Education Association.

About Espenschied: A native of St. Louis; educated, Cornell University; an expert on air conditioning.

Sunday, April 4, has been designated as the date for open house in the camps.

Researches Glamorous.

Herbert W. Krieger, Smithsonian Institution curator of ethnology, wondered about the welcoming committee for Christopher Columbus, then set out to inquire in a research glamorous . . . It led him into an archeological reconnaissance of the Bahamas where he conducted excavations in caves on three islands, New Providence, Long Island and Andros . . . His conclusion: The discoverer of America first stepped ashore on the present San Salvador or Watling Island, easternmost of the Bahamas, and was met by the "Lucayana," described as simple, honest and exceedingly liberal Americans" . . . The Bahaman aboriginals soon became extinct, leaving relatively little to indicate who they were . . .

Cherry Tree Celebration Planned Here

D. C. Officials, Businessmen Meet, Ask for Donations.

Festival This Year Will Be Most Colorful Ever Staged.

The most colorful festival ever staged to celebrate the blossoming of the Japanese cherry trees in Potomac Park was planned yesterday by a committee of District officials and businessmen at a meeting in the office of Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen.

The committee appealed for contributions totaling $7,500 from "public-spirited citizens" to defray the cost of the City's jubilation over the appearance of the pink and white blossoms.

No official celebration will be staged unless "at least $5,000 is contributed," said C. Melvin Sharpe, Potomac Electric Power Co. official, who was elected general chairman of the cherry blossom celebration committee.

Full Day's Festival.

The festival will star early on the day the fragile blossoms around the Tidal Basin appear at their fullest beauty and will continue until late that night, said Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, honorary chairman of the committee.

Highlights of the celebration will be the crowning of the Queen of the Blossoms, an elaborate fireworks display and a night pageant at the Lincoln Memorial Water Gate.

C. Marshall Finnan, director of National Capital Parks and chairman of the committee on arrangements, said the date of the festival will not be established "until 8 or 10 days before it is held."

At this time, Finnan said, it is impossible to determine whether the cherry trees which open their buds swiftly after several warm days will bloom in April or May.

New Trees Planned.

The Parks Office, Finnan said, will plant between 1,500 and 2,000 new trees this spring to fill in gaps and replace those killed by the floods last year.

He estimated that approximately 3,000 cherry trees would bloom this spring.

Committee members were of the opinion that this year's celebration would not be so lavish as the last blossom festival which continued through three days three years ago. But what this year's festival may lack in length it will make up in color, committeemen predicted.

Businessmen who benefit from the influx of hundreds of thousands of visitors to view the cherry blossoms will be called upon to bear the heaviest part of the celebration expenses. "But we are calling upon everyone to do his part," said Commissioner Hazen.

Honorary Officers.

Commissioner George E. Allen and Col. Dan I. Sultan were elected honorary vice chairmen with Thomas E. Lodge, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations. Robert J. Cottrell was named secretary, and James E. Colliflower, treasurer.

Other committee assignments included L. Gardiner Moore, chairman of hotels and restaurants committee; Richmond Keech, vice chairman; Harold G. Hayden, comptroller; Charles J. Columbus, chairman of the publicity committee, and Joseph D. Kaufman, vice chairman.

'Big Shots' in Numbers Racket Screened, Judge Proctor Says

'Little Fellows' Suffering for Bosses, District Court Justice Asserts; Brown Points to Warring Mob in Defending Bureau.

An intimation that the "little fellows" were being arrested while the "big fellows" are being ignored was made by Justice James M. Proctor in District Court yesterday when Hulon Jones, colored, accused of taking a 10-cent bet on the "numbers," entered a plea of guilty.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, chief of police, when told of Justice Proctor's accusation said that within the last month his detectives have broken up the worst gang of "numbers" racketeers ever to operate here.

Referring to the Georgetown Warring mob, Maj. Brown declared: "These men seem to be the 'big shots' and they all have been arrested. My men will continue to enforce the law."

Says Big Ones Screened.

Observing that he had heard about a dozen such pleas recently, Justice Proctor asserted the "big fellows" in the "numbers" racket were obviously being "screened" while the little fellows were being punished. He pointedly suggested that the men behind the $100,000 a day "numbers" racket should be brought in instead of some of their hirelings.

Addressing himself to the Jones plea, Justice Proctor said he did not like "to have small numbers gamblers such as this man brought in while the men behind the scenes keep out of trouble."

Assistant United States Attorney Samuel F. Beach, who presented the case, replied he "was a little embarrassed to present such cases" and the jurist interrupted to say he did not think the district attorney's office was to blame.

"Men like the defendant often by force of circumstances may be forced into such an occupation in order to live. Of course what they do is wrong and they should be punished, but from a humanitarian point of view their crime is understandable. But I want to have this business cleared up from the bottom. I know there are big men behind this type of gambling which is well organized and that they obviously are being screened. I don't want to see the little fellows go to jail while the big ones stay out."

Thereupon he ordered Jones' case referred to the probation officer for a report.

FHLB Favors Fidelity Bank Reorganization

The future of the Fidelity Building & Loan Association again rests in the hands of the Comptroller of the Currency, as the Federal Home Loan Bank Board yesterday laid before him a lengthy plan for reorganizing the bank and once again opening its door for business.

While no facts were disclosed, it was learned on good authority that the internal condition of the closed bank was better than generally expected, and that the payoff would be "higher than anticipated." The situation as uncovered by FHLB was described as "very encouraging."

The Comptroller, F. F. T. O'Connor, may at his discretion reject or accept the FHLB plan, for under the law, all District of Columbia banking institutions are under the jurisdiction of his department.

Eighteen thousand depositors waited anxiously yesterday for a Treasury decision. Their money has been tied up since last July, when the association's doors were suddenly closed midst criminal charges against the officers and declarations that its money was being lost through bad investments.

This is the second time the Comptroller has had examiners' reports laid before him. A first survey was made by agents from his own office. No decision on their findings was made. Next the FRLB stepped in and asked for permission to investigate.

It was the FHLB survey which was presented yesterday. Its contents were not made public, but it was authoritatively learned that FHLB favors reorganization of the bank as a member of the Home Loan system with Federal deposit insurance.

A spokesman for the FHLB said it was his understanding the Comptroller would come to a decision on the fate of the closed bank some time "within the next few days."

'Double Penalties' Equal Rights Bill For D. C. Offered

An "equal rights" bill for the District was introduced in the House yesterday by Representative Koppleman (Democrat), of Connecticut.

The measure provides a double penalty against any person connected with a public establishment who discriminates against anyone because of race, color or creed.

The first penalty makes the offender liable for $100 to $500 damages to be collected by the aggrieved party in civil action, while the second allows the Police Court to impose an additional fine of from $10 to $100 or 10 to 100 days imprisonment.

The measure would apply to hotels, restaurants, stores, hospitals, theaters and the like.

Koppleman, in an explanatory statement, said that 20 States now have "equal rights" laws and that the National Capital should set an example in this respect. He stated that the provisions were "inadvertently" left out of the District code by the compilers in 1901.

Delts Hold Dinner Marking 78th Year

Members of Delta Tau Delta Fraternity, representing some 70 odd chapters throughout the country, are expected to gather at the seventy-eighth anniversary dinner at the Press Club tomorrow at 7 p. m.

Camden McAtee, local attorney, is to act as toastmaster and states that in addition to informal talks by members of the fraternity's Congressional representation, C. T. Boyd, national secretary, will deliver a brief address. Former members of the Arch Chapter to be present at this dinner include A. Bruce Bielaksi, of New York; T. Fitzhugh Wilson and Carl H. Butman.

It is also expected that a representative group of the oldest members in Washington will be present. In this group are Commodore A. W. Stahl, Stevens, '76; Col. Frank White, Illinois, '79; D. G. Cheesman, Ohio, '81; G. C. Clark, W. and J., '83; T. W. Stanton, Colorado, '83; W. S. Johnson, Dartmouth, '85, and M. J. Hole, Western Reserve, '86.

she said. "I hope they string him up."

Mrs. Sprouse made this statement before her daughter's funeral this afternoon.

Another member of the family said:

"I hope they lynch him."

One angle of the case still unclarified, authorities said, was the statement of Ethel Sealock, acquaintance of the slain girl, that Cleo drove by her house Monday night about 7 o'clock. She asked her to go for a ride in a sedan with an unidentified man, she said.

As near as they could determine, officials asserted, the girl died between 6 and 7 o'clock that evening.

She did not positively recognize Miss Sprouse, Miss Sealock said today.

"I didn't go out of the house at all," she said.

D. C. Cab Driver Returns.

"I opened the door and looked out when I heard the horn blow. She looked like Cleo and her voice sounded like her when she asked if I could go riding."

She was not a "close friend" of the slain girl, Miss Sealock said, but has been out with her several times and "knew her voice." She added she did not recognize the man in the car with the girl.

After he learned that he had been mentioned as an acquaintance of Miss Sprouse, Russell Pace, Charlottesville taxi driver and friend of the victim, returned here today from Washington.

He left here the day before the girl's death, and he was in Washington when he was informed of the tragedy.

Fife said tonight that the statement which Dr. Miller signed will not be made public, "in fairness to the dentist." He added it might be made public only upon its release by his counsel.

Miller thus far has not employed an attorney, he said.

The dentist today expressed a desire for a "quick trial," Sheriff Smith said in Richmond. This statement came after the middle-aged prisoner had orally admitted his part in the case.

"Instrument" Sought.

There are some discrepancies in Miller's story, said Fife, who stated the charge against the dentist would be placed before a special grand jury as soon as "certain loose ends" of the case could be cleared up.

Any appeal for bail will be opposed by him, "certainly at this time," he said.

Authorities have been told where to search for the "instrument" with which he planned to perform the operation on the girl, the Commonwealth's attorney said. So far they have been unable to locate it, he added.

Fife said the exact place in the wood-shielded side road where the tragedy occurred had not been determined.

As the investigation continued, Circuit Judge Lemuel F. Smith said he was "ready" to summon a special grand jury as soon as the prosecutor made his request.

Meanwhile, the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Washington was analyzing bits of cotton found in the nose and examining clothing worn by the girl when her body was found.

"The speed with which we proceed in placing the case before a grand jury depends largely on the report of the findings of these analyses," said the Commonwealth's attorney.

House Group Hears Pleas Of Civil Units

Social Council Urges Increased Relief Allotment.

Working in record time, the House sub-committee on District appropriations yesterday heard 30-odd civic spokesmen and concluded hearings on the 1938 supply bill.

All that remains, besides marking up the bill, is the questioning of J. L. Jacobs, director of the recent fiscal relations study, and George Lord, the tax expert who made a similar inquiry for the Mapes committee. That will begin Monday morning.

Chairman Collins and his associates listened all day yesterday to requests for larger appropriations for unemployment relief, public health, schools, playgrounds, libraries, and other municipal agencies.

Expense Cut Planned.

Despite pleas from the Council of Social Agencies for an increase in the $1,465,000 items for relief, Collins indicated he had not been convinced. However, he intimated that a reduction will be made in administrative expenses with the result that more money will be available for actual aid to jobless.

An additional $1,000,000 for relief was asked by Mrs. W. A. Roberts, executive secretary of the Council of Social Agencies, and by Walter S. Ufford, of the Monday Evening Club. Mrs. Roberts said that 2,500 families will be destitute unless the extra money is provided.

An objection came from Rufus S. Lusk, president of the Washington Taxpayers Association, who proposed that emergency aid be abolished.

Mrs. Burton K. Wheeler, wife of the Senator from Montana, asked funds for Wilson High School stadium.

Witnesses Listed.

Witnesses heard and the items requested included the following:

Charles I. Stengle, president of American Federation of Government Employes, shorter hours for guards at jail; Mrs. Leslie Wright, for stadium at Wilson High School; Mrs. Blanche D. Alexander, eight-room addition to Ketcham School; Charles E. S. Rich, Conduit Road Citizens Association, new library; John J. Hurley and Joseph L. Parkhill, Michigan Park Citizens Association, eight-room school at Bunker Hill.

Mrs. W. H. Sequist, Whittier Parent-Teacher Association, assembly hall-gymnasium, Whittier School; Mrs. W. D. Willis, school facilities for Bradbury Heights; A. W. Lee, Randle Highlands Citizens Association, library, Pennsylvania Avenue Bridge, and extra police.

Mrs. Walter Ufford, Southwest Children's Council, health centers, schools, playgrounds, community centers for Southwest; Louis F. Frick, Southeast Business Men's Association, Pennsylvania avenue paving between Second and Eighth streets; Mrs. J. M. Bell, eight-room addition and assembly-gymnasium for Kingsman School.

Other Requests.

E. J. Read and W. J. Plemmons, Congress Heights Citizens Association, Oxon Run interceptor and addition to Anacostia Junior High School; Dr. Edward E. Richardson, City-wide Playground Council, $5,000 increase; W. C. Magathan, Citizens Association of Takoma, Senior High School at Fifth and Sheridan streets.

Mrs. Edward Chapin, Association of American University Women, elimination of ban on children under 5 years in the schools; Earl W. Cooper, regarding shorthand reporters; George E. Keneipp and Cooper B. Rhodes, Board of Trade, schools; C. E. McGhee, City Fire Fighters Association, more personnel and equipment; George E. Diefenbach, Chevy Chase Citizens Association, additional school teachers.

Mrs. Andrew J. Snow, Chevy Chase Recreation Council, playgrounds; Washington I. Cleveland, District Motor Club, streets; Frank J. Sheehan, Associated General Contractors, regarding autos for inspectors; Charles E. Roberts and D. H. Cole, Washington Highland Citizens Association, sewers; Wolsey W. Hall, Federation of Civic Associations, schools and community centers; Jerome B. Osborne and A. S. Pinkett, Pleasant Plains Citizens Association, assembly-gymnasium for Monroe School and Murray School addition.

Belgian Good-Will Lecturer Envies Women's Status Here

Post Staff Photos.

MME. CLAIRE DE HEDERVARY.

Mme. Claire de Hedervary, in U. S. to Promote Better Understanding, Says European Women Should Follow American Pattern.

In Europe they call her "Christophina Columbo" because she has "discovered America" for so many persons who have attended her lectures and read her articles. In America she wants to be known as the Belgian Ambassador of Good Will as she travels through the country, from coast to coast, lecturing on her native land and explaining why everyone should visit it.

She is Mme. Claire de Hedervary, of Brussels; she has been in America once before and "always wanted to come back." She looks like a French fashion plate, talks with a slight accent, and admires American women tremendously. She can discuss with authority any subject from world peace to women's rights.

In Brussels, Paris, Vienna and Budapest she has lectured on the position of American women, she said, and has urged women of Europe to follow the American pattern in planning their lives. "Women here have everything," she said with a sigh.

U. S. Dresses "Prettier."

"They have independence; they have an enviable place in public life; they have suffrage; they have a chance to work—and do—even when they are wealthy. They have no idea how fortunate they are. And another thing—they have the prettiest clothes in the world. Much prettier than French women have."

About her good will tour in America, Mme. de Hedervary had even more to say. "I have always worked for good will in bringing people and nations closer together," she averred. "Understanding will end war. Travel is the basis of understanding. I come to America. I meet Americans, and I like them. They are my friends. It is the same way with people in other countries. When we know each other well enough, there will be no war."

Traveling Made Easier.

To bring countries and people closer together, travel in every country must be made easy so tourists will be attracted to it, Mme. de Hedervary said. Belgium has awakened to that in recent years, she continued. "We want more and more Americans to come to Belgium and to meet our people. We want our little country to be a close friend of this great, big country."

Arriving in Washington yesterday morning, Mme. de Hedervary lunched at the Belgian Embassy. She will return to New York today to complete arrangements for her lecture tour. She expects to be in America for several months and hopes to spend several days in Washington before she goes back to Belgium.

Kin of Founder Joins Church's 135th Birthday

The "hardest-hit single factor in civilization today is the church," S. E. Mitchell, professor of political economy in the University of Virginia, declared last night. The trouble has arisen, he said, because the church has always "leaned heavily upon the throne, and when recently the throne toppled, the church toppled, too."

Prof. Mitchell, at one time president of the University of South Carolina, spoke at the 135th anniversary dinner of the First Baptist Church, Sixteenth and O streets northwest.

In closing, he admonished his listeners to make the United States as great in moral power as she is in eminence."

Prof. Mitchell was introduced by the Rev. Edward Hughes Pruden, pastor of the church.

Speaking in reply to Prof. Mitchell's talk, the Rev. Pruden said "the church has its greatest day ahead because the hungering human spirit" can only be satisfied by Christian doctrine.

Attended by 335 persons resident here but native in 29 States and eight foreign countries, the dinner also was addressed by Assistant Secretary of State R. Walton Moore; Representatives Clyde L. Garrett, Thomas Blanton's successor from Texas, and Dr. Rufus Weaver, thirteenth pastor of the church.

Calling Washington in 1802 a "mere village," Secretary Moore recounted, together with other early history, how during floods rowboats used to navigate on Pennsylvania avenue.

Dr. Weaver told of the founding of the church in 1802 by four ministers and six laymen. One of the four ministers, Jeremiah Moore, who preached the church's dedicatory sermon, is an ancestor of Secretary Moore.

The roll call by States which opened the program was followed by three songs by Howard Moore. The toastmaster for the evening was E. Hilton Jackson, church moderator.

A. J. Wernig Heads Retired Firemen

A. J. Wernig, a former vice president, last night was elected president of the Retired Firemen's Association of the District at the annual election of officers at Typographical Union Hall. He succeeds P. W. Nicholson, a retired deputy chief.

Other officers chosen included H. J. Raley, vice president; C. G. Birch, recording secretary and E. J. Trainer, treasurer.

Northeast Civic Group Asks Crossing Gates on Bates Road

By a unanimous vote the delegates to the Northeast Conference of Citizens Associations last night decided to request the placing of gates and a watchman at the B. & O. railroad crossing on Bates road, scene last week of an accident in which two employes of the Internal Revenue Department met death.

The request will be made of the railroad officials and of the highway department. Installation of these safety guards would be temporary, until the new overpass is erected at the crossing. Victims of last week's crash were C. C. Shipton and James T. Corbin.

Interest in the improvements on East Capitol street was reaffirmed by the group.

As the meeting closed the president of the conference, A. F. E. Scheer, called attention to the mounting traffic toll in the District, and suggested that the Traffic Bureau be taken over by the Police Department and Lieut. Franklin M. Kreml, of the Evanston, Ill., Police and winner of the C. I. T. Safety Foundation's $5,000 prize, be brought to Washington in an advisory capacity for some months to reorganize the traffic bureau.

300 Workers At Navy Yard To Lose Jobs

Union Officials Protest, Saying U. S. Is Letting Out Projects.

About 300 machinists at the Washington Navy Yard will be laid off around May 1, as part of a Nation-wide program to drop thousands of navy yard workmen, due to decreased naval construction.

The lay-offs were foreseen by officials a year ago when the work schedule indicated a sharp decline about this time. Failure of Congress to pass the $225,000,000 naval auxiliary vessel building program is blamed for the lay-offs. The bill would provide for building tankers, supply ships, destroyer tenders, minesweepers and other craft.

Six other yards besides Washington, will be affected in the general reduciton; these are Boston, Philadelphia, New York, Norfolk, Charleston and Mare Island (Calif.). At Portsmouth, N. H., the work load is holding up due to a number of submarines under construction, and no immediate lay-offs are in prospect there.

That the May 1 lay-offs might be followed by others was indicated last night. Officials predicted, however, that additional dismissals would involve only a few employes.

The impending unemployment long has been recognized by N. P. Alifas, president of District No. 44, International Association of Machinists, who has contacted the Navy Department repeatedly in attempts to prevent the dismissals. He contends that the department has been letting out engine construction, particularly for submarines, to private contractors, although, he states, the law requires construction be divided equally between private yards and Government establishments.

Alifas, who is chairman of the legislative committee of the Metal Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, protests against large contracts being let out to private contractors when Navy yards can handle the work. He advocates re-opening the Navy's ordnance factory at South Charleston, W. Va., to absorb the men who will be thrown out of work.

Solution of the problem, according to Alifas, is to place the men on preferred employment lists so they will have first opportunity for new jobs, transfer the dismissed employes to other Government establishments, and have Congress immediately adopt measures to prevent lay offs in the future.

Purple Heart Unit Honored at Rites In Memorial Hall

Wearers of the Purple Heart, the Army's oldest decoration, last night were honored in Memorial Continental Hall, at the formal presentation of colors to Mount Vernon Chapter, No. 22, Military Order of the Purple Heart.

The colors were presented to the Washington organization by Col. George Ijams, of the Veterans' Administration, who described the decoration's history, including its first use by Gen. George Washington during the Revolution. Col. Ijams paid tribute to Jacob Orken, German immigrant to the United States, who served four terms in the Army and was injured seriously in the Philippines. Orken, who died last June, was a member of the Purple Heart Order, and was responsible for last night's ceremony.

The program included an invocation by Phineas Towne, chapter chaplain, Veteran Indian Wars; an address of welcome by Mrs. C. C. Haig, State regent of the D. A. R.; a greeting by Frank A. Schrepfer, past national commander; a toast to the flag by John J. Daly; an address by Congressman Michael J. Stack, the pledge of allegiance to the flag, led by Mrs. Ruth Forkish, president of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Mount Vernon unit, and selections by the United States Marine Band.

Ballou Is Speaker At School Dinner

Dr. F. W. Ballou, Superintendent of Schools, was the guest of honor at a dinner at the Broadmoor last night, given for the men of the Washington public school system by Phi Sigma Pi, educational fraternity at Wilson Teachers' College.

Introduced by Toastmaster Hugh S. Smith, principal of Jefferson Junior High School, Dr. Ballou told the 150 guests: "I have this to say to the men in education in Washington—that appointments and promotions are made and will continue to be made on the basis of professional preparation and merit alone."

Other speakers on the program, entitled "Men in Education," included Principal R. W. Eaves, of Thomson School, "Men in Elementary Schools;" Principal Lawson J. Cantrell, of Paul Junior High, "Men in the Junior High Schools;" Norman J. Nelson, Principal of Woodrow Wilson High, "Men in the Senior High Schools;" Assistant Superintendent of Schools Dr. Harvey Smith, "Men in Administration," and Dr. E. C. Higbie, President of Wilson Teachers' College, "Preparing Men for Teaching."

Notables of District and Nation Among 1,300 Attending Victory Dinner for President Roosevelt at Mayflower

By Jessie Ash Arndt.

MEN WERE in the majority last night at the $100 Victory Dinner held at the Mayflower on the anniversary of President Roosevelt's first inauguration.

The black and white dinner clothes predominated in the dining room and ballroom, where the 1,300 guests were served. But enough handsome evening gowns also were to be seen to attest the fact that the women of the Democratic Party had contributed their share to the November victory.

For an hour before 8:30, when the President arrived, Cabinet members, Senators, Representatives and officials of the Administration came singly or in groups, greeted friends in the hotel lobby and went in to find their places.

Arrives With President.

Mrs. Roosevelt arrived with the President, but did not remain for the dinner at the Mayflower. She left shortly to be guest of honor at the dinner of the Young Democrats, which was held at the Willard Hotel. Mrs. Roosevelt was wearing a blue velvet gown and a corsage of orchids. Her jewelry consisted of two long strands of pearls and a diamond pin. Her ermine wrap had collars and cuffs of white fox.

Mrs. Morgenthau, wife of the Secretaary of the Treasury, was the only Cabinet wife there. The Secretary and Mrs. Morgenthau, the latter who wore a red velvet gown with a white lace bertha, were among those who arrived just before the hour of the dinner. The Secretary of State, Mr. Cordell Hull; Secretary of War, Mr. Harry Woodring, and Secretary of Agriculture, Mr. Henry A. Wallace, all were there well ahead of time and stopped to visit with friends on the way in. The Attorney General, Mr. Homer S. Cummings; the Secretary of Interior, Mr. Harold Ickes, and the Secretary of Commerce, Mr. Daniel C. Roper, were among the later arrivals as was the Secretary of Labor, Miss Frances Perkins, who wore a black wrap over a blue gown.

Mrs. Marye at Small Table.

Mrs. George T. Marye, one of the sponsors of the dinner, sat at a small table outside the cocktail lounge with a party of friends as she waited for Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis and Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, with whom she went into the dining room. Both Mrs. Lewis and Mrs. Marye wore gowns of black velvet, the former with strands of pearls at her neck and Mrs. Marye with a diamond tiara and a diamond broach. Mrs. Harriman was in a gown of black crepe.

Mrs. Stanley Reed, wife of the Solicitor General, arrived with Miss Mary Dewson, Mrs. Reed in a mist blue lace gown and Miss Dewson in black with a gold-spangled top. Mrs. James Roosevelt hurried in just before the hour of the dinner accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Harvey Cushing, of New Haven, Conn., and Miss Marguerite LeHand. Young Mrs. Roosevelt wore a mink coat over her light gown.

Miss Mae Helm, whose gown was of black lace, greeted friends as she went through the lobby once or twice in an effort to locate her ticket which she had left at home. She finally announced to a friend that she expected to be successful in "crashing the gate."

Miss Josephine Roche, in a gunmetal lame gown toning in with the soft gray of her hair, held a small reception of her own as she made her way slowly to the door of the dining room.

Caroline O'Day in Black Crepe.

Representative Caroline O'Day, in a black crepe gown under a black velvet wrap and carrying a black feather fan, arrived just ahead of Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, who wore a mink gown of turquoise blue.

Representative Virginia Jenks, of Indiana, who was in a gown of white chiffon, was accompanied by Miss Emma May, an official from her State who was here for the occasion.

Mrs. Bernice S. Pyke, United States collector of customs in Cleveland, who was for 16 years national committeewoman from Ohio, had come to the Capital for the dinner accompanied by Mrs. Mildred Jaster, of Columbus, who is now national committeewoman from their State. Both were striking in appearance with snow-white hair, Mrs. Pyke wearing a flowered gown and Mrs. Jaster one of black.

Miss Marie Waltner, of Kansas City, a member of the Democratic National Committee, had stopped in Washington to attend the dinner on her return with her mother, Mrs. W. J. Flynn, from a five week cruise of the West Indies. She wore a gown of white quilted satin with a fur-trimmed jacket. The Assistant Postmaster General and Mrs. W. W. Howes were there, Mrs. Howes in a frock of dubonnet lace. Their daughter, Miss Mary Senate Howes, and Mr. John Stuart attended the Young Democrats Victory Dinner at the Willard.

Judge Trammell, Wife Attend.

The Assistant Secretary of the Interior, Theodore A. Walters, joined Judge and Mrs. Worth Trammell and Representative Robert P. Hill, of Oklahoma, at a small table outside the cocktail lounge as they waited for the dining room doors to open.

Representative J. Buell Snyder, of Pennsylvania; Mr. Julian Friand, Mr. Marvin McIntyre, Mr. Golden Bell and Representative Richard M. Atkinson were all among the guests that were not accompanied by their wives.

Mr. W. A. Ayres had with him his daughter, Miss Margaret Ayres, who wore a frock of peach-colored neck with a short cape of the material. Mrs. Thurman Arnold was there wearing a gown of white satin with red velvet trimming.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Lee Pierson, Mrs. Pierson in a pink satin gown studded with rhinestones; Mr. Laurel Brookover, Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Johnson, Gen. and Mrs. Frank T. Hines and Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hurja, Mrs. Hurja in black chiffon, also were among the guests.

Among others there were Mrs. Blair Banister and Mr. and Mrs. Richard R. Brown, Mrs. Edward B. Meigs, past president of the Women's National Democratic Club; Mrs. Wilbur Hubbard, newly elected president of the club; Mrs. Arthur Condon, Mrs. Robert Love Taylor, wife of the late Senator from Tennessee; Mrs. Anna Struble, national committeewoman from South Dakota; the Economic Adviser to the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Ezekiel Mordecai; Mrs. Frank March and Mrs. Sam O'Connor, national committeewoman from Kentucky.

Mrs. Roosevelt yesterday received at tea at the White House the French Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet. After attending the Young Democrats victory dinner at the Willard Hotel, last evening, she left for her lecture tour through the Southwest.

Senator Frederick Hale is at the Cloister at Sea Island Beach, Ga. Others sojourning there from Washington include Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Edge, Mr. and Mrs. Louis G. Greene and Miss Mary Jane Pelley.

Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Murphy of Bismark, N. Dak., who are touring the East, are at the Raleigh Hotel. They plan to visit New York City before returning home.

Hospital Group Maps Benefits

G. W. Women Arrange Small Party Series.

A series of small parties, each sponsored by a group of members of the woman's board of George Washington University Hospital, will replace a single large entertainment as a means of raising funds for the hospital this year. The new plan was decided on at a meeting of the board Wednesday, presided over by Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, the president, who has recently returned from Florida.

The parties planned will be under the direction of team captains and are expected to be the means of realizing a substantial fund for the general work of the board in behalf of the hospital, and also for the new hospital building which is under consideration.

Mrs. Lloyd Sutton will be hostess Monday at the first of these group entertainments, a dessert bridge, which will be given at her home, under the chairmanship of Mrs. G. Louis Weller. A second group, of which Mrs. Henry Albers is chairman, will have a card party the afternoon of March 15.

Other group chairmen, each of whom has ten or more members working with her, are Mrs. William H. Aspinwall, Mrs. Edward G. Bliss, Mrs. Walter Bloedorn, Mrs. Robert Holwell, Mrs. W. H. Collier, Mrs. Alfred H. Lawson, Mrs. James Pixlee.

Mrs. Orme, Sister To Attend Services Honoring Mother

Mrs. Margaret Peirce Orme and sister, Mrs. E. B. Gibson, left yesterday to attend the unveiling of the portrait of their mother, Mrs. Sallie Faison Peirce. It will take place on her eighty-sixth anniversary at the Presbyterian Church, which she was instrumental in building, in Warsaw, N. C.

Mrs. D. M. Shewbrooks, another of her daughters, passed through Washington from Philadelphia Sunday to be present at the unveiling.

The North Carolina Duplin Herald said of the portrait: "The picture is an outstanding work of art. Mr. Merkel has portrayed on canvas the deep soul feeling of a woman whose life has been lived for Christ and humanity."

Child Psychology Talk To Be Delivered Today

The first in a series of three lectures on child psychology being given by Dr. J. Edward Rauth, for the benefit of the St. Gertrude's School of Arts and Crafts, takes place today at the Carlton at 11 a. m. They have been arranged by Mrs. Frank Slingluff, jr., and a large group is expected to attend.

THE MERRY WHIRL

By Marylyn.

Yesterday seemed to be a walking day in Washington, with everyone deserting motor cars and going places afoot, taking advantage of the glorious spring day. Out at Connecticut and Florida avenues the Minister of Finland and Mme. Jarnefelt paused at the curb, admiring the sun in its setting blaze of glory. Mme. Jarnefelt was in black, her coat combined with black, closely curled Persian lamb.

Earlier in the day we had seen "Allibar" and Nick Abbot at just the same spot. Mr. Abbot was in brown tweeds, while his pretty wife chose blue for her costume. Her hat was a wide-brimmed straw Breton sailor, the kind that offers an invitation to all stray breezes.

Mrs. Fred Biermann, walking along F street, had on a sealskin cape over her black tailored ensemble.

• • • •

In Mobile Carrie was a lady of the queen's court at the festival. From there, where she was the guest of her cousins, the Frank Craigheads, at their estate, Arden, she went to Birmingham, the home of her grandmother, for whom she is named, and then to Pensacola.

• • • •

Betty and Mills Astin are getting everything ready for the Roundup Party which the Wyoming Society will give at the end of the month at the Raleigh. Among some of their tasks has been the matter of arranging for 400 pounds of elk meat to be shipped here for the dinner, which will be served from an honest - to - goodness "chuck wagon."

• • • •

Mrs. Northcutt Ely was looking very stunning in an all-black costume the other morning. Her cloth coat of black knobby wool was made on long lines with a tailored little collar of black Persian lamb, which also formed a wide panel down the front. Her black felt hat was intriguingly pinched into points and angles—very chic. Also carrying out the lines and angles, were the suede gloves which were trimmed with smooth kid pipings down each finger.

After a winter in town—Alexandria, to be more specific—the Elys are eagerly waiting the time when they can move back out to Dodona Manor, their beautiful estate out Leesburg way.

One person who always has had our envy for her ability to wear huge hats is Mrs. Archibald Miller. Even in the strongest wind this tall, slender blue-eyed lady manages to keep on her wide chapeau. Yesterday she had on a level-brimmed affair of black French felt with two ribbon loops in the front. With this she wore a coat of black broadcloth trimmed with kit fox.

Members of Senate Military Committee To Be Honor Guests at Fort Myer Today.

The members of the Senate Military Appropriations Committee will be the honor guests at the Friday Ride at Fort Myer this afternoon.

Preceding the exhibition Col. and Mrs. Jonathan Wainwright will be hosts at luncheon in their quarters. The guests include Senator and Mrs. Royal S. Copeland, Mrs. F. Ryan Duffy, Senator John G. Townsend, Miss Lyla Townsend, Senator and Mrs. John Overton, Senator H. Styles Bridges, Senator Elmer Thomas and Senator Richard B. Russell, jr.

The newly appointed Military Attache of the Mexican Embassy, Brig. Gen. Josel Amezcua, and Senora de Amezcua and their small daughter have arrived in Washington and taken an apartment at the Roosevelt Hotel.

Gen. Amezcua is succeeding Brig. Gen. Juan F. Azcarate, who will leave tomorrow for New York to sail for Germany, where he will assume his new post as Mexican envoy to that country.

Studio House Exhibits Art Of Virgin Isles

Members of Society, Artists and Officials Go to Preview.

Members of society, artists and Government officials connected with the Virgin Islands, or art projects, or both, gathered at Studio House yesterday afternoon for a preview of an exhibition of paintings of the islands. The Governor of the Virgin Islands and Mrs. Lawrence Cramer, who are in Washington for several weeks on leave, were honor guests at the showing. Also present were the former Governor and Mrs. Pearson, who are living in Washington this winter at the Kennedy-Warren.

Last summer a number of Washington artists went down to St. Thomas, or Charlotte Amalie, as it is now called since last week, after the original name given by the Danes who settled there in the seventeenth century. They were sent by the Treasury art project of the Public Works Administration to paint pictures of native scenes in order to aid in attracting visitors to the islands.

Among the artists present yesterday were Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Gates (Mr. Gates is assistant director of Studio House and his wife is executive secretary), Mr. Prentiss Taylor, who went down "on his own" to paint, and Mr. Steven Dohanos. Mrs. Gates, who wore a brown silk frock with a printed blouse, is leaving this week with Mr. Gates for Florida, where they will spend a month.

Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Phillips were on hand to welcome the guests and also present was Miss Betsy Seymour, niece of Mr. C. Law Watkins, who has recently taken a job at Studio House. She is the daughter of Dr. Charles Seymour, recently elected president of Yale University.

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins came in later in the afternoon, wearing a black fur coat with a large fox collar and one of her famous tricornes—her daughter, Miss Suzanne Wilson, was also there in her capacity as receptionist at Studio House. Others there were Dr. Ernest H. Gruening, director of the division of Territories and island possessions, with Mrs. Gruening; Mrs. Frank Letts, Mr. Inslee Hopper, Mr. Paul Daniels, Mrs. Charles Carroll Glover, jr., Mrs. Daisy Peck and Mrs. Dean Acheson, herself a well-known artist.

Elizabeth Maxwell Wed to REA Aide

A wedding of interest in Washington took place Wednesday in Johnson City, Tenn., when Miss Elizabeth V. Maxwell became the bride of Mr. Merle Smedberg, of this city. The ceremony was performed at 2 o'clock at the home of the bride.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Smedberg, of Jamestown, N. Y., and is associated here with the Rural Electrification Administration. He was graduated from Carnegie Tech, at Pittsburgh.

Entertainments Planned for Male Dance Group Here March 15.

Friends From Westport to See Recital at Constitution Hall.

The program by Ted Shawn and his men dancers at Constitution Hall March 15 will not only be an event which, in itself will draw members of Washington Society, but will also be the signal for much entertaining.

The Misses Elizabeth and Mary Howry are giving a large cocktail party on the Sunday afternoon preceding the concert. Patrons and patronesses of the event will be among the guests at the affair which is to be in their Georgetown house, 3304 O street, from 5 to 7, with Mr. Shawn, his distinguished composer-accompanist, Jess Meeker, and the eight men of his company, the guests of honor.

They will arrive on Sunday morning from Harrisburg, Pa., where their Saturday program is to be presented. On Monday morning, Mr. Lyle Brookover is planning a breakfast in their honor to which members of the committee for the concert will be invited.

A party of friends of Mr. Brookover, and also of Mr. Shawn, are motoring from Westport, Conn., on Saturday of next week to be here for the program. They include Mr. and Mrs. John Gregg Paine, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Omohundro and Mrs. Paul Hesse, wife of the famous color photographer. They will stay at the Shoreham, and Saturday night will entertain at dinner there, Mr. and Mrs. William Phelps Eno, also of Westport, who are here for a short stay on their way to Florida, have taken a box for the concert.

Parties are expected from Richmond, from Hood College in Frederick, and from elsewhere in nearby Maryland and Virginia for the program. The George Washington University chapter of Mr. Shawn's fraternity, Sigma Phi Epsilon, is planning to entertain the dancers and will attend the dance presentation en masse. Parties of students also will be there from Gunston Hall, Madeira School and National Cathedral School.

Unlike most such events in the Capital, this has a long list of distinguished patrons in addition to the patronesses giving their support to it.

Among them are Senators Theodore Francis Green, Rush D. Holt and John H. Overton; Representative Sol Bloom, Dr. Hans Kindler, Dr. Nikolai Sokoloff, Dr. Kemper Simpson, Dr. Paul J. Ketrick, Dr. Stanley Hornbeck, Mr. Robert F. Kelley, Mr., Percy Atherton, Mr. Charles Mason Remey, Mr. Benjamin Plunkett, Mr. George Bond Cochran, Mr. Paul Bradbury Walter, Mr. Donald S. Dawson, Mr. Henry J. Sullivan, Mr. William Hoadley Powell, Mr. George C. Thorpe, Mr. Charles Morris, Mr. Desmond H. O'Connell, Mr. Samuel Green, Mr. Durham Rodgers, Mr. Richard W. Bonnevalle, Mr. Eben F. Comins, Mr. Charles Bittinger, Mr. Harry Farbman, Mr. J. Leland Williams, Mr. Frederick O. Gaither, Chancellor Joseph M. M. Gray, Mr. Bradish J. Carroll, jr., Mr. Thomas Burke, Mr. Lowell B. Mason, Mr. Francis Bowers, Mr. John Caffrey, Mr. James Spittall Robb, Mr. Hall Scully, Mr. Merle Thorpe, jr., Mr. Elmer Hipsley, Mr. Alexis Rovzar, Mr. John Dennis, Mr. Andrew Horton and Mr. John F. Richter.

Phi Delta Gamma Plans Evening of Games Soon

Alpha Chapter of Phi Delta Gamma National Fraternity for Graduate Women will have an evening of games on Saturday, March 3, at the home of Mrs. Harold E. Warner, 1405 Emerson street.

Miss Imogene Ellis, Miss Isabel Ferguson and Miss Louise Babcock were initiated at the last meeting which was held at the home of Miss Elma Moulton. Mrs. Thelma Harper, who was also pledged, was unable to attend the initiation ceremonies.

Harris & Ewing.

Mrs. J. George Wenzel (right), the former Ruth Anne Remon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Remon, will be at home to her friends on Sunday afternoon at the home of her parents, 3104 Thirty-third place northwest.

Mr. and Mrs. Wenzel have just returned to Washington from Juneau, Alaska, where Mr. Wenzel has been on special assignment for the Treasury Department since last May. They were married in April last year at Seattle, Wash., sailed immediately for Alaska, where they temporarily established their home.

With the transfer of Mr. Wenzel to the Treasury Department here, they will reside for the present with Mr. and Mrs. Remon.

Miss Maria Milne Whitehurst (left), daughter of Capt. and Mrs. H. C. Whitehurst, has been selected as the District of Columbia Princess at the Charleston Azalea Show which will take place from April 11 until April 17.

This will be the second year that Washington has sent a representative to the floral festival. Last year Miss Sylvine Clagett, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Henry Contee Bowie Clagett, was the Capital Princess.

In addition to the Charleston Queen, there are fair ladies of the court sent from many of the nearby States. The week they are in the hospitable Southern city there is a continuous round of gay parties, morning, noon and night.

Miss Whitehurst, who is a graduate of Holton-Arms School, was presented to Washington society two seasons ago.

League of Pen Women Will Mark Anniversary With Program April 3

Three Important Meetings Held by University Women Here.

The fortieth anniversary of the League of American Pen Women will be celebrated April 3 in Washington by the members of the District of Columbia branch and the national organization.

Mrs. Thatcher Hoyt, of Chicago, known in the world of music and literature as Phyllis Fergus Hoyt, national president of the League of American Pen Women, came to Washington this week to make arrangements for the celebration.

Mrs. Hoyt will leave Washington to attend a press conference sponsored by the Chicago Tribune in Chicago next Wednesday and Thursday. She will be honor guest at a banquet for 2,500 women and also present a program of her works at the famous Cordon Club during this conference.

She came to Washington from Minneapolis, where she had the distinction of being one of three women outside Minnesota to be invited as speakers and honor guests for a convention attended by 1,750 representative women's organizations and sponsored by the Minneapolis Tribune.

Before her return to Washington the end of the month to complete final arrangements for the league's birthday party, Mrs. Hoyt will present two programs of her compositions in Battle Creek, Mich., March 13 and 14, and go to Detroit to form a new branch of the league there. While in Chicago she will be honored at a dinner given by Mrs. Frank J. Logan and while in Detroit will be the honor guest of Mrs. Claire Arundell Carman, who will give a tea in her honor March 17.

Mrs. Hoyt will proceed to Cleveland to meet with the committee in charge of arrangemets for the league's May congress in that city. She will then go to Syracuse, N. Y., where she is to be the honor guest at a meeting of the branch of the league in that city.

From Syracuse she will return to Washington about March 25.

Mr. Barrett Prettyman will discuss the Jacobs report on fiscal relations and the four Mapes' bills intended to increase revenue at the civic section luncheon of the Woman's City Club March 20. Mrs. Harris T. Baldwin, chairman of legislation of the League of Women Voters, will discuss Senate Bill 5 to amend the present pure food law in order to prevent false advertising and to control the preparation and sale of cosmetics. Mrs. Grace Dexter Bryan will preside.

Three important meetings took place at the A. A. U. W. yesterday. In the morning, the Martha McLear poetry group met when Dr. Mary Louise Brown discussed the works of the German poet, Hugo von Hofmannstahl, Mrs. Karl Pribram discussed the works of Stefan George and also told about the "Vienna Circle." Miss Ruth Evelyn Henderson presided.

The committee on legislation met in the small ballroom for luncheon. Mrs. E. A. Chapin was in charge.

Miss Florence McCracken, dean of the school of speech of the Marjorie Webster School, was the honor guest at a luncheon sponsored by the drama and poetry groups. After luncheon she spoke on "The Speaking Voice."

Mrs. Hoyt Here Arranging for Celebration of National Unit.

Plans were discussed for the donor luncheon which will be held on May 18 at the Mayflower Hotel. There are many ways by which members and friends can earn their tickets. Information may be obtained from the chairman of the luncheon, Mrs. Harry Brandt, or her co-chairman, Mrs. Nathan Peck. The entertainment for the affair will be under the direction of Mrs. Albert W. Jacobson.

A junior women's group of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, to be known as Central Iota Sigma, was organized Wednesday evening at Hamline Methodist Church by Mrs. Ida Ramsey, Mrs. Marie Brinley, Mrs. Florence Warner and Miss Mary Pettis of the District union.

Officers for the newly formed union are: Mrs. Clara Blystone, president; Mrs. Ellen Russell, vice president; Mrs. John Shouse, treasurer; Ruth Perkins, recording secretary and Mrs. Emma Covert, corresponding secretary.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

What to Do? Asks Girl Unhappy in Rebound Marriage She Made After Two Weeks' Acquaintance.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: This is the first time I have had cause to write you, although I am a constant reader of your column. I went with a boy for two and a half years. Then we broke over something very silly. We were both very headstrong and stopped seeing each other entirely. I went out with other boys and tried to forget him. Eight months later, on January 1, I met another boy at a party. I thought he was nice but when I went home I forgot all about him, even his name. He called the next day and asked for a date. I gave him one the following night. We went out and I enjoyed myself very much. We had several dates and then he asked me to marry him. I don't know why I did so, but I said "yes." We were married on January 16, and the other boy came to the wedding. When I saw him I knew I should never have married. But it was too late.

• • • •

My husband is almost a stranger to me. He doesn't like to dance or to be with a crowd or any of the things I like. He told me that he wanted children, and likes to stay home nights. I am very young and do not want children, particularly not his children. I am very cold toward him. I try not to be but I can't help it. I am still in love with the other boy, although I try not to think of him or see him.

• • • •

My husband and I have talked divorce. But he cries and carries on so that I really don't know what to do. Yet I know that I can never love him. Please see if you can help me solve this. Thanking you in advance, I am, sincerely, UNHAPPY BRIDE.

The Thing to Do.

DEAR UNHAPPY BRIDE: For your pride's sake, your character's sake, your happiness' sake and your husband's sake, you should give your marriage (ill advised though it may have been) a fair trial, which you haven't done to date. If the other man hadn't come to the wedding you might have gone off on your honeymoon in a lighter hearted, more approachable and more co-operative frame of mind. As it was, you went with a blight on your personality, a fresh wound in your heart, and a heavy resentment against your husband in your mind. Small wonder you have found no happiness and no kinship with him.

• • • •

Instead of talking divorce just now, I suggest you talk ways and means of saving the relationship if possible. Tell your husband you don't love him—yet; that you don't want children—yet; that you wish to play for a while longer. Child psychologists say the play bond is the strongest of all, and it is not unlikely if you and your husband would spend your evenings going places, seeing people and doing things together, treating each other with the cheerful courtesy and consideration you would show each other as beau and sweetheart, instead of sitting home brooding over your mistaken marriage, that you might find in the course of a few months it had not been a mistake at all; that you really liked each other very much; respected each other very much, and had grown almost inseparably dependent upon each other.

• • • •

You have said nothing about your husband's qualities of mind, heart or character. One gathers only that he believes he loves you very much. If he possesses reach and delicacy of imagination; decency and strength of character; the ability and willingness to discipline his emotions; might be willing to put the marriage on a companionate basis for a few months, leaving you entirely free to find yourself all over again, insofar as your emotional reaction to him is concerned. In the meantime, if he is wise and strong, genuinely in love with you and profoundly hopeful of winning your lasting love, he would court you with all the gallantry, tenderness and consideration that his imagination could devise.

• • • •

Such conduct on his part—which I am free to admit would be noble and chivalrous in the extreme—would give you time and opportunity for outgrowing that frightening feeling of strangeness that paralyzes you now; and his tenderness and consideration for you would inevitably beget a reciprocal tenderness and consideration on your part for him.

• • • •

If such a contract can be effected, you might agree to postpone all talk of divorce until the trial period is ended. If at the end of a few months, he still seems as much of a stranger to you as ever; still as objectionable, emotionally; still completely disinterested in social life outside the home; in short, if both remain unalterably incompatible, then I am sure it would be best to separate completely and finally. It would be a great tragedy for children to be born into a marriage where a mother was convinced she actively and irrevocably disliked the father. M. H.

Claire Tilden Dress Pattern

THERE'S MUCH ado about jaunty sports frocks this season, for they are being worn everywhere and dubbed rulers of fashion! And you'll want to make this sparkling model as soon as you see it, for it's one of Claire Tilden's smartest styles, and a pattern that's made in a jiffy. Crisp linen or cotton crash (in some of those delectable new colors), tie-silk, or synthetic will prove effective fabrics—and not too expensive for a limited budget. You'll glory in the youthfulness of your Eton collar, handy patch pocket, spic-and-span yoke, and short, comfortable sleeves! Detailed Sewing Guide accompanies this pattern.

Pattern 305 is cut in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires 3⅛ yards 36-inch fabric.

Send 15 cents in coin or stamps (preferably coins) for this pattern. Write clearly size, name, address and style number.

Send orders to The Washington Post, Pattern Department, 70 Fifth avenue, New York, N. Y.

Too Much Smoking Viewed Harmful

Obstetricians Advise Against Excess in Practice.

"MAY I SMOKE? Will it harm my baby?"

Dr. Alexander Campbell, a prominent obstetrician of Grand Rapids, says: "Better not—unless it can be done in moderation."

As reported in the American Journal of Obstetrics and Gynecology, Dr. Campbell sent a questionnaire to leading obstetricians of the United States asking whether the smoking and inhalation of 25 or more cigarettes daily have an unfavorable effect on the health of the mother and unborn baby.

Sports Shoes Advised For Foreign Travelers

One of the greatest sources of worry to inexperienced travelers is their choice of shoes, according to the travel-adviser of a New England department store. It takes sturdy sports shoes with low built-up heels to negotiate the rough roads and cobblestone streets in many foreign ports, she claims. As minimum requirements for a short boat trip with stops ashore she recommends at least one pair each of special shoes for deck sports, walking, spectator wear, bathing and dancing.

'Clerical' Touch for Spring

Feminize your simple frocks for spring, advise fashion designers. One of the most effective ways of doing this, is the addition of collars, made of cotton materials, preferably white. There are numerous collar styles from which to make a choice, depending upon the neckline of your costume, your facial contour and your coiffure. Both simple and complicated stylings are fashionable. The clerical collar above is adaptable to almost any neckline or person, and is easily fashioned of mercerized crochet cotton and rick-rack braid. Directions for making may be obtained by sending a three-cent stamp to Ethel Ehlen, Fashion Editor of The Post.

Today's HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Logan Clendening.

Causes of Persistent Coughs.

The severe epidemic of what was generally called flu throughout the United States during the winter now ending, has left a number of people with a persistent and irritating cough, and we have received many inquiries as to what to do about this.

The cough has been quite thoroughly studied, even to the extent of taking volunteer patients and putting hollow needles into the pleural cavity in the space between the lung and the chest wall in order to measure the changes of pressure during a cough.

A cough has been called by Dr. Jackson, "The watch-dog of the bronchial tree." By this he meant, of course, that cough is a protective mechanism which is designed to empty all the bronchial tubes of infectious secretion. But it also has certain dangers. It not only empties the infectious material from the lungs and bronchi, but it also spreads this material around from an infected area to an uninfected area.

Studying the actual physiology of cough, and making note of the various changes in pressure, it has been described as having three phases:

(1) The Inspiratory Phase: During this the patient is impelled by reflex nervous actions to take a big breath so as to fill the lungs with air.

(2) The Compression Phase: In this the chest begins to shut down, but the glottis or vocal cords are closed. This creates a strong positive pressure within the chest and within the bronchial tubes.

(3) The Expulsive Phase: In this the glottis is slightly open, allowing forceful expression of the previously compressed air and secretion.

In these actions, the muscles of the chest wall do most of the work; the diaphragm does not get in it to any extent.

A cough has been compared with the action of a gun. The first phase is the loading of the gun; the second, or compression phase, is the explosion of the powder and the building up of pressure, and the third is the expulsion of the bullet.

Cought itself is a helpful thing so long as it results in bringing up the last remains of an inflammatory residue from grippe or influenza. But it may get to be habitual, due to the irritation of the larynx and the persistence of the cough reflex, in which case measures should be taken to stop it with steam inhalations, sedatives, cough lozenges, etc. Rest in bed for a day with a cold compress on the throat, will often terminate a cough which yields to no other measures.

Any persistent cough, however—that is, one that lasts over three weeks, should be investigated, as it may be the result of something not quite so simple as plain convalescence from flu.

Cinnamon Toast Ideal for Meals Or With Snack

Problem of Bare Cupboard May Be Solved by New, Simple Recipe.

By Rebekah Blake.

A DOZEN TIMES a week there arises a need for in-between snacks and the cupboard is often seemingly bare. Children coming home from school, an unexpected friendly call or a sudden game of afternoon bridge with three neighbors may find the house without a crumb of cake, but—be nonchalant and serve cinnamon toast. It is simple to make and is delicious and fragrant enough to impress company; it's wholesome for children and so cheap that you won't have any regrets about extravagance. Served daintily with a cup of tea to adults, or with a glass of milk for the children, you have dispensed hospitality in a generous and adequate way.

Whole wheat, graham, bran, cracked wheat, raisin or plain white bread. All may be successfully used for cinnamon toast.

For the best results cut the bread about a quarter of an inch thick and toast the slices on one side. Spread the other side with butter creamed with vanilla—1 teaspoon of vanilla to 4 tablespoons of butter is a good proportion—and then sprinkle over this mixture of 3 teaspoons of cinnamon to every tablespoon powdered sugar. The commercially prepared mixture of cinnamon and granulated sugar also makes a very satisfactory spread. Now put the toast in the broiler, but not too close to the flame, and let it remain there until the sugar has melted and the bread is golden brown. Serve hot, of course.

Twenty Second Cinnamon Rolls.

2 cups bread flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons shortening
2-3 cup milk
Melted butter
Cinnamon

Sift the flour, baking powder and salt, then cut in the shortening and add the milk. Stir lightly for 20 seconds. Toss on a floured board and knead 20 seconds. Roll dough ¼-inch thick, and spread generously with melted butter, brown sugar and cinnamon. Roll like a jelly roll and cut into 1-inch slices. Bake with cut side up in a hot oven for about 12 or 15 minutes.

Spiced Bran Muffins.

¾ cup wheat bran
½ cup molasses
1 egg
2 tablespoons melted shortening
1½ cups flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon each cinnamon, nutmeg and cloves
1-3 cup small raisins

Pour milk over wheat bran and let stand 10 minutes. Add molasses, beaten egg and melted shortening. Sift all dry ingredients together and stir in the raisins. Add dry ingredients to the first mixture, stirring only enough to dampen the flour. Fill small greased muffin pans 2-3 full and bake in a moderate oven for about 25 minutes.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

New York, March 4.

LESLIE HOWARD, the unhappiest Hamlet in many years, ends his losing bout with the lachrymose Dane tomorrow night and will resume his slavery in the movie rolling-mills shortly thereafter.

ALICE HUGHES.

Leslie's unhappy tangle with Shakespeare's psychopathic case is one of the strangest and most miserable in many years. What a terrific matinee-idol the wistful one is! Here in New York the girls, besieging the stage door, actually call out the mounted police. In gentle, romantic comedy he is unapproachable—both on stage and screen. His local triumph in "The Pertified Forest" was really amazing. Yet put him in the doublet and hose of the classic drama, and he seems entirely lost.

The quiet, winning charm which makes him so perfect in that type of unpretentious show is the very quality which whips him in thunder and lightning drama.

• • • •

Poor Leslie! His failure opposite the lovely Juliet of Shearer was followed by a floppo no less dire as Hamlet on the Broadway stage. True, he was playing against the flashing young Londoner, John Gielgud, whose Hamlet was a dashing, superb tour de force, but that made the Howard failure all the more dire.

• • • •

I mention Howard's failure in two classic roles in one season, because we're all devoted to him, because he was the first actor to bring superlative charm to our stage and screen, and because we wish him well. So good luck, Les, in your own metier.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—The big movie hit of the hour here is the new Grace Moore film, "When You're in Love." And is she a smart show-woman, this big Jellico blonde! At the premiere at our Radio City Music Hall she turned up on the dot at intermission, swimming in floodlight, and that lovely smile going full blast. She even waved her hanky at the 6,000 worshiping customers, then was hostess to a big group of Large, Invited Names. In short, it was a typical Grace Moore triumph, and when Grace bears down hard, such things are guaranteed! . . .

My Austrian correspondent ships me a droll tale from the Enzfeld Rothschild residence where the Duke of Windsor is now taking pot-luck. It seems that the hosts are a quiet lot, turning in early and munching food of the simplest. But for the Royal Duke it appears that the night begins late—with dinner at some such hour as 10:30. Then, when the polite but worn Rothschilds are just about to roll over for that first sweet sleep, His Grace gets out his pet bagpipes and does a bit of loud skirling about the castle grounds. That, I feel, is going it a bit far. Perhaps old Dr. Freud should be called in to give the royal guest a bit of a going over!

"Nights" for charity seem to be the hotsy-totsy here this winter. We have had "nights" in Moscow, Budapest and Warsaw and now Mrs. Constantine Ro Goodlet, active in good works, having smashed over a "Night in St. Petersburg," is planning a "Night in Bagdad" to help the Red Cross. Might I suggest, in a nice way, that a "night in New York" might be considerable fun?

Casual Look Marks Spring Sport Wear

Although fine tailoring is still at a premium, it's no longer chic to look mannish. The most interesting feature of this season's sports apparel is a casual look that requires that utmost care in fitting, grooming and choice of accessories.

Glove stitching, tricky pockets and odd buttons are some of the more radical style departures on sports clothes. In most of the recent models, skirts are widened at the hem-line by flared insets rather than pressed pleats. Tweed suits are often accompanied by blouses trimmed with tucking, jabots and other feminine details.

Mother Suffers If She Peruses Child's Papers

Spying on Letters, Diaries Creates Distrust in Youthful Mind.

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

MRS. BROWN had no compunctions about reading her children's letters and diaries. Ther most private correspondence and secret outpourings of soul were not safe from her. She would hunt these out in their absence and read them, sometimes even using against the child the information gained by these underhand methods.

When, however, she found one day one of her children at her desk looking over its contents, her anger was unbounded. She accused the child of dishonesty, sneaking and underhandedness.

And yet, why the child more than the mother? Surely even a child has a right to the same privacy of thought and expression which is granted to an adult. But many mothers consider a child so much a part of themselves as to deny him freedom of thought and speech as well as of action.

Reading a child's private papers is, to say the least, unwise. The mother who does it had better hold her tongue about her discoveries. If the child learns that he is being spied upon, trouble is sure to follow. If it is dishonorable to read the correspondence of others without permission, there are no exceptions to the rule.

The child who finds out that his papers have been read and tampered with will be quite justified in feeling outraged. In future he will probably be more careful to hide his belongings, and he will develop a definite suspicion and distrust of the person who has been spying.

No mutual trust and confidence can be founded on such a basis. Privacy is essential for young as well as old, and the parent who will not grant it to his children, will find himself shut out from their lives.

Troika to Offer Old Favorites In Song Sketch

'The Month of May' Is Title of Skit by Wadimoff, the Impresario.

By Chanticleer.

It may be March to most of us, but it's "The Month of May" at the Russian Troika. Emil Wadimoff, the Troika's guitar-playing basso and impresario, has produced a brand-new sketch by that name. It depicts the meeting of an old lady and gentleman, who reminisce and sing lovely songs of the past. Portrayed by Wadimoff and Marusia Sava.

The sketch originally was produced in the "Chauve Souris" and is now adapted to the smaller chorus and facilities of the night club. Wadimoff also brings the atmosphere of Paris to Troika patrons, as he has that of Moccow, in an Apache number featuring Lolik and Orlik, the dancers. In both sketches, the background is provided by the Troika's large company.

Incidentally, a true Balalaika effect will be provided all gypsy chorus numbers in the future—only guitars for accompaniment. No orchestra. Zinaida Nicolina contributes "Mon Homme," in French, this week.

Big event at the Mayfair next week. The eleventh, to be exact. That would be the second anniversary of this popular Cafe of All Nations. Manager Jimmy Byrd promises some very uxtry special goings-on.

• • • •

Al Spieldock is putting across some delightful novelty effects at the Madrillon these days. Al (the drummer in the band) writes lyrics for popular tunes and then assigns them to members of the chorus, many in dialect. The latest is "I'm an Old Cowhand." Helen Forest and Johnny Robb are clicking with their boy-and-girl songs and no little attention is being given the new bull fiddle player in Johnny Shaw's Versatile Sextet. He plays the vibraphone.

This is Barn Dance weather—and Wednesday night is Barn Dance night at the Boulevard Farms, the suburban steak-and-chicken dinner spot just below Alexandria on the Memorial highway. Harry King and his hillbillies play for the Barn Dance gatherings—with Al Shea and his ork on hand every night for dancing.

Lester Cole and his Midshipmen are coming to the Shoreham, March 12. Their's is a complete show commanding the highest vaudeville prices. They were at the Shoreham for a week last year and are back again by no accident. The citizens liked them then verree much. The One-to-Two Club, with Al Kamons, Jimmy Shimer, Mike Fera and Dave Legum, is proving something of a sensation. Drop in for it.

Eddie Duchin, so my spies say, has been haunting the Raleigh's Pall Mall Room this week, visiting with his old friend, Sammy Robbins. Which reminds me: Duchin's favorite dish is the Raleigh's Lily Pons Salad.

On the Air Today

WJSV's "Help Wanted" program last Tuesday night produced temporary jobs for 11 men, rent money to stop eviction of one family and numerous offers of clothing. The second program was presented last night and results virtually guarantee indefinite continuance of the feature, presented under the auspices of the Community Chest and Board of Public Welfare.

All telephone calls received are referred to the applications secretary of the Chest who in turn has the co-operation of the various Chest agencies. The series is designed to give Washington firsthand information on particular cases representative of the employable persons in the city who are not eligible for relief. These are estimated at 3,000 in number.

The majority of these cases are the more tragic because of the inability of the welfare board to give help. And Community Chest agencies are caring for their maximum. WJSV advises that each person interviewed in the air program is a bona fide resident of the District and is in need of employment or other aid. No names are given but prospective employers can be supplied with names and records of any person appearing.

Here and there: Gordon Hittenmark, WRC's timekeeper, celebrates a birthday anniversary today. George Ford is having a big party with a cake 'n' all the trimmings . . . Tony Martin, now singing with Burns and Allen Wednesday nights, will remain with the series after the comedy team leaves March 31 to work for new sponsors. Martin will share a billing in the new show with Ken Murray for four weeks. Then, it is understood, he will jump to "Hollywood Hotel" and replace Fred MacMurray . . . Jack Benny comes East next week. His show will originate in Radio City and more than 10,000 requests for tickets have been received already. And Benny does not favor large studio audiences! Don Wilson gives up three other programs in order to stay with the itinerant Benny. He gets a leave of absence from the "Twin Stars," Speaks-Crooks and Cobb shows.

Nelson B. Bell About The Show Shops

It Was a Decade and a Half Ago That the Postmaster General in the Harding Cabinet Resigned to Accept Post as Head of the Motion Picture Industry, Since Which Time He Has Rendered Yeoman's Service; Nuns to See 'Cloistered,' as Guests of the Rialto; News Items and Gossip of the Theater.

TODAY Will H. Hays is celebrating the fifteenth anniversary of his assumption of the presidency of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., an office that has been responsible for his being dubbed the "czar of the movies."

BELL.

Mr. Hays is in no sense a "czar." His power is not absolute, but it is great. His energies, instead of having been dedicated to the creation of a "dictatorship," have been devoted to safeguarding the best interests of the cinema in the vital matters of integrity, wholesomeness and a strict observance of the ethics of an industry that has come to be one of the most important in the world.

I well remember the night in the National Press Club, in Washington, when Will Hays announced his intention of resigning the Postmaster Generaliship in the Cabinet of the late Warren Gamaliel Harding to assume the responsibilities of co-ordinating the diverse ramifications of a giant enterprise that was running more or less riot.

He made the avowal that night that "I am a crusader at heart." He has been a crusader ever since for everything that the motion picture industry ought to stand for and is standing for in constantly increasing measure. This is evidenced by his recent audience with His Holiness, the Pope, in Rome, and with Mussolini, which enabled him to secure concessions never before granted the American film industry.

Instead of being a "dictator," Will Hays has been more of a conciliator, bringing to the complex requirements of his administrative position a fairness of viewpoint, a diplomatic acumen and a stanch adherence to what he has conceived to be right that have stamped him as one of the foremost executives of his day.

To be sure, he has surrounded himself with an able staff of hand-picked assistants, but the fact remains that the mainspring of the picture industry's emergence from its diffusion of effort and purpose has been principally due to the guidance of Will H. Hays during the past decade and a half. He has done a fine job.

The congratulations of this department are hereby extended to this able fellow-Hoosier, along with the hope that he will continue long to render the invaluable service of the past 15 years to an industry that might easily have gone on the rocks without him.

The necessity of hurried composing-room deletions from the caption of the two-column cut appearing on this page yesterday, left lines that seemed to indicate that the name of the actress appearing with "Patsy" in the picture was Honoria Flanagan. That was merely her stage name. The actress, of course, was Sara Allgood, that admirable former member of the Abbey Theater Company of Irish Players from Dublin, who recently transferred her talents to the London stage and now comes again to America to play the role she created on the other side in James Bridie's "Storm Over Patsy," currently convulsing audiences at the National.

• • • •

"Red" Skelton, who comes to the stage of Loew's Capitol Theater today as master of ceremonise of the "Red Rhythm Revue," has donated a sportsmanship trophy to be awarded to the young boxer exhibiting the best brand of skill and sportsmanship in the Junior A. A. U. Golden Gloves championships, now in progress.

Immediately after his last stage performance tonight, "Red" will rush to the Metropolitan Police Boys Club gym to witness some of the final bouts in the championship series, as well as to present his handsome cup to the A. A. U. officials who, in turn, will make the award.

• • • •

Day Tuttle, director of the Washington Civic Theater, left Washington yesterday on a short trip to California to line up picture talent for the eighth season of the Westchester Playhouse at Mount Kisco, N. Y., which he and Richard Skinner will open late in June. While Mr. Tuttle is in California, rehearsals for "Girls in Uniform," the next Civic Theater production, opening in the Wardman Park Theater on March 31, will be directed by Constance Connor Brown, director of the Studio of Theater Arts, allied with the Civic Theater as a source of new acting material. Tuttle will return from the West Coast in time to supervise the last week of rehearsals of the play.

• • • •

Nuns of Washington will be the guests of the Rialto Theater tomorrow morning at a special showing of "Cloistered" at 9:30 o'clock. The sisters who will attend this performance are members of the following orders: Sisters of Bon Secour, Sisters of the Holy Name, Sisters of Nazareth, Sisters of Notre Dame, Sisters of Providence, Sisters of St. Joseph and Sisters of the Third Franciscan Order.

These groups differ from the Sisters of the Good Shepherd, depicted in the film, in that they are not shut off from the world. Because the Sisters of the Good Shepherd in Washington cannot leave their convent, the picture will be shown to them Sunday morning in the convent.

• • • •

There are two dogs before the public in a histrionic capacity that deserves a word of commendation. One is "Patsy," the pooch of the title of "Storm Over Patsy," at the National, and the other is "Corky," the equally shaggy and unkempt mongrel that plays the important part of "Zodiac" with Joe E. Brown in "When's Your Birthday?" at RKO-Keith's. These two young fellows are tops in their field and lend a touch of humor to their respective plays that will justify the cost of admission tickets to every dog-lover.

• • • •

Personal aside to Chester Mann, who wrote The Post under date of March 1, concerning Mr. Pegler's article in the paper of that date and a review of a local show, opening Sunday: Minsky burlesque does not play Washington. The Gayety attractions are productions of the Independent Burlesque Association and are of quite a different stamp.

Boy Missing Here.

Police yesterday were asked to keep a lookout for 15-year-old Elmer Maddox, who disappeared from his home, 223 H street northwest, last Saturday. He was reported missing by his father who told police the boy might have joined a traveling carnival.

D. C. Juvenile Court Bill Hearing Due Tomorrow

A public hearing on the District Juvenile Court bill was scheduled yesterday for 10 o'clock tomorrow morning by the special subcommittee of the Senate District Committee. Senator Copeland (Democrat), of New York, is chairman. The hearing will be in the Senate District Committee room in the Capitol.

The bill passed the House on Monday without opposition, but George E. Sullivan, local attorney, has since been voicing objections to it.

A New Combination of Film Stars

When "The King and the Chorus Girl" comes soon to a local screen—probably at the Earle—the principal roles will be played by a newcomer and an old favorite, in the persons of Fernand Gravet and Joan Blondell, whose likenesses are herewith reproduced. Great things are prophesied for this newly imported young leading man.

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDDLER

Hollywood, March 4.—Legitimate fan clubs are a boon to stars, but there has sprung into prominence an illegitimate offspring that promises, if not erased, to deal a death blow to all clubs. Studios are now making a concerted drive to do away with the innocuous type of fan organization. Failing that, they threaten, to demand that all stars cease to co-operate with all clubs.

JEAN HARLOW.

A fan club, in case you do not know, is an organized group of people united to boost a favored star. The Jean Harlow Club, for example, has branches all over the country, and its hundreds of members support Miss Harlow in every conceivable way. They receive for their loyalty, photographs of Jean and perhaps occasional letters. The officers of the club devote payless hours to printing a club periodical which is distributed to members.

The Harlow club happens to be honest—but there are dozens of racketeering guilds. These victimize members, charging from 50 cents to $2 annually to belong and giving only a few cheap circulars and perhaps a small picture in return. Organizers of these racket-clubs also attempt to milk the stars by asking money for typewriters, mimeograph machines, photographs and paper. Some have even requested money for personal gifts, supposedly in payment for their time and efforts.

It is this latter type of club that studios wish to stamp out, because their dishonesty makes it difficult for upright organizations to exist. Police in various cities have already been asked to investigate at the source of several suspected guilds. If the police fail, postal authorities will be invited into the picture.

Here is a nice little anecdote, somewhat late coming to light, that may offset some of the not-so-nice stories about Katharine Hepburn. In one of her playful moods, Katty was racing about a set in pursuit of Director George Stevens. Making a quick turn, she lost footing and grabbed for the nearest support. Her hand clutched an assistant director's coat pocket, which was promptly ripped loose. Within the hour, the colony's most exclusive tailor arrived on the set to measure the a. d. for a new suit.

An amusing story is told on Merle Oberon. Seems that she was approached by a watch company which desired her opinion of its product. In return for possible indorsement, the manufacturer offered a beautiful watch. The star rejected the offer, although she had long worn and liked a similar watch. Two weeks later, a representative of Miss Oberon's studio called the agency to say Merle had reconsidered. She had found a friend who needed a watch, and this looked like a good way to provide.

Which reminds of another such story. Glenda Farrell was invited to pose for pictures to be used in a shoe advertisement. She obliged, and soon received a letter from the manufacturer who suggested that if she would call at the firm's Hollywood branch, she would receive a gift. Thinking it to be something trivial, Miss Farrell carelessly tossed the letter to her maid, with "Here, you may have this." Next morning, to Glenda's complete chagrin, the maid showed up with a dozen pairs of $15 shoes in all the latest modes.

The Post's New Yorker

By LEONARD LYONS

Miami Beach, March 4.

POWELL CROSLEY, ringsiding at the Royal Palm Club, thanked Harry Richman for attracting so much publicity to himself when he sold the Lady Peace to Robert Cuse for use in Spain. Attention thus was diverted from the fact that planes belonging to W. K. Vanderbilt and Howard Hughes also had been sold to Cuse and now are in Madrid . . . The gaming tables still are jammed here, with an average of $10,000 riding on every roll of the dice. Joe Schenck, who just arrived, couldn't find room at the dice tables and made his wagers from the lookout's ladder . . . Rodney McLennan caught a 7-foot record sailfish and posed with his catch for the news photographers. They were so nervous that the developed photo showed McLennan merely holding a line. The fish had been cut out of the picture!

NEW YORK'S Police Commissioner Valentine was invited to a cocktail party by one of his intimate friends. The latter proposed a toast: "Here's to Crime." Valentine, who couldn't see the humor of it, refused to drink . . . Lee Shubert, who produced the revival of "Floradora" last season, refused to bet on Floradora, which ran in the fourth at Hialeah Saturday. The horse won . . . Seymour Weiss, who had arranged to leave here and return to New Orleans to attend the Democratic Victory Dinner there, likes Miami too much. He phoned Gov. Leche and suggested: "What's our campaign quota, $5,000? The committee has the money, so let's just send the check and cancel the dinner." The dinner was canceled and Weiss' stay here thus is prolonged.

DR. THOMAS OTTO, who just received his commission as honorary chief of the International Police, was at the Miami depot to greet J. Edgar Hoover. Otto's first official act, by virtue of his commission, was to welcome Hoover—by placing his brand-new handcuffs around the G-man's wrists. And the doctor was embarrassed no little when he discovered that he was unable to remove those handcuffs. He had forgotten the key!

THE YANKEE network for the last few weeks has been featuring a hill-billy song called "Old Ladies' Home" on its radio programs. The author's name on the sheet music is given as Lem Martin. Lem Martin, author of that hill-billy hit, actually is a Ludlow street hill-billy named Irving Caesar . . . The charity auction at Jack Dempsey's Friday night netted exactly $2.40. The disgusted promoters called upon the cigarette girl there to make a speech and then presented her with the receipts . . . Universal Films, anxious to win academy awards for "My Man Godfrey," registered every character who appeared in that movie to assure some prize from the committee. But they forgot to register the picture itself!

EDWARD T. STOTESBURY tendered his annual birthday party Friday evening in Palm Beach. As is his custom, Stotesbury stood up on a chair and sang "The Old Family Tooth Brush." Then, on the Grenadier Guards' drum sent to him from London, he played the Civil War songs reminiscent of the days when he was a drummer boy in '61—"Marching Through Georgia" and "Dixie." . . . Meyer Davis' band then started to play "Stars and Stripes Forever." "Wait a minute," Stotesbury said, "I don't think that's any good for me. But I'll take it." At 7:30, before retiring, he stared at his birthday cake with its lit candles. "Go ahead," he was urged, "blow 'em out." . . . Stotesbury studied the 88 candles, shrugged his shoulders, sighed: "That's too many for me"—and went off to bed!

• • • •

GOOSE GOSLIN, the ball player, struck out with the dice Saturday night . . . Charles Ford, who produced the G-man short, "You Can't Get Away With It," couldn't get away with it at Hialeah Saturday. He didn't have a winner in eight races. That short, incidentally, already has been translated for exhibition in Spain, France and Arabia . . . Hirsch Jacobs, ribbing two guests in his box at the racetrack, told them: "Don't bother placing your bets with the pari-mutuel machine. I'll just signal my bookie downstairs and he'll make the bet for you." Jacobs then wagged his arms mysteriously and nodded to the guests: "It's okay. He got it." Five minutes later a befuddled page boy brought three orders of hamburger to Jacobs' box!

Luise Rainer Receives 1936 Acting Award

By the Associated Press.

Hollywood, Calif., March 4.—Luise Rainer received the award of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences tonight for the best performance by an actress in 1936, for her work in "The Great Ziegfeld."

Paul Muni was voted the award for the best performance by an actor, for his portrayal of the title role in "The Story of Louis Pasteur."

Awards for the best supporting actress and actor went to Gail Sondergaard for her work in "Anthony Adverse," and to Walter Brennan for his performance in "Come and Get It."

The best production was held to have been "The Great Ziegfeld."

Authors Win Twice.

Sheridan Gibney and Pierre Collings were double winners, taking the awards jointly for the best original screen story and the best screen play, "The Story of Louis Pasteur."

Miss Rainer won the principal woman's award for the second motion picture she made in her life. In "The Great Ziegfeld" her role was that of Anne Held, Ziegfeld's French first wife.

A Viennese, the brunette, brown-eyed Luise was discovered by a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer talent scout on the European stage, where she had appeared for Max Reinhardt among other producers.

Speaking little English when she arrived, she found the Hollywood spotlight full upon her one day when Myrna Loy staged a walk-out and deserted her role in "Escapade," opposite William Powell. Miss Rainer was thrust into the vacancy, and her performance won her co-starring honors, although she was then unknown.

Also in "Good Earth."

Again opposite Powell in "The Great Ziegfeld," she showed emotional depths as well as the sprightly elfin qualities of her first hit. Since then she has scored heavily in the dramatic highlight of her career to date—the role of the Chinese wife in "The Good Earth."

Something of a recluse, given to long walks in sun and rain, attired in boyish slacks, her windblown bob uncovered, Miss Rainer surprised Hollywood two months ago by marrying, without preliminary fanfare of ballyhoo, the brilliant young playwright, Clifford Odets.

Muni was born Muni Weisenfreund in Lemberg, Austria. He is 41 years old.

Both his parents were stage players, and Muni received early stage training in the Yiddish Art Theater of New York. His screen career began in 1928. His first important hit was in the title role of "Scarface." He scored heavily soon afterward in "I Am a Fugtive From a Chain Gang," and "The World Changes."

He has become known in Hollywood as an expert portrayer of heavily dramatic roles.

Comdr. Paul Huschke Will Be Buried Today

Lieut. Comdr. Paul W. F. Huschke, executive officer of the submarine tender Holland, who was found dead aboard the vessel at San Diego, Calif., February 26 will be buried in Arlington Cemetery at 10 a. m. today with military honors.

Officiating will be Lieut. Comdr. Joseph H. Brooks, of the Navy Chaplain Corps. Honorary pallbearers will include Comdrs. E. M. Senn, M. Comstock, G. W. Clark, D. A. Spencer, L. E. Kelly and J. P. Conover, jr., all naval officers.

Will Continue to Purloin Pearls

As Fay Cheyney, the enchanting young woman of the title role, Joan Crawford, pictured above, will continue to steal the duchess' pearls, and then give them back, in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's new picturization of Frederic Lonsdale's stage play of "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney," current at Loew's Palace Theater. Co-stellar roles are played by William Powell, Robert Montgomery, Frank Morgan and Jessie Ralph.

Y.M.C.A. Bazooka Enthusiasts May Enter 15-to-20-Piece Band

If the bazooka band pictured above enters the big Bob Burns-Washington Post bazooka contest one week from tomorrow, it will be a hard group to beat!

That is the prediction of Lew Hall, bazooka instructor, after spending an hour with the Y. M. C. A. bazooka enthusiasts this week.

"Of course, this group may split up into smaller groups and enter the contest in quartets or trios or perhaps a double quartet," Hall says. "But the makings of a fine band are there. If these boys decide to enter as a 15 or 20 piece band—look out, you other bands!"

Hall reports that the Merrick Boys Club, 611 C street northeast, is out for the main merchandise prize award and Mr. McCarthy, of the club, has already perfected a routine for the contest, including a marching song, which will bring the band onto the stage.

The best band or orchestra will receive merchandise in the amount of $25. Prizes will consist of baseball bats, gloves, balls and masks; flashlights, cameras, sweaters, tennis rackets, jackets, roller skates and numerous other items. Smaller awards will go to the best groups of two to eight. Each band should have at least ten members.

Instructor Hall says he also knows of another group that has its eye on the first prize and already has decided that if it wins, only baseball equipment will be selected by the boys. In this way an entire team can be outfitted for spring play.

The big contest will be held between the hours of 8:30 and 10 at the Palace Theater the morning of Saturday, March 13. The first of the big surprises to be provided by Gene Ford, manager of the Palace, will be announced in Sunday's Post.

$3,000,000 Planes Are Sold Abroad

By the Associated Press.

State Department statistics revealed yesterday that foreign nations had placed more than $3,000,000 worth of orders with American aircraft manufacturers last month.

Argentina was the largest purchaser, spending $703,793, of which $376,000 was for military aircraft.

Oil Ship Hits Spanish Mine; Blast Kills 23

By the United Press.

Port Vendres, France, March 4.—Twenty-three men were burned to death today when the Greek steamer, Loukia, struck a submerged Spanish mine near Rosas on the Mediterranean coast of Spain. A gasoline cargo immediately exploded.

Only one member of the crew was saved. He was taken to a hospital in a critical condition by a rescue ship.

The vessel, carrying 3,000 tons of gasoline, was steaming through a storm when it struck the mine. The tragedy occurred in the same area in which the British vessel, Llandovery Castle, and the French freighter, Marie Therese Leborgne, hit mines within the last ten days.

It was understood the explosives were planted by the Spanish rebels to keep ships from loyalist ports in northeast Spain.

Watch Czechoslovakia.

London, March 4 (AP).—Indefinite postponement of the deadline for an international naval and land patrol of Spain raised the question tonight whether diplomats would be able to isolate possibly graver dangers to peace elsewhere in Europe.

Uppermost in many minds was Czechoslovakia, where persistent reports say the German minority, possibly with the help of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler, is planning an insurrection.

The international neutrality committee announced the work of recruiting agents to guard the Hispano-Portuguese borders and ironing out details of the plan to embargo arms and men to the Spanish combatants necessitated abandoning the Saturday night deadline. An attempt, it was said, would be made to establish the patrol Mach 20.

The difficulties in localizing the Spanish civil war set observers to wondering what hope Europe might have should a new danger zone—Czechoslavokia, for instance—develop in the heart of Europe.

Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson.

Winning a Trick Twice.

Sometimes a player can win a trick either in his own hand or in the dummy. Probably the simplest example is the case of Ace-Queen in one hand and King-Jack in the other. When that suit is led, declarer has his choice of winning a trick with the Queen or with the King. His choice must be based on the desirability of leading from one hand rather than the other.

Most players understand that situation clearly but miss an almost identical case—that of trumping one's own winning card. The hand below is a simple example.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

North was perfectly correct in raising spades since he had normal trump support, an honor-trick and a doubleton. South could visualize a game if North's spade raise was not too attenuated. He, therefore, made the highly invitational rebid of three spades—asking North to go to game if his raise had been sound, but to pass if his raise had been shaded. North's hand was just a little too weak to accept the invitation.

West opened a low heart, and declarer won with the King. He saw that he was sure to lose a club and a diamond, and had to hold the trump loss to only two tricks. Of course, he would not be able to do this if all three trumps were with West, and he would have no trouble at all if the trumps were split, but it was necessary to take precautions against finding all the trumps with East.

Before touching the trump suit, therefore, he led a low diamond. West won with the Ace, and led another heart. South won with the Ace, and led a diamond to the Queen. On a trump lead from dummy East stepped up with the King and West discarded.

When he regained the lead by ruffing a heart, South saw that another entry was necessary to lead another trump through East. A low club lead to the King failed to provide the necessary entry, since East won with the Ace. South won the club return, and now had only one way to enter the dummy. He led the King of diamonds and, although it was the highest diamond left, he trumped in dummy.

Another spade lead from dummy enabled South to restrict his trump loss to two tricks, and thus make his contract.

Mrs. Roosevelt Plans Benefit Radio Talks

By the Associated Press.

White House sources said yesterday Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will begin in mid-April a 13-week series of talks on a commercial radio program.

Her compensation, these sources said, will be paid directly to the American Friends Service Committee, a charitable organization with headquarters at Philadelphia.

Suydam Quits JusticePosition For Newspaper

Special Aide to Cummings Joins Newark, N. J., Evening News.

Resignation of Henry Suydam, special executive assistant to the Attorney General, to accept an editorial position with the Newark (N. J.) Evening News, was announced yesterday by the Department of Justice.

In a letter accepting the resignation, Attorney General Homer Cummings expressed "very great regret" at the loss of his aide, who has been a close adviser to the Cabinet officer on matters involving publicity and public relations.

In a letter dated March 1, Suydam reminded the Attorney General of his long-felt desire to return to newspaper work, and pointed out that "a most favorable opportunity" had presented itself.

"The varied duties that have been assigned to me have brought me into contact with all phases of the activities of the department during a most stirring time. I regard it as a privilege to have had such an experience."

Suydam originally was appointed as a special assistant to Cummings with non-legal qualifications in September, 1934. Because of a proviso in last year's appropriation bill against payment of salary to any special assistant not a lawyer, Suydam was reappointed with the new title, "special executive assistant."

In the $10,000 post he has been a confidant of Cummings in matters relating to press, radio and other means of publicizing the activities of the department.

'Frantics, 1937'

"1492 AND WHAT HAVE YOU?" The Chevy Chase Frantics present the musical comedy in a prologue, two acts and seven scenes with four entr'actes, with book by Isabelle Farrington, music and lyrics by Barbara Bramwell, with a special musical number by Sammie Joss and Evelyn Stonehouse. Scenery designed and constructed by Jean McConnnell. Choreography by Billie Jeanne Storer. Production under direction of Maurice Greet. At the Wardman Park Theater. Reviewed Thursday evening by W. A. Whitney.

The Chevy Chase Frantics lived up to their name last night as "1492 and What Have You?" was offered before a theaterful of papas, mamas and friends. For many years now Mrs. Isabelle Farrington has fabricated a musical comedy satire on things politics and they have, for the most part, been entertaining. But the current offering, despite the reaction of the personally interested audience, is, we are sorry to say, far below the usual standard, presenting little in the way of satirical humor, tuneful melodies or action, terpsichorean or otherwise.

The play was well staged by Maurice Greet, but he had little of dramatic worth with which to work.

However, one should not be too hard on the girls, for they did perform with sufficient enthusiasm and exhibited a reasonable degree of stage presence, so whatever shortcomings were apparent were due to other causes than the actual capabilities of the performers.

LOSE UGLY FAT This Easy, Safe Way

How would you like to get rid of that bulging waist, sprawly hips, double chin and at the same time feel better than you have for years?

How would you like to get your weight down toward normal and at the same time develop that urge for activity that makes work a pleasure—also gain in ambition and keenness of mind?

Get on the scales today and see how much you weigh. Then get a 4-oz. jar of Kruschen Salts which costs but a few cents and will last you for weeks. Take one half teaspoonful in a glass of hot water first thing every morning and cut down on fat meats, butter, cream and sugary sweets. After 3 weeks weigh yourself again and note the fat you've lost.

Now you can laugh at the people who pay hundreds of dollars to lose a few pounds of fat—now you'll know the pleasant way to lose unsightly fat and you'll also know that the 6 mineral salts of Kruschen (salts that kidneys, liver, gall bladder and bowels should have to function properly) have helped present you with more glorious health. Dick Metz Shoots a Record 63 for Hollywood Open Golf Lead

This Morning . . . .

With Shirley Povich.

Orlando, Fla., March 4.—The premises at Tinker Field resounded to the cracking of bats today for the first time this season and the approving eyes of Manager Bucky Harris and Owner Clark Griffith watched Second Baseman Buddy Myers send base hits zooming into distant sectors.

Against the pitching of an assortment of hurlers, Myers brought to bear the bat that won him the 1935 batting championship of the American League and gave evidence that he has recovered his hitting eye which failed him last season.

With Jack Salveson, Syd Cohen, Ed Linke and a trio of rookies serving the ball up to the plate, Myer won all the honors in the first day of batting practice. On each appearance at the plate, he slammed the ball solidly on the noggin, sent it rocketing into the outfield and all but deposited it against the far-flung leftfield fence.

* * * *

Like Myer, Bolton banged the ball for goodly distances on a clothesline trajectory that bore the label of "extra-base hit" to the far reaches of the diamond.

* * * *

Pitching Is Sloppy.

With the inauguration of batting practice, the training program began to take on a semblance of fun for the Nats' squad, who took toe holds on the bat and swung from the heels.

The pitching was none too praiseworthy, what with the hurlers having only four days of practice, but that did not deter the hitters, Salveson was the only regular to take his turn on the mound, but tomorrow Jimmy DeShong, Pete Appleton and Monte Weaver will give the hitters something better to look at.

* * * *

There was nothing in the manner in which young Jim Wasdell slammed the ball to disturb Manager Harris' belief that the young first baseman is a genuine "find." Wasdell displayed power incredible for his comparatively small size and served notice that his .323 average with Nashville last year is justified.

* * * *

But Wasdell is something of a misfit at the Nats' camp, with no vacancy at first base where Joe Kuhel gives the Nats excellent protection. Kuhel, perhaps the fanciest fielder among all first basemen in the league, last year drove in more runs than any other Nat and Wasdell is doomed for release to Chattanooga barring a trade in which Kuhel might figure.

* * * *

Cohen Shows Form

"I would have no compunctions against trading Kuhel, because I think that Wasdell would give us swell protection at first base," said Harris, "but we'd have to get a couple of good pitchers in return for Kuhel, and clubs aren't trading pitchers these days.

* * * *

Syd Cohen is perhaps the most advanced on the Nats' pitchers, having worked out during the winter at his El Paso, Tex., home. Harris declares that Cohen need only develop his fast ball to earn a regular place on the Nat staff.

* * * *

The Nats are beginning to excel in other fields. Big Shanty Hogan today gave the Orlando pocket billiard champion a thorough trimming and Harold Conn, batting practice pitcher, won $26 in a shooting gallery by hitting 50 bull's eyes.

* * * *

Charlotte Deal 'In.'

The Charlotte Club of the Piedmont League, today was numbered among the properties of the Washington team after an on-again, off-again deal that was finally clinched by Clark Griffith.

After announcing that the Charlotte franchise would become a part of the Nats' farm system last week, Griffith revealed this morning that Piedmont League officials had failed to agree to terms and the deal was off.

* * * *

Later today, Joe Engel, general manager of the Nats' farm system, arrived in Orlando with the news that league officials had met the Nats' terms and that he had accepted on behalf of Griffith.

Engel installed himself as president of the Charlotte club and appointed Zinn Beck, a Washington scout, as general manager. A playing manager will be appointed later.

* * * *

The Charlotte franchise includes no players, but Engel will staff the team with Washington and Chattanooga cast-offs. The likeliest prospects from the Nats' training school at Orlando will also be transferred to Charlotte.

* * * *

Eight clubs will comprise the Piedmont League this season with Norfolk, Richmond, Rocky Mount, Winston-Salem, Durham, Greensboro and Portsmouth also included. The Winston-Salem team is being sponsored by Gen. Alvin Crowder, former Washington pitcher, who is a restaurant owner in Winston-Salem.

* * * *

The acquisition of the Charlotte franchise expands to five teams the Washington farm system, which now includes Chattanooga in the Class A-1 Southern League; Trenton in the Class A N. Y.-Pa. League, Jacksonville, in the Class B, South Atlantic League, Sanford in the Class D Florida State League, and Charlotte.

Fastest Field in Years Set To Enter Meet at Baltimore

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Looking at it from any angle, tomorrow night's indoor track meet at Baltimore, sponsored jointly by the University of Maryland and Fifth Regiment promises to produce more plain and fancy footwork than a Government worker trying to beat the 9 a. m. bell. Not since the cream of the Nation's trackmen elbowed and hoofed their way around the old Convention Hall's gleaming track in paper-thin crepe shoes has a field of this caliber been assembled in this vicinity.

Virtually all of the men who competed in the Southern Conference games last week are entered, and the three top teams, North Carolina, Duke and Maryland, are entering theirs intact. Virginia, winner of the nonconference division, and Georgetown, runner-up, also have entered sizable delegations and expect to make their presence felt.

From the conference also will come Washington and Lee, Virginia Tech, Richmond, V. M. I. and William and Mary. Other teams competing are Yale, Temple, Navy, Catholic University, Randolph Macon, Johns Hopkins, Washington College, Curb Exchange Athletic Association, Lenox Athletic Club, Sixty-ninth Regiment of New York and the Penn Athletic Club, of Philadelphia.

Some of the outstanding spike stars entered are Graham Gammon, who is entered in the governor's mile, and Jim Finley, a sprinter from North Carolina. Richmond's Joe Lumpkin and Joe McCluskey, of the Curb Exchange Athletic Association, are expected to fight it out in the 2-mile duel. McCluskey was a member of the Olympic team, competing in the steeplechase, considered the most gruelling track test of all.

Yale is sending a pole vaulter who does 13 feet 10 inches consistently in Bill Harding, and also has entered Windman Gary in the sprints and Joe Fox in the 2-mile. Bill Ray, of Curb Exchange, is expected to make a strong bid for the Oriole 660-yard laurels, and Glenn Funk, former Nebraska captains, carrying the colors of the Penn Athletic Club, is counted on for a similar effort in the governor's mile.

Other outstanding contestants are Bill Hopkins, a sensational sophomore sprinter, John Rust, Harney Poe and Duncan Hawley, hurdlers, all from the University of Virginia; Jack Dalton, sprinter, and Ed Scofield, 660-yard, of Navy.

The invitational mile-relay field has been increased to three by the addition of Temple, which has cast its lot with Fordham in an attempt to beat Georgetown's high-stepping quartet. The Hoyas' have another outstanding performer expected to breast the tape a winner in Vincent Braun, who is entered in the governor's mile.

Maryland is banking heavily on its two aces, Coleman Headley, miler, and Frank Cronin, quartermiler and pole-vaulter. Headley is the conference champion at his distance, while Cronin holds the championship as well as both indoor and outdoor records for his event.

Competition starts at 7:30 o'clock with preliminary heats. The finals are scheduled for 8 o'clock and probably will continue until 11 o'clock. Tickets, scaled from 55 cents for general admission to $1.65 for box seats, can be obtained at Maryland, Georgetown and Spalding's.

Easterners Are Choice In Title Tilt

By John R. Vosburgh.

Everything but seats from the rafters is all set for tonight's precedent-shattering basketball game between Eastern and Western in Tech's gymnasium. Marking the first play-off game permitted by the board of principals since the infant days of the interhigh series in 1917, the Southeast sharpshooters confront the gents from Georgetown at 8 p. m.

Reluctant to surrender the champions' royal robes which the school has worn for three years in a row, Eastern takes the court an eye-lash favorite to win its ninth interhigh championship. In two of the years the Lincoln Parkers finished on top, they shared the honor with Central, but no play-offs were allowed.

Eastern needs a victory to jump ahead of Central in number of championships, both having won eight. Tech has won five titles, Business one. Western has never finished in the king-pin position and is closer to it right now than it probably ever has been.

Colley's Return Helps.

Both Coach Mike Kelley, of Eastern, and Coach Cliff Moore, of Western, called brief workouts yesterday. Both have been working for weeks to iron out whatever crude spots marked the previous two meetings of the team. In their first game, Eastern won in the closing seconds, 25-24. In the second, Western tied the score in the closing seconds and then went on to win in an extra period, 35-33.

On both occasions George DeWitt, scrawny Western center, was the chief thorn scratching Eastern's hopes of a title. In the first game he rolled up 9 points to 2 for Clint Quantrille, of Eastern, and then piled up 13 more in the second game to 7 for the Lincoln Park pivotman.

Eastern's chances rose like Russ Lombardy's, scoring total with the recovery of Farmer Colley, whom Kelley believes is a decided improvement to the team on the defense.

The biggest bother from a Western standpoint will be Mr. Lombardy, who has been high scorer for Eastern in his two past performances. For the third time, however, Hugo Schulze, dogged Western guard, has been given the tough assignment of holding Mr. Lombardy in check. Schulze has succeeded in holding that dead-eye shot to three baskets each game, a fairly good night's work, in view of Lombardy's tendency to sink shots in droves.

Capt. Gerald Burns and Paul Heil will be at forward with Hop Lomax at the other guard.

Garden Plans To Sue Champ Within Week

Court Action to Be Started Against Braddock for Breach of Contract.

New York, March 4 (AP).—Madison Square Garden will press its claim on heavyweight boxing champion Jim Braddock for a title bout against Max Schmeling by charging him with "anticipatory breach of contract," it was learned today.

Federal Court action, seeking to enjoin the champion from ignoring his June 3 date with Schmeling and meeting Joe Louis in Chicago on June 22, will be instituted next week, according to Leonard Moore, of the Garden's law firm, Chadbourne, Wallace, Parke & Whiteside.

At the same time, Schmeling's exhibition tour, which was scheduled to open next Monday night in Newark, N. J., has been postponed for ten days or two weeks.

"We've gotta be around until they get the court action under way," said Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager. It's the second postponement of the tour. Originally it was to have started on March 1.

"But we're not calling the tour off," said Jacobs, declaring that the delay was not occasioned by boycott and picket threats by the nonsectarian Anti-Nazi League.

District Girl Loses Again To Patty Berg

By the Associated Press.

St. Augustine, Fla., March 4.—The breaks helped Patty Berg pull out of a hole today, and the Minneapolis redhead advanced to the semifinals of the Florida East Coast Women's golf tournament.

Kathryn Hemphill, of Columbia, S. C., the co-favorite, had things easier. She ousted Goldie Bateson, of Milwaukee, by the convincing margin of 5 and 3.

Her opponent tomorrow, Jane Cothran, of Greenville, S. C., came through with an upset victory over stately Jean Bauer, of Providence, R. I., 5 and 4.

Dorothy Traung, of San Francisco, the other semifinalist, came from behind to win, 2 and 1, over Mrs. William Hockinjos, jr., of Lake Hopatcong, N. J.

When Miss Dettweiler missed a short putt on No. 12 the match with Patty was all even. Another birdie on the short sixteenth gave Miss Berg the lead for the first time, but Miss Dettweiler promptly won No. 17 with a par 4.

The break came on No. 18. The Washington player smothered her second shot and the ball landed in a trap short of the green. She pitched out poorly, then three-putted. On the edge with her second, Patty was down in 5 for the victory.

Anti-Wagering Bill Passes in Texas

Austin, Tex., March 4 (AP).—The Texas Senate today engrossed a bill containing an amendment which would repeal the State law authorizing pari-mutuel wagering on horse racing. Proponents could not obtain a four-fifths majority to advance the measure to final consideration.

The House of Representatives previously had passed by a big majority an outright repeal measure.

Generals Drub South Carolina, 42-21; Wake Forest Wins.

By the United Press.

Raleigh, N. C., March 4.—The University of North Carolina, defending champion, and the top-seeded Generals of Washington and Lee led the way into the semifinals of the Southern Conference basketball tournament in Memorial Auditorium here tonight.

North Carolina staged a brilliant second-half rally to defeat Duke University 34 to 30 in the final game of four first-round encounters.

In the first game Washington and Lee easily defeated the South Carolina Gamecocks, 42 to 21, and Wake Forest beat University of Richmond, 33 to 24.

N. C. State tightened its offensive against Maryland after holding the advantage, 21-20, at the half, and came out victor in a rough-and-tumble affray. Three men were put off the court for personal fouls and one for slugging. Thomas, of Maryland, was forced out of the game by a cut over his eye during the first three minutes.

Mann, Waters Star.

Bill Mann, State forward, and Al Waters, Maryland forward, were standout players. Mann was the individual top scorer, with 15 points gained by seven field goals and one free shot. The first half was a see-saw affair, with neither team more than 4 points ahead at any time.

Rangy Bob Spessard, W. and L. Duke and Carolina battled on even terms through the first half of what was easily the best-played game of the first round. The midway count was 19 to 17 for the Tarheels.

Duke came back from the intermission with a 10-point scoring spurt before Carolina turned on the heat to catch their opponents and move into a 4-point lead. Duke rallied, but the Tarheels battled strongly to maintain their advantage to the final whistle.

center, led the Generals to a complete rout of South Carolina in the opening game before approximately 2,000 persons in Raleigh's municipal auditorium. South Carolina lost its 9-to-8 lead after 12 minutes of play and fell steadily back.

The Generals, tournament favorites, finished the half leading, 17 to 11, and kept up their killing pace through the rest of the game.

Wake Forest Wins.

Wake Forest and Richmond tussled at close quarters in the first half. Tied at 9 to 9 with 14 minutes of the half remaining, they reached midgame with Wake Forert ahead, 18 to 13. Doight Morris, Wake Forest captain, rallied his teammates to add 16 points in the final half while Richmond was scoring 11.

French Star In Semifinals Of Net Play

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 4.—Mme. Sylvia Henrotin, of France, the only foreigner in the national indoor tennis championships, completed the semi-final bracket in the women's division today by defeating Helen Bernhard, of New York, 6—1, 6—1, in the day's only singles match.

Frank Parker, of Spring Lake, N. J., and Gregory Mangin, of New York, men's doubles favorites, advanced on a default early in the day and defeated Frank J. Bowden, of New York, and Gilbert A. Hunt, of Washington, D. C., 6—4, 6—4, to reach the semi-finals.

Miss Taubele and Miss Leboutellier defeated Mrs. H. C. Brunie and Mrs. George Cabot, of New York, 6—2, 6—4, in their semi-final women's doubles meeting today. They meet the defending champions, Mme. Henrotin and Mrs. Dorothy Andrus, of New York, Saturday night. Today they defeated Helen Pedersen, of Stamford, Conn., and Mary McGusty, of New York, 6—3, 6—2.

Wiffy Cox Betters Par by 3 Strokes With a 67, but Trails With 144 Total in Second Round of $3,000 Tourney.

By the Associated Press.

Hollywood, Fla., March 4.—Smiling Dick Metz, of Chicago, sailed around a windy golf course today in 63 strokes to forge to the front of the Hollywood Open field.

His card was 7 strokes under par and 1 under the course record set in the inaugural tournament last year by Tony Penna, of Boca Raton, Fla. With an initial 69, it gave Metz 132 for the halfway mark in the 72-hole event which ends tomorrow.

Ky Laffoon, of Chicago, tied the old mark with a 64. His outward 35 was one under par and he came back with an almost unbelievable 29.

That gave him a 26-hole total of 136 and a tie for second place with Johnny Farrell and Jimmy Hines, of New York. Farrell, former National Open champion and home club pro, added a 69 today to his opening 67. Hines hung up a 65, third lowest score of the day, to go with a 71. One stroke behind them at 137 was Paul Runyan, of White Plains, N. Y., who shot a 66.

Johnny Revolta, of Chicago, the opening round leader with 66, slipped to 72 today and tied at 138 with Walter Scheiber, of New York, who had 71 and 57. Byron Nelson, of Reading, Pa., and Jack Patroni, of Shawnee, Pa., stood next at 139.

Bobby Dunkelberger, of Sedgefield, N. C., and Frank Strafaci, of New York, former public links champion, led the amateurs with 143 Dunkelberger had a 69 today.

A score of 150 qualified some 60 professionals for the final 36 holes tomorrow. It took 152 for the ten amateurs.

Metz, who won the recent Thomasville, Ga., Open, never was over He used only 27 putts. So accurate were his approaches that few of the putts were long, five of the birdies dropping on putts under 8 feet.

He knocked in a 15-footer for a deuce on the short second hole and chipped into the cup from just off the edge of the eighteenth green. Laffon went over par when he three-putted the fifth but carded birdies on the long seventh and short ninth. Coming back he used only 12 putts dopping two 10s and a 6-footer for birdies on the first three holes another 10-footer on the fifteenth and one of 5 feet on the eighteenth.

Dettweiler's Drive Finds Mark at Congressional

A good jump ahead of the first day of spring, the first hole-in-one shot of the Washington golf season zoomed over the Congressional Country Club course yesterday, propelled by a healthy drive by young Billy Dettweiler, of Georgetown University. It was a 225-yard drive which landed on the fourteenth hole green and trickled into the cup.

Dettweiler, one of the District's foremost young hopes for golf fame, was playing with G. F. Nikkelson and A. B. Schtworchi. The former Georgetown prep scholastic star had gone out in 42 and was spinning along to a 32 on the incoming nine when he shot his ace. He finished with a 72.

It was the collegian's first hole in one although he has played hundreds of rounds of golf.

Zoic Near Record in Winning 4th Straight in Hialeah Feature

Barba Rides Gelding to $14.70 Win

Johnnie Dear, Uncle Lester, Buttermilk Among Victors.

By the Associated Press.

Hialeah Park, Fla., March 4.—H. E. Enger's steadily improving 4-year-old, Zoic, today raced to his fourth straight and most important triumph in the featured Seaboard Air Line Handicap of 6 furlongs. Running the distance in 1:10 flat, within one-fifth of a second of Whopper's track record, the Prince of Wales gelding scored by a half length to return $14.70 for $2.

H. P. Headley's Fraidy Cat and Miss A. Doris' Lady Higloss, favorite and second choice, respectively, followed the victor across the line, a length apart.

Zoic began his winning streak here running for $1,500 in a claiming race. He repeated at $2,000 his next appearance, then came back again at $3,000. Today the brown sprinter jumped up into his toughest spot, but that did not stop the consistent fellow under light weight of 108 pounds.

Johnny Barba rode like a veteran on Zoic. He broke his mount on his toes and had to exercise cool-headed judgment when Lady Higloss joined him in a duel for command. Barba soon urged Zoic into a daylight advantage, which widened to three lengths after the turn for home. Fraidy Cat, slightly bothered by Lady Higloss while charging up on the outside of that mare in the stretch drive, gradually shortened Zoic's lead in the last furlong, but the latter had enough left to gamely withstand the challenge.

Mrs. E. D. Jacobs' Johnnie Dear, under strong handling by Wayne Wright, outfooted seven other 2-year-olds to reward favorite players in the opening event of three furlongs here today, at $3.50 for $2.

Trainer Earle Sande had Maxwell Howard's colt, Uncle Lester, in prime fettle for the second race of 6½ furlongs. Ten maiden 3-year-olds and upward competed, with Uncle Lester paying $7.80. Once Hubert Le Blanc took the ultimate winner into an early lead the race was as good as over.

Three-year-old platers performed in the 7-furlong third contest. A driving finish saw John Asbestos getting the nod by a head over Madonna, one that paid $58.90 for place. Molasses Bob was third, three lengths behind. Charlie Kurtsinger was astride Joan Asbestos. The Flying Dutchman kept his mount close on the pacemaker's heels and rode a powerful finish to wear down Madonna. Joan Asbestos returned $17.10.

Buttermilk, a filly that had failed to make an impression in three previous outings at the current meeting, found her racing legs in the fourth race and drove to a head success at $31.90 for $2. Zay was second in the tight finish, a length clear of Reminding. Zay and Suncrax waged a bitter head-and-head battle in the stretch, where Buttermilk made her move. She finally wore down Zay, running the mile in 1:37 1-5 under Nick Wall.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—UNCLE LESTER, $7.80, $4.40, $3.20; GLASSY EYE, $28.90, $10.40; BLACK WIDOW, $3.10.

UNCLE LESTER got away well in motion and quickly ran into lead, drew away after turning out of backstretch and won nicely in hand. GLASSY EYE, well up all the way, made a game effort. BLACK WIDOW was a bit slow getting away and was weakly ridden all the way. ME O MY had plenty of speed and is worth noting.

$2.00 DAILY DOUBLE, FIRST AND SECOND RACES, PAID $20.90.

THIRD RACE—Seven furlongs (chute). Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place easily. Went to post at 3:05. Off at 3:12. Winner, Mrs. J. M. Black's br. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—JOAN ASBESTOS, $17.10, $8.80, $5.90; MADONNA, $58.90, $34.80; MOLASSES BOB, $11.30.

JOAN ASBESTOS, away fast, followed pace closely to the final furlong, where she took lead and held on gamely. MADONNA had plenty of speed, but weakened in last sixteenth. MOLASSES BOB saved ground on turn and finished fast. MISS PONNE came from far back. WISE BUN was weakly ridden at end. MISS PECAN stopped badly.

FOURTH RACE—One mile (chute). Purse, $1,100. The Florida Sunbeam. For fillies and mares, 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:37½. Off at 3:38. Winner, Mrs. W. Plunket Stewart's b. f. (3), by Milkman—Drystone. Trained by G. M. Odom. Value to winner, $770; second, $175; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:37 1-5.

ALBANIA	(LeBlanc)	105	3	1	3²	3¹½	5	5	5	1.30

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BUTTERMILK, $31.90, $8.30, $4.30; ZAY, $4.40, $3.40; REMINDING, $3.60.

BUTTERMILK, well ridden, moved up gamely in stretch and stood long drive gamely. ZAY was sent to the front going into backstretch, displayed good speed and made a good effort. REMINDING, running kindly, finished very fast. SUNCRAX had plenty of speed. ALBANIA ran well for six furlongs, then quit.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200. The Seaboard Air Line Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:06. Off at 4:08. Winner, H. P. Headley's br. g. (5), by Prince of Wales—Zenobia II. Trained by C. A. Grande. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:10.

Horses	Jockeys	Wt.	Post	St.	¼	½	¾	Str.	Fin.	Straight

BIRD FLOWER	(J. Renick)	103	8	7	7	7	7	7	7	83.25

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ZOIC, $14.70, $6.40, $3.10; FRAIDY CAT, $4.10, $2.60; LADY HIGLOSS, $2.60.

ZOIC, showing a world of speed, outran his field from the start, opened a good gap entering stretch and stood long drive gamely. FRAIDY CAT, on the outside, was bothered several times by LADY HIGLOSS, but closed gamely and was nearing the winner down. LADY HIGLOSS broke good, was taken a bit wide on turn, but tired. SIR QUEST ran a good race.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles (turf). Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start bad. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:33. Off at 4:35. Winner, W. N. Adrians' ch. g. (3), by Man o' War—Boosting. Trained by H. Jacobs. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:48.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HUNTERDON, $7.10, $4.20, $3.40; PRINCE DEAN, $13.60, $8.00; DESERTER, $3.80.

HUNTERDON trailed far back for the first six furlongs, circled field and closing with a rush, won going away. PRINCE DEAN also came around field and finished fast. DESERTER got to the front on turn and then hung. BLIND BROOK ran a good race. PAY RACK tired badly.

EIGHTH RACE—One mile and a furlong. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:32. Off at 5:36. Winner, A. J. Abel's b. g. (6), by Stratford—Vizcaya. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:51 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—STRATEGIST II, $13.20, $7.00, $3.80; MANNERLY, $11.30, $5.40; LONE HAND, $3.00.

STRATEGIST II slipped through on inside entering stretch and just got up to win. MANNERLY ran into lead in stretch and held on well under a weak ride. LONE HAND, forced back at start, trailed far back to the last half mile and then closed with a rush and would have won in a few more strides. BE BIG tired forcing the pace. SAINTLITE best of the others. EMVEE had plenty of speed, but tired.

Steele, Middle Champ, Planning to Fight Here Next Summer

Bout Monday To Help Pick An Opponent

Titlist to Meet the Best Available Foe Chosen by Promoters.

The first step in selecting an opponent for the middleweight champion will be taken at Turner's Arena next Monday night, when Charles (Hobo) Williams engages Eddie Mader in an eight-round feature bout.

Steele is returning to the Coast for a few months, and possibly another title fight. Upon his return to the East he will be ready to fight in Washington.

"When we come back we are not going to restrict our fights to New York and places such as Philadelphia," Dave Millar, Steele's manager, said a few hours after Freddie had blasted out Paul Pirrone in less than one round. "We will be glad to make Washington our first fight in the East upon our return."

Millar agreed to allow his fighter to meet the best possible opponent who could be developed here, and the terms he named have met with the entire satisfaction of Promoter Joe Turner and Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn.

Despite the fact that Williams is a legitimate middleweight and Mader has been working as a heavyweight, many believe the difference in weights will prove an advantage to the Hobo.

Mader never did weigh much over the light-heavyweight limit of 175 pounds and his lightness was in a measure responsible for the speed which enabled him to outbox so many good big boys. In this instance, Williams will have the advantage of the lighter weight, and possibly speed.

Williams was picked by a boxing magazine as the country's most promising middleweight. He has been defeated only once as a professional, that time by Buddy Scott, another good prospect.

In Mader's last appearance here he sprained his ankle in the ninth round to drop a technical knockout to Jack Roper, after leading all the way.

Frankie DeAngelo, popular favorite of two years ago, will tackle Joe Leto, of Baltimore, in a four-round opener. Other supporting bouts will be announced later.

G-Men to Play Pepco in Cage Play Tonight

With everything competing from newspapermen to G-men, the Post's A. A. U. basketball championships dig into their fifth instalment in the Heurich gym tonight. The Bureau of Investigation's fast-traveling outfit heads the program, with Potomac Electric & Power Co. giving the G-men their first opposition of the tournament.

Before Investigation, brilliantly packed with a small army of former college stars, tackles the Pepcos, Takoma Motors will play Sports Center in another unlimited fracas at 8 p. m. The evening opens with Washington Daily News facing Pincus Grill in a 145-pound class encounter.

The fourth and final game at 10 p. m. finds the Flying Eagles confronting the Tennis Shop five, composed of many of the foremost tennis figures in the Capital.

L. I. U. Stars Turn Pro; to Play Here

Immediately after closing a sensational season with a thrilling victory over the George Washington University Colonials four regular members of the Long Island University Basketball team of New York announced that they will turn professional. They were simultaneously signed to play the Heurich Brewers, local pro team, here, Sunday in their debut.

They will play under the name of the Long Island Blackbirds.

They will be strengthened by the addition of Billy Schwartz and Phil Raben, members of last year's team. The six were team members of the great undefeated Long Island teams of 1934-35 and 1935-36.

G. W. Frosh, WPA Win Easily, In Post-A. A. U. Cage Tourney

George Washington's Freshmen and Commissioner George Allen's District WPA team upheld their robust ratings as favorites in The Post's A. A. U. basketball championships last night by barging through with overwhelming victories. The Freshmen, seeking the second straight unlimited title for G. W.'s yearlings, demolished Silver Spring (Md.) Merchants, 41 to 20, at Heurich gymnasium.

WPA did a workmanlike job on Jewish Commmunity center with a 50-to-16 victory. The victory for the Commissioner's cagers put them in the third round, one jump ahead of the rival Freshmen.

The two other games of the evening occurred in the 145-pound division. Georgetown University's intramural outfit bowed to Department of Agriculture, 33 to 26, and the Heurich Senate Beer five disposed of Government Printing Office, 32 to 17. The Beermen looked very much like the team to beat in the welterweight class.

Little of a startling nature took place as G. W.'s Freshmen went through the formality of turning back the Silver Springers.

Unlimited.

Heurich Pin Team Wins 3, To Take Lead

Raleigh Upsets Kanns in Store League, Helen Beyer Rolls High.

Displaying the brand of bowling which made them the champions of the District League loop, the Heurich Brewers wrenched the No. 1 position from Rose Liquor last night at the Lucky Strike drives, smothering the Liquormen in all three games. Sam Simon led the charge of the Brewers, chalking up games of 149, 145 and 159 for a new season record set of 453, exceeding Perce Wolfe's mark by 13 pins. The Brewers compile da pinfall of 1,921, featured by a second-game effort of 662.

Rose Liquor's defeat dropped them into third place, one game back of Occidental Restaurant, the latter gaining the runner-up position by whitewashing Convention Hall. Bill Krauss went back in the running for high individual average honors, boosting his set to 424 with a big game of 170 in his middle effort, rocketed by a triple-header strike.

Raleigh Haberdasher upset the leading Kann's team two games in the Department Store League last night at the Recreation drives. Lansburgh's moved up into third place by swamping Palais Royal.

Helen Beyer (North) rolled a 107 game and Anna Vito (Auxiliary Service Bureau) had a 298 set to annex individual laurels in the C. & P. Telephone Ladies' League . . . Daily News took undisputed possession of first place in the National Capital League, replacing the Benmacks . . . John Chancey starred for the Newsmen with a 389 set. . . . De Jaeger (Agriculture) chalked up a new season record game, shooting a big game of 154.

Villanova Foe Of Colonials In Final Game

5 Seniors in Last Contest Tomorrow; Freshmen to Engage G-Men.

No little chagrined at their failure to bag Long Island's fast-breaking Blackbirds Wednesday night, George Washington's dribblers will redouble their efforts against Villanova tomorrow night in hopes of closing their 1937 campaign in triumphant style. The boys are gunning for their sixteenth victory in 20 games.

It will be the final appearance in Colonial livery of five seniors, three of them regulars and integral parts of Coach Bill Reinhart's machine. Hal Kiesel, hub of the attack, Ben Goldfaden and "Midget Milton" Schonfeld, are the regulars participating in their last game. Clarence Berg and Walter Bakum, invaluable relief men, are the others.

The regulars of this group played prominent roles in hoisting the downtown school to the top in collegiate basketball, starting in their sophomore year when the Colonials won 14 out of 20 games. Last year they lost only three games in 19 starts, and in both seasons the above trio carried the brunt of the attack.

Villanova, which will be met on Tech High School's court at 8:30 o'clock, lost a previous decision to George Washington, 33-23, but since then has mowed down its opponents at an alarming pace. City College of New York, and Providence College are numbered among its victims.

Junior Soccer Series Will Open Tomorrow

Play in the local eliminations for the national junior soccer cup starts tomorrow with Rosedale and Capital Heights playing on Monument Field No. 2 at 11 o'clock.

Hoover and Park View meet in another first-round game on Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock, on the same field, in a preliminary to the first of the championship series Recreation League games between Heurich's and Sun Radio, scheduled for 3 p. m.

U. S. Government League.

Results in the United States Government Basketball League last night at the Y. M. C. A. were as follows: State Department, 35; Internal Revenue, 26; Bureau of Standards, 30; National Archives, 22; Government Printing Office, 22; Procurement Division, 6; Patent Office, 17; Interstate Commerce, 16; Loans and Currency, 27; Farm Credit Administration, 25.

Bill Dickey Signs.

New York, March 4.—Manager Joe McCarthy, playing the role of mediator, today signed Bill Dickey to an $18,000 New York Yankee contract. This represented a $3,500 raise for Dickey over last year.

Joe Cox Downs John Katan Before Sell-Out Mat Crowd

Referee Bortnick averred as how the finish was not illegal and refused to heed Katan's pleas for a recount. Whereupon Katan took matters in his own hands—or rather feet—and took out after his official conqueror, who was scurrying for the dressing room.

A posse of approximately five policemen, one female fan and a little guy with glasses rounded up Katan before he could reach the retreating Cox. The posse released Katan when John apparently had become completely subdued, but back in the dressing room the quarrel broke out anew, with Katan calling Cox a dirty so-and-so and Cox insisting John was a lousy this and that.

For some reason, probably just to be different or to keep the customers guessing, the wrestlers were hardly out of the ring more than half the time the bout was in progress.

Such dirty work as there was was mostly confined to such genteel tactics as kicking, biting, strangling, eye-gouging and hair-pulling.

Laverne Baxter, the current No. 1 public enemy, was disqualified after 7 minutes of rough and tumble in a scheduled 30-minute time-limit bout against Hank Barger. Baxter not only wrapped the ring ropes around the neck of Barber in the notorious hangman's-noose hold, but he treated the neck of Referee Al Bakash in the same manner. It was too much, and Bakash ruled him out for lese majeste.

In other 30-minute preliminaries, Henrie Piers and Nick Campofreda worked to a draw, as did Bill Sledge and Floyd Marshall, while Ed Meske flopped Al Billings in 21 minutes.

Merrick Boxers Lead Jr. Golden Gloves Field

With four men qualified for the finals, the Merrick Boys Club boxers led the field into the finals of the annual District A. A. U. Junior Golden Gloves tournament last night in their own ring. Georgetown and No. 5 Boys Clubs stood second with three men each qualified for the titular round.

Writers Vote End Most Valuable Gridman Over Kaufman.

Ray Hanken, buck-toothed end who last season played a prominent role in bringing national recognition to George Washington University's football team, last night was chosen as the recipient of the annual award made by the Omicron Delta Kappa honorary fraternity, to the most valuable member of the team.

Hanken, a burly lad of 185 pounds and 5 feet 11 inches, hails from Oelwein, Iowa. He is 24 years old.

Successor to "Tuffy" Leemans, who won the award two successive years, and with whom he will play next season as a member of the New York Giants professional club, Hanken was adjudged one of the best all-around ends developed here since the days of Murtagh, Tomagni, and other Georgetown immortals.

The award will be made at the alumni banquet, the date of which has not been decided.

"M stands for March and for Moderation,"
The lion roars out this recommendation:
"If tomorrow you'd spend doing heavy thinking
Be sure that tonight you go light on your drinking."

Here's how: With the juice of 1 lemon mix a jigger of CALVERT'S "RESERVE" or "SPECIAL" and 1 teaspoonful of sugar. Ice, shake, and strain into whiskey sour glass. Add soda water as desired. Decorate with cherry and slice of orange. Sip it and . . . smile!

Watch your P's and Q's tonight . . . and you won't flash an S.O.S. tomorrow! Use good judgment . . . in the whiskey you buy, in the way you enjoy it. Call for CALVERT. Enjoy it as a gentleman should—moderately. Be O.K. not K.O. in the morning! Call for CALVERT.

Higher Prices To Offset Lift In Steel Wages

Advances Are Expected to Run From $2 to $6 Per Ton.

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, March 4.—Steel observers looked to an expected steel price rise tomorrow to provide the additional revenues for the industry's latest wage increases amounting to more than $100,000,000 a year.

The United States Steel Corporation's largest subsidiary, Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation, will announce its prices for the second quarter of the year. Iron Age, journal of the industry, has predicted an advance in the cost of steel between $2 and $6 a ton.

A spokesman for a large steel producer said, "If they don't raise prices that will be news." Another company representative paraphrased an old political adage thus: "As goes 'big steel' so go the independents."

The wage increases announced this week are but one factor considered in the speculations of a price gain. The growing demand for steel, putting the industry near peak operation, and advances in the cost of raw materials are considered by observers as important supports for their forecasts of higher steel prices.

Heavy melting scrap at Pittsburg has gone up $3 a ton since the previous boost in wages and steel prices announced last November.

Silver Price Rises To 45¼c an Ounce

New York, March 4 (AP).—Spanish war hazards to world shipping and fears of international political disruptions were several factors credited with raising the price of silver today to only ¼ of a cent below the year's peak level.

The New York price of imported metal reached 45¼ cents an ounce, the highest since January 7, when it was 45½ cents and the first change in price since January 14 when silver was sold at 44¾ cents, the low for the year.

In 1936 the high was 49¾ cents an ounce and the low 44¾ cents.

Equitable Agents Honor D. C. Manager

Brokers' Loans Rise $7,000,000 in Week

The Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday that loans to brokers and dealers on securities held by reporting member banks in New York City totaled $1,060,000,000 for the week ended Wednesday, an increase of $7,000,000 over the previous week.

Idle Funds Cut $790,000,000 By Bank Rule

Circulation Increases to New High for This Year.

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Reserve Board reported last night that $790,000,000 of idle bank funds were "frozen" under the increase in deposit reserve requirements effective on March 1. The 16 2-3 per cent increase will be followed by a similar raise effective May 1. The higher requirements were ordered to head off a possibly injurious credit expansion.

In its weekly condition statement, the board said member bank excess reserves stood at $1,310,000,000 on March 3, compared with $2,100,000,000 in the previous week. The further requirement increase May 1 is expected to effect a similar reduction. Thus, on the basis of the present excess reserves, only about $500,000,000 of idle money will remain.

After May 1, the board expects to exercise flexible control over the supply of loanable funds through the purchase or sale of Government securities.

The condition statement showed a $35,000,000 increase in money in circulation during the week ended March 3 to $6,407,000,000, a new high for this year and $559,000,000 over the same week a year ago.

This outflow of funds into circulation had some effect in reducing excess reserves, exclusive of the reduction caused by the raise in reserve requirements.

The Market

Steel and Motor Shares Yield to Profit-Taking in Less Active Trading.

New York, March 4.—Stocks went through a profit-taking session which left them irregular, but the tone was rather firm. As the speculative fever cooled the sales volume dropped to around 2,750,000 shares. Bonds were barely steady in the upper grades. May wheat closed ⅝ of a cent higher at 133⅝ cents a bushel.

Although stock traders curbed their fast pace, they were less concerned over argument as to whether the unions or the steel and motor companies had won in the agreements signed than they were with the brighter prospect for several months of peace in the leading industries. Control over wages and hours always is a matter of less concern when order books are bulging and capacity operations are near than in duller times. It is taken for granted that, with the opening wedge in General Motors and United States Steel, the closed shop soon will be a reality, at least in those two corporations.

One reason for the easy victory, it is assumed, is the realization that the undistributed profits penalty tax removes some of the sting from larger wage disbursements. The wage bill at least will reduce the tax, and the dividends also, but they still can be considerable. Meanwhile the realization advances that the penalty tax was another in a series of inflationary measures. Already it has increased spending and speculation; it will add to corporate borrowing and tend to inflate plant capacity in good times.

Higher wages are being increasingly felt in retail trade, particularly in the steel and motor districts, and they will do more as employment increases. Before long the much delayed jump in retail prices will take place. Wholesale prices as usual have advanced much faster and much further, but the gap always closes in time. Until cost of operation overtakes them, the transportation stocks will merit a boom, as will the retail store shares. Both groups continued strong today, particularly the rails, while the steels were busy with digestion.

The monotony of profit taking was relieved in spots. Booming markets for silver metal in London on our Treasury's assurance that the silver purchase act would be left undisturbed, brought a rising speculation in silver shares. U. S. Smelting rose about 5 points. Backward crowds, as the agricultural implements, mail orders and fertilizers, were lifted 1 to 3 points. Utilities stiffened.

Still It Comes.

For all the supposed alarm in high quarters over the influx of foreign capital and the threats to do something about it, the triplets of our undervalued dollar, rising prosperity and the political uncertainties abroad continue to draw gold on a large scale. Gold imports in January were $121,336,000, against $45,900,000 a year ago. The February movement was slower, imports amounting to $63,000,000. Meanwhile, some signs have appeared that a partial correction may be had with a changed monetary policy. It is barely possible, as some observers see it, that the Administration will be willing for the sake of world stability in finance and business recovery, to see the dollar rise a little.

Higher Dollars.

Sterling today sank to a new low level for the year and, it was reported, acted as though the decline had been agreed upon in advance. At the same time the French franc sank, accompanied by a report from Paris that the United States Treasury had agreed to a decline to the lower limit for the franc provided by the recent devaluation measures, where our help would be given toward stabilization. Secretary Morgenthau on that point refused to say more than that he had told the French Ambassador that "we would do all we could and still live within and up to the spirit of our existing laws." That is broad enough for us to buy or sell millions of francs in accordance with a repegging or stabilization of French currency. Should the dollar be held at a substantially higher level against sterling and francs, a considerable bar to the gold influx would have been erected.

More Inflation.

We don't seem to mind the prospect of an inflationary bust opened up by our continuing huge expenditures, but certain cautious people in Great Britain are becoming a bit alarmed over the outlook there as affected by the new seven and a half billion dollar rearmament program. The figures, says the London Economist, "challenge comparison with our vast expenditure in the Great War itself—which was the chief source of the dislocation of our economic life during the entire post-war epoch, of the crushing burden of our towering national debt, of the world's currency troubles and of the unemployment of the great depression."

Cold Money.

American capital going abroad for the purchase of American securities may be called cold money. It is at least cold toward regulations of the SEC and the capital gains tax. How much of it is so employed is a matter of dispute. A London financial paper claims that the volume in that market is large and growing, and operations from Canada have known to exist ever since the setting up of the SEC. Secretary Morgenthau was quoted today as saying that he had no evidence to substantiate rumors of such trading. He also said that on the matter of control of foreign capital movements his study was "no nearer a conclusion than it was early this week."

Hot Money.

Unfortunately "hot money" statistics become generally available long after the big movements have occurred. It was said today, in connection with heaviness in francs and sterling, that the latest available information indicated that the daily movement of money in this direction was still at a pace well above a year ago but still well below the figures at the time the movement was at peak last fall.

Reserves.

Excess reserves of New York banks now are down below $400,000,000, partly because of country bank calls and partly because of transfers of funds of a commercial nature to other cities which are usual around the first of the month. The flow should be in this direction in a day or two. The next squeeze, if it may be called such, is due at the tax date.

Silver Boomlet.

The recent Washington reports that the silver purchase program of this country was not likely to be modified in the near future seems to have aided in the creation of a boomlet in the metal in foreign markets. The price in London rose 11-16 of a penny today at a level equivalent to 46.51 cents here, which lifted in turn the local price to 45¼ cents, up ½ cent on the day, the first change in several weeks. This advance for the time being puts the world price out of reach of the Treasury, which is paying 45 cents.

Harvester Profits $29,760,000 in Year

Chicago, March 4.—Substantial improvement in the business of the International Harvester Co. during 1936 as compared with 1935 is shown by the annual report, issued today by President Sydney G. McAllister. Noting that the company's fiscal year has been changed so as to end on October 31 instead of December 31, the report states that net profits for 1936 were $29,760,000 as against $19,618,238.03 for 1935.

Total proceeds from sales during the fiscal period ended October 31 were $254,934,000, or 17 per cent more than for 1935, and 24 per cent less than for the peak year 1929.

Harlan Resigns As Federal Aid; Joins Law Firm

By Thomas M. Cahill.

The decision of the Supreme Court in the Holyoke Water Power Co. case, the second by that Court upholding the Act of Congress abrogating the provision in public and private contracts for discharge of obligations in gold coin or bullion, recalls the hectic days in 1933 following abandonment by the United States Government of the gold standard.

John Graydon Harlan, one of the two Treasury Department lawyers, who, during those days drafted this gold clause abrogation law, has resigned as assistant to Herman Oliphant, general counsel of the Treasury Department, to enter the private practice of law in Washington as a member of the law firm of Moyle, Wilkinson, Suydam & Harlan. His resignation ends 17 years' service in the Federal Government.

Mr. Harlan, who was born in Pennsylvania and educated at the University of Pittsburgh and George Washington University Law School, brought ability to the position he held in the Treasury Department, having served as a lawyer in the prohibition and tax divisions of the Department of Justice, and as assistant United States attorney in Texas, as well as an attorney in the legal division of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, legal assistant to Former Under-Secretary of the Treasury Mills, and financial legal assistant to Former Secretary of the Treasury Woodin.

Crane Co. Report.

The annual report of the Crane Co., for 1936, shows consolidated net income was $5,802,170.01, equal to $2.04 per share on the common stock after allowance for full annual dividend on the 7 per cent cumulative preferred, as compared to 18 cents per share in 1935. Depreciation amounting to $2,182,902.19 was charged off during the year, as compared with $1,973,504.24 in 1935. Expenditures for improvements and replacements of equipment and facilities amounted to $1,993,300. In 1935 $1,039,000 was expended for this purpose.

The regular annual dividend of $7 per share was paid on the 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock, and $14 per share was paid against the arrears on this stock, leaving an unpaid dividend accumulation of $8.25 per share December 31. No dividend was paid on the common stock. Since this report a further dividend of $3 per share has been declared on the preferred, payable March 15. This further reduces the unpaid accumulation to $5.25 per share, or a total of $765,917.25.

The consolidated balance sheet shows $9,928,727.23 in cash and liquid securities and an increase in net working capital of $4,591,678.86 during the year. Inventories increased $5,234,445.11 to a total of $24,572,588.16. The ratio of current assets to current liabilities is $6.05 to $1. Consolidated sales increased 36 per cent over those for 1935, and sales in the United States increased 42 per cent. In his annual letter to shareholders, President Charles B. Nolte states "The market for products manufactured and sold by your company improved materially in 1936."

Rubber Industry.

Because of the increasing demand for rubber products at rising prices, the rubber and tire industry should enjoy a further upswing in sales and earnings at least during the first half of 1937, carrying on the improvement made last year, in the opinion of the F. & B. Industries Service, analysis of 28 industries published monthly by Fenner & Beane, New York Stock Exchange firm.

Rising costs of both labor and crude rubber present problems, the service admits, but these will probably be overcome by further advances in prices for manufactured products as recovery in general purchasing power and automobile registrations continue, the report states.

Bank Call.

A call for statements of condition of Washington banks and all National banks in the country may come this month. It is predicted that banks will report about the same record amount of deposits as announced on the last call of the comptroller of the currency for statements as of December 31, 1936. Little change is observed in total deposits here since the December call and should the next one come early in the month, they might show a slight advance. A call later in the month may reveal a little decline. Federal pay days coming on the first and fifteenth days of the month generally advance deposits to a higher figure than at the end of the month.

Banking Notes.

G. Bowie Chipman, resident manager of Laidlaw & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange, has returned from a visit to Mexico City and reports a large number of tourists there. Mr. Chipman found the Mexican capital and the surrounding country very interesting and enjoyed his trip.

The general partners have joined the staff of Harriman & Keech, New York Stock Exchange firm. They are George A. Maven and Malcolm S. McConihe, jr. They will be associated with the New York office, it was announced here.

Bank Clearings Jump in Week 17.2 Per Cent

Local Volume Increases 29.2 Per Cent Over Year Ago.

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 4.—Bank clearings in the United States were lifted during the latest period to the highest levels since December 23, 1936. The total for 22 leading cities, as reported to Dun & Bradstreet, for the week ended Wednesday, March 3, was $7,109,623,000, against $6,064,658,000 in the corresponding period of 1936, a rise of 17.2 per cent. This contrasted with an increase of 11.4 per cent in a similar comparison for the five days previous.

Clearings at New York City were $4,573,275,000, which was 14.2 per cent in excess of the $4,003,294,000 recorded last year. At outside centers, the aggregate of $2,536,348,000 rose 23.0 per cent above the amount a year ago.

The week's clearings were higher than those of the short period preceding by $1,518,467,000. Between the two similar weeks of 1936, there was a rise of $1,045,878,000.

JOE PALOOKA — Nervous Prosecution — By Ham Fisher

I TRIED TO FIND SOMETHING OUT. BUT HE DON'T TALK A WORD. HE'S SICK IN THE HEAD MORRIS.
SUCH A NICE LOOKIN' FELLER. BY HIS CLOTHES I COULD TELL HE'S A GENTLEMAN. A FORTUNE THEY COST!
LOOK MISTER-- WHAT'S YOUR NAME AWREDDY? WE COULD MAYBE TAKE YOU HOME.
POOR MAN--HE'S GOT IT WHAT THEY CALL A NERVOUS PROSECUTION OR AMMONIA WHICH THEY DON'T REMEMBER NOTHING.
SHOULD WE CALL THE POLICE MORRIS? MAYBE BETTER HE SHOULD GO TO A HORSPITAL..
NO--HE NEEDS REST AND QUIET AND WE COULD GIVE HIM HERE BETTER. HE'LL STAY WITH US. YOUR COOKING IS GOOD FOR HIM MAMA.
I'LL FIX HIM OUR BED. WE CAN FIX THE STORE-ROOM FOR OURSELFS.
